IDLE CONGRESS AWAITS RETURN OF ROOSEVELT

Party Splits Stall Lawmakers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will return this week from his fishing holiday to confront a state of affairs in Washington unparalleled in recent years.

The legislative machinery in congress is stalled, the overwhelming Democratic majority is split on important questions to the degree of impotence to function and Democratic leaders are running around in circles, getting nowhere with plans and programs and projects on which they unanimously disagree.

Suffers Loss of Prestige.

The President himself has suffered a marked loss of prestige, as is evidenced by the spreading rebellion in his own party against his drive to pack the Supreme court and against his budgetary program of continued deficit financing. A much discussed question of the moment is whether the control of congress that Mr. Roosevelt has enjoyed since the beginning of his incumbency is slipping from his grasp.

With the progress of recovery definitly relegating to the dim past those days of panic when legislators with bewildered relief did the bidding of the confidence inspiring new tenant of the White House and with necessitous economy beginning to dry up the wells of patronage and pork, Democratic cloak rooms have echoed of late with ejaculations of statesmen that they are rubber stamps no longer.

Ready to Crack Whip.

Whether they actually have regained their independence or are merely voicing a pious hope will be disclosed at no distant date. Mr. Roosevelt is an exceedingly shrewd and resourceful politician and he will spare no effort to regain control of congress, if he has lost it. He will call the Democratic leaders to the White House as soon as he returns and will crack the whip as of old. The question is whether they will obey as of old.

The President will return to confront what appears to be certain defeat on his proposal to pack the Supreme court with six New Dealers. The judiciary committee of the senate, which stands 10 to 8 against Mr. Roosevelt on this question, will take its first vote on May 18. By that date Mr. Roosevelt will be compelled to decide whether to seek a part of his loaf by way of compromise or to fight for the full six whole loaf, if it keeps congress here all summer. The prevailing opinion among Democratic leaders is that, if disposed to compromise, the President could easily win an addition of two members to the court.

Refuses to Compromise.

So far Mr. Roosevelt has impatiently brushed aside all suggestions of compromise, asserting supreme confidence that he will win hands down in the end. In some quarters the belief is entertained that his strategy in any event calls for an unrelenting insistence on the full terms of his proposal at least until after the Supreme court shall have decided the social security cases. By so doing he would keep poised over the court the whip to which Attorney General Cummings has not hesitated to impute the recent decision of the court favorable to the New Deal.

Another question the President must decide is whether he shall continue to keep the stream of legislation dammed up with the court packing bill. Up to date he has held back projected New Deal bills, notably measures to empower the federal government to regulate minimum wages, maximum hours of labor, prices and trade practices—held them back pending passage of the bill that would empower him to pack the court with judges certain to uphold such legislation.

Brings Pressure on Senators.

By so doing he has intensified the pressure that labor groups and other proponents of such legislation are bringing to bear on senators to pass the court packing bill and thereby break the log jam holding up labor and other New Deal measures.

As a result of the President's tactics in behalf of the court bill con-

Ahead of Schedule; Speed 172 M. P. H.

New York, May 10 [Monday].—[Special.]—Henry T. [Dick] Merrill, veteran air line pilot essaying a second round trip flight between New York and London, was well out over the Atlantic ocean early this morning, speeding eastward toward the coronation ceremonies and fulfillment of his plan of completing the hazardous 3,300 mile hop in 18 or 19 hours after the take-off in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon.

Flying with Merrill is Jack Lambie, 27 years old, of Birmingham, Mich., his co-pilot on the New York-Miami transport run of the Eastern Air Lines. They took off from Floyd Bennett field at 3:36 p. m. [Chicago daylight time] and planned to arrive at Croydon airport, outside London, at 11 a. m. [Chicago daylight time]—4 p. m. British summer time.

Averaging 172.7 Miles Per Hour.

Air disturbance and static rendered their signals indistinguishable at 12:15 a. m., but at 1:27 a. m. they were able to pierce the void and report their position east of Cape Race, Newfoundland, 1,508 miles from New York. The flyers then had averaged 172.7 miles an hour.

At 2:15 a. m. Merrill reported they were 531 miles east-northeast of St. John's, New Brunswick, and 1,636 miles from New York, flying constantly "on instruments" at an altitude of 6,000 feet. It was raining. Good tail winds enabled them to maintain their high average speed of earlier hours.

The frequent radio signals charting the log of the fast moving ship carried out the note of optimism with which Merrill, veteran of 3,000,000 miles of air travel, took his big plane into the sky at take-off time.

Promises Coronation Photos.

Before departure he had expressed abundant confidence of setting a record for the air crossing, and promised friends he would be back in New York on Thursday of this week, bringing with him the first photographs of the coronation of King George VI.

Merrill's ship, a twin motored Lockheed, is equipped with a two way radio. It also is equipped with constant speed propellers, an automatic pilot, and a gyro-compass in addition to the radio.

The big plane was formerly used by Harold S. Vanderbilt as an "air-yacht." Its normal ten passenger cabin had been remodeled so that every available space was used for fuel. Merrill took 1,200 gallons of gasoline and 60 gallons of oil, and estimated that it gave him a flying range of 4,500 miles.

Take a Rubber Boat.

Merrill and Lambie, dressed in ordinary business suits, took with them a few chicken sandwiches, coffee in thermos bottles, some tomato juice, and a collapsible rubber boat, presented to them by Al Williams, noted navy flyer.

They also took magazines and newspapers. Two small items included watches for the new king and queen, gifts of an American watch making company, to be presented by the flyers if they get the chance.

METEOR FLAMES ACROSS SKY; SEEN ALL OVER CITY

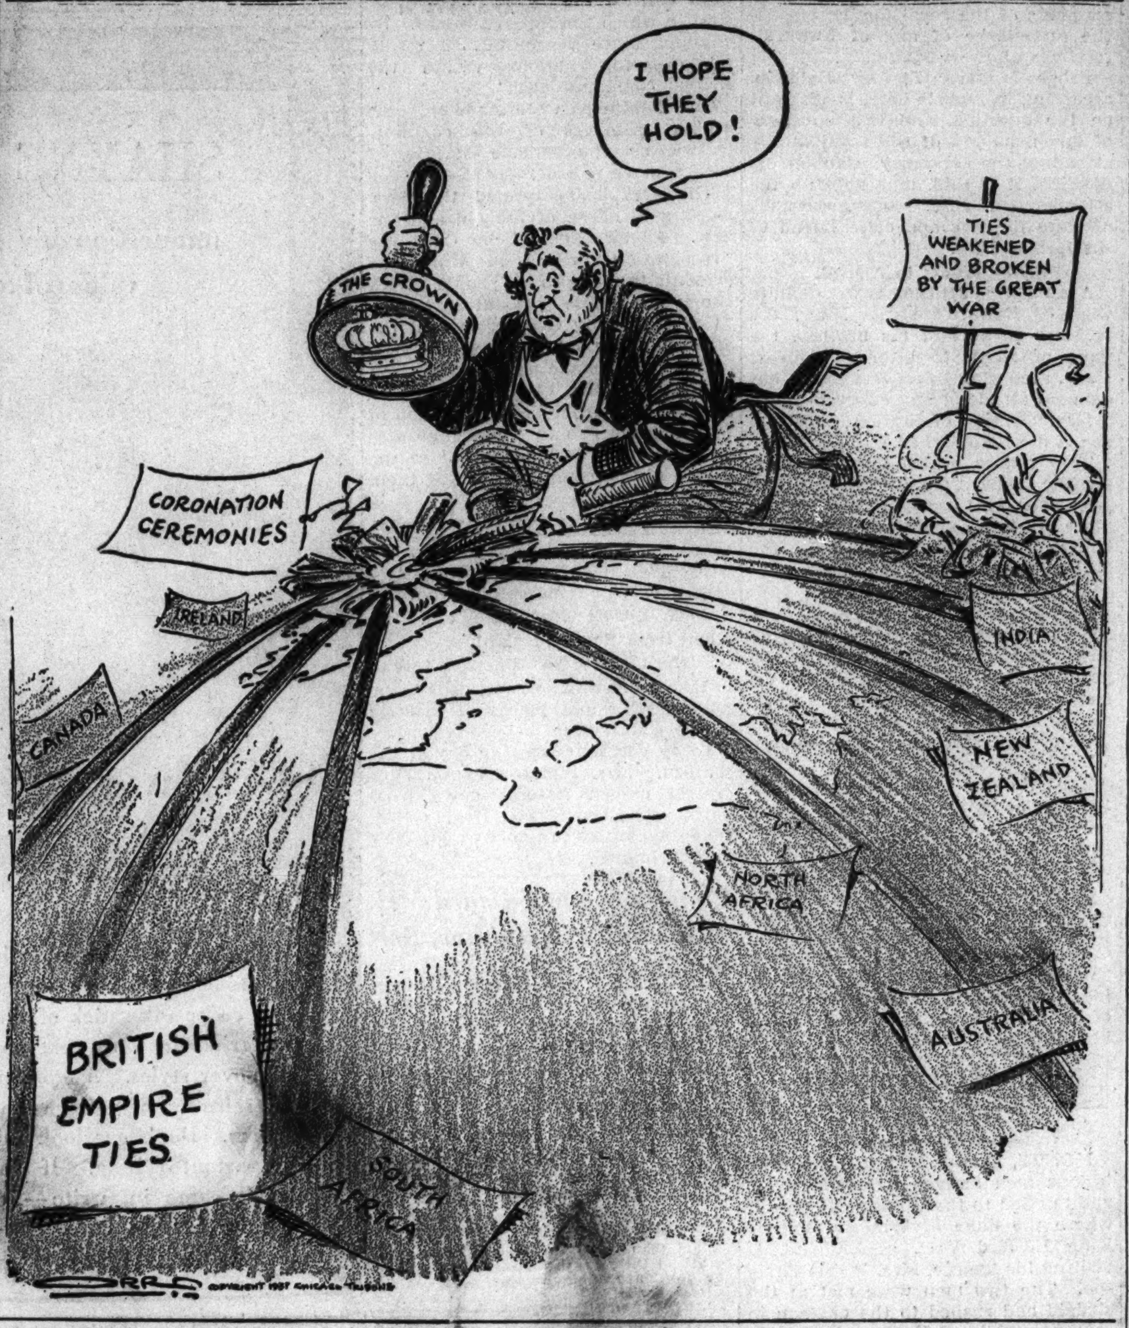
Chicagoans who were looking into the western heavens at 10:32 o'clock last night saw a brilliant meteor speed northward and disappear. Some said they heard a hissing sound, which astronomers at the Yerkes observatory in Williams Bay, Wis., said indicated that it was very near the earth. Most of those who saw the meteor said it was greenish white and had a red tail.

Use of 'Rebel' Bulls Starts Riot at French Bull Fight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

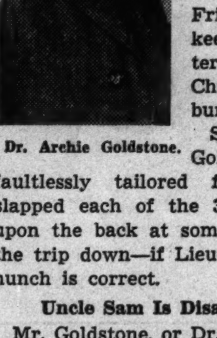
PARIS, May 9.—Several persons were hurt in rioting at a bullfight in Beziers, southern France, today when Madrid sympathizers among the spectators objected to the use of bulls from the part of Spain held by Gen. Francisco Franco. More than 100 spectators suddenly started a row over the bulls, but police quelled them.

CEMENTING THE TIES



Dr. Goldstone Picks Horses and Pockets

Thirty-seven gentlemen who discovered upon their arrival in Louisville that they had no money to bet on the Kentucky Derby and no railroad tickets home doubtless will be interested in the fact that Archie Goldstone missed only one of his 39 engagements Friday, but was keeping one yesterday with the Chicago detective bureau.



Dr. Archie Goldstone.

Suave Mr. Goldstone is the faultlessly tailored fellow who slapped each of the 37 Derby fans upon the back at some time during the trip down—if Lieut. Dan Healy's hunch is correct.

Uncle Sam Is Disappointed.

Mr. Goldstone, or Dr. Goldstone, as he prefers to be known, had engagement No. 1 Friday with Uncle Sam, who wished him in federal court about some wallets that disappeared from the pockets of passengers on a train from South Bend to Chicago recently, but he didn't show up.

Engagements No. 2 to 38, Lieut. Healy believes, were tentative ones with affluent gentlemen on their way to the Derby, gentlemen who'd never even heard of Dr. Goldstone. The 39th was with a bookmaker. Lieut. Healy is quite certain he kept all these without the knowledge of the other parties.

Interested in 37 Wallets.

Anyway, when Dr. Goldstone was met in Louisville Friday afternoon police there said they'd like to talk to him because of his distinction as a doctor of flim-flam.

They were particularly interested in the 37 wallets that he was carrying.

Because there were pickpockets abroad in the Derby crowd, the police said, they took the wallets and Dr. Goldstone's $400 away from him for safe keeping, and put him in jail, likewise for safe keeping.

Yesterday Dr. Goldstone, who says he lives at 4008 Clarendon avenue, was brought back to Chicago and taken to the detective bureau showup, where he explained everything.

The wallets? Well, they're just souvenirs. He has been carrying them with him everywhere for years, he said. The railroad tickets back from the Derby, and the cards of Chicagoans found in them? A mere coincidence, the doctor said.

Police said they would hold him so that he may keep his engagement with Uncle Sam, even if he's a little late. Dr. Goldstone has a record, they said, that goes back to 1906. Wallets are always vanishing from other people's pockets just after he slaps them on the back.

He won on the Derby, even though he was in jail—borrowed some money while locked up and persuaded some one to take it out and put it on War Admiral's nose.

LASSIES ARE LURED TO LOVERS' CHURCH, BUT LADS HIDE OUT

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 9.—(AP)—Dr. W. A. McKeever opened his lovers' church for romance here today—to 150 girls and only six bashful men.

But the nationally known psychologist and former college professor was not discouraged. Said he:

"We've got a good looking bunch of men in that corner. And more of them will come in—ashamed of themselves for not having come earlier."

"You women get the idea that men haven't got love in their hearts, but that's wrong," Dr. McKeever said. "They have got love in their hearts, but they hate to admit it. It takes a little work to get them to come out."

SAVE 3 CHILDREN FROM FIRE; HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Three children were rescued from a burning frame house at 1653 North Halsted street early today, but not before an exciting moment in which they were temporarily trapped amid the flames with two of their rescuers. A taxi driver helped to save all five.

The fire, for which a 2-11 alarm was sounded, first broke out in an unoccupied dwelling in the rear of 1649 Halsted street, and spread to the house at 1653 Halsted, occupied by John and Mrs. Anna Cale and their three children, Frank, 8 years old; John Jr., 5, and Barbara, 1, who lived on the first floor, and Mr. and Mrs. Rosario Abene and their infant son, Michael, living on the second floor.

The light from the flames awakened Samuel Olino, 20 years old, and Fred Bartoli, also 20, of 1645 North Halsted street. They dressed hastily, and directed by other neighbors—one of whom fired a shot as a guide—dashed to the Cale home. The Abenes had already escaped from the second floor, but the Cales, it seemed, could not get out. Olino and Bartoli finally opened the door, and pushed out Mr. and Mrs. Cales, then went after the children.

While they were inside the door closed and locked. Neither Olino nor Bartoli could open it. With the flames creeping up to them, and plaster falling they tugged so hard at the knob they broke it off. Just as real danger threatened, Thomas Becker, the taxi driver, appeared. He smashed the door open. Olino and Bartoli then carried out the Cale youngsters.

Film Actors Win Demands; Avert Strike

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 9.—[Special.]—The threatened strike of the Screen Actors' Guild apparently was averted tonight when the film producers' conference committee announced a majority of the producers had granted the chief demands presented by the actors. Recognition of the Guild as the sole bargaining agency for the actors and salary increases and better working conditions were among the demands.

The announcement was made by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the producers' conference committee. He said that not all the producers had agreed to the demands, but that there should be no difficulty in obtaining their approval.

Schenck Announces Agreement.

Mr. Schenck's statement follows:

"Working conditions for actors have been amicably adjusted.

"It has been the common endeavor of both committees to work out the best possible conditions for players receiving smaller salaries, and it is my opinion that the points agreed upon by the two committees will be regarded by all parties concerned as equitable and just.

"In the relatively short time the producers' committee has had to work out the committee's own recommendations and submit them to the producers as a whole, it has been impossible to reach the heads of every studio. However, there should be no delay in obtaining an answer from those not yet conferred with. I believe the result of our conferences will represent a permanent basis for mutual good will and helpfulness between producers and actors."

Halts Strike Vote.

Announcement of the acceptance of the guild's demands came while 4,000 actors were in session at Legion stadium to vote on a strike. Robert Montgomery, president of the guild, said:

"During the coming weeks we will contact studios that have already committed themselves to the guild shop agreement and obtain their signatures. Any studio failing to sign the guild shop agreement will be declared unfair and a strike will be called against it."

Settlement of the disputes between the actors and the producers apparently left the Federated Motion Picture crafts without the support they had expected from the guild, although each was acting separately. The federation had pickets at all the larger theaters in Hollywood and Los Angeles today.

5 Nations Win Way to Chicago Golden Gloves

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milan, Italy, May 9.—Eight amateur boxers from five nations—Germany, Hungary, Italy, Poland, and Sweden—tonight fought their way to championships of all Europe—and a round trip to Chicago.

Their victories, gained after five nights of battling against the ablest fighting men of 16 European countries, won for each of them a place on the team of international champions which on May 28 will meet Chicago's champions in the sixth international Golden Gloves contests, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Three countries—Germany, Italy, and Poland—each won two championships. Hungary and Sweden each won one.

Capacity Throng Sees Finals.

Tonight's bouts, fought before a capacity throng in Milan's historic Theater Puccini, climaxed the greatest boxing tournament ever held in Europe. They surpassed in international interest even the Olympic boxing tournament of last summer. All sixteen nations which took part in the tournament had made unprecedented preparations for it, their fighters inspired to greater heights of international rivalry than ever before by the prospect of winning a trip to Chicago.

Nationalist feeling, of course, spurred each nation and each fighter to do his utmost toward attaining a championship, but a submergence of nationalism into the greater objective of getting the best Europe could muster to oppose Chicago was noticeable throughout the five days of the fighting.

Five times since 1931 Europe has sent boxing teams to Chicago to oppose THE TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves squad. The best any one nation could do against the Americans was a tie, gained by Germany in 1932. France, Ireland, Poland, and Italy all went down to defeat in Chicago rings.

They Talked About Chicago.

But when the fighters of each of those five teams returned to Europe, they gossiped of the wonders of Chicago, its hospitality, its generosity, and the sportsmanship of its boxers and its spectators. The idea that 23,000 persons—the largest amateur boxing crowd in the world—had watched inter-city and international Golden Gloves shows was almost unbelievable and there is not an amateur boxer in Europe who would not give almost anything he possesses to make the trip to Chicago.

Strange as it may seem to any one familiar with the jealousy, suspicion, and distrust that exists among the nations of Europe, national boundaries have been eradicated to some extent within the International Amateur Boxing federation which governs the sport in Europe.

Officials of the organization have been able to work in harmony and at times to forget national barriers in working for the good of the sport. Thus they were enabled to make a concerted effort to bring out of this

Fight to See Empty Coronation Show.

LONDON, May 9.—(AP)—Undaunted by a cold, drizzling rain, throngs estimated at nearly 1,000,000 persons fought and jammed their way into the streets between Buckingham palace and Westminster abbey early this morning to watch the final rehersal of the coronation procession.

It was the show for the masses, the chance for those who cannot witness Wednesday's brilliant spectacle to get an idea of what the progress of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain to their coronation will be like.

The outpouring was the largest crowd in London since the funeral of King George V. sixteen months ago, a vast assortment of shivering, bedraggled but happy human beings who cheered wildly at the sight of the empty gilded coach of state and the various mounted military contingents.

It provided an excellent preview of the throngs that will swarm through London on coronation day, three days off.

Rulers Hosts at Dinner.

This evening the police had difficulty clearing a way through the London crowds for the king and queen as they returned by automobile from Windsor, where they had been resting for the arduous week ahead.

At the palace the monarchs welcomed several royal guests arriving from abroad for the coronation, and were hosts at an informal dinner attended by visiting royalty and the king's brothers, the dukes of Gloucester and Kent, and their wives.

Outside the palace gates about 30,000 persons gathered.

Queen Maud of Norway and Queen Mother Mary, driving to the palace for the dinner, also had difficulty making a way through the throngs. Policemen commandeered a taxi occupied by three unidentified girls out sightseeing in order to lead a way for the two queens through the crush of trafic.

Get Thrill of a Lifetime.

The girls lowered the taxi's hood and stood on the back seat waving hats and handkerchiefs to the crowds, evidently getting the thrill of a lifetime out of such close proximity to two queens.

For this morning's spectacle thousands stayed up all night to make sure of vantage points. With the bus strike still in progress, thousands walked miles for the chance to see and to get soaked to the skin.

By 6 a. m. the streets along the route were black with men, women, and children huddled under newspapers, blankets, wraps, and umbrellas, but who joked, laughed, and stomped their feet in efforts to relieve the monotony of the wait and the cold.

Revelers not yet home from the night clubs and still in evening dress stood shoulder to shoulder with weary scrubwomen, while an army of police strove to keep order.

Stand on Roofs of Autos.

People stood on the roofs of marooned taxis and automobiles, climbed trees and flagpoles, and flooded into the decorated grandstands, to which they were admitted for three pence [6 cents] as against the big money Wednesday's spectators will have to pay. Special trains from the provinces swelled the crowds.

Never has there been a larger crowd here for a more empty show. Instead of a full dress rehersal down the Mall and Whitehall, with the soldiers wearing scarlet tunics, shining breastplates and nodding plumes—as they will Wednesday—the spectators saw khaki clad soldiers and coachmen wearing raincoats and Indian troops under soggy turbans.

The gold state coach looked tarnished in the rain. The street decorations dripped and some colors ran. But the crowds cheered as though they were witnessing the dawn of a new world.

Cheer by Direction.

At some points they cheered by direction, in order to accustom the horses to the swelling roar through which they must move on coronation day.

This coronation is a costly one. The government is spending more than $2,000,000 for the crowning of George VI.

A good grandstand seat for the procession costs as high as $250—though many may be had for less.

Accommodations for visitors vary from $1 for a night's lodging to $5,000 for the week.

It cost $700,000 to build the government grandstands.

Visitors from Europe are expected to spend some $15,000,000.

It was estimated American visitors will spend an average of at least $400 each.

Throughout the far-flung British empire spectacular celebrations will mark coronation day, with parades, fireworks, royal salutes, banquets. Here is how some of the distant British communities will observe the day.

CANADA—A general holiday will halt the dominion's normal activities as the government and municipalities spend an estimated $1,000,000 to honor the new king. Parades, dances, and the distribution of souvenir medals have been planned.

AUSTRALIA—Because of the difference in time Australian ceremonies will be ending when those in London begin. The great Sydney harbor bridge will be illuminated, ships in the harbor will flaunt gala banners.

Plan Military Reviews.

NEW ZEALAND—The government is spending $100,000 on decorations and other festive preparations. Naval and military reviews will continue throughout the week.

SOUTH AFRICA—Zulus at Ladysmith will stage a coronation dance in full war paint. All four provincial capitals plan to be decked in their best when a 21-gun salute at Capetown booms forth news that George VI. has been crowned.

INDIA—The varied races of India will celebrate in honor of the new king-emperor with special ceremonies and balls.

BRITISH GUIANA — The legislature has set aside $5,000 for the celebrations.

PALESTINE — Bonfires of olive wood will blaze on the ancient biblical hills of Palestine as British troops stage a military review. Illuminated airplanes will fly over Jerusalem.

And all around the world, in Singapore, New York, Shanghai, Berlin, Tokio, Moscow — homesick British communities will hold their own fêtes.

BEAUTY ANGRY AT HITLER FOR FAVORING POLA

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York News.]

LONDON, May 9.—The reported romance of Reichsfueher Adolf Hitler and Pola Negri, screen beauty, threatens a rift, it was reported here today, between Hitler and Leni Reifenstahl, another beauty who once was mentioned as his chief heart interest. Leni, it was said, threatened to resign as director in chief of the German film industry and enter a convent in some foreign country after the dictator's agents had affirmed for him that Pola is a non-Jewish Pole and therefore eligible to work in German pictures.

Frau Reifenstahl, who began her career by dancing in the nude, won fame as an actress and maintained a salon at which Hitler was a frequent and favored guest. She was appointed to her high office shortly after she announced that her affections for the fuehrer were purely platonic. Since then there has been no other woman whose name could be linked closely to Hitler's—none until the glamorous Pola Negri came along. And Leni, it is said, was quick to resent the intrusion.

Meanwhile, all Germany is whispering that Hitler soon may marry the Polish actress.

CANADIAN UNIT MOUNTS GUARD AT PALACE GATES

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 9.—A thousand years' precedent immortalized in coronation ceremonies were pushed aside today when at noon a company of Canadian soldiers—alien to British soil—took over sentry duty at Buckingham and St. James' palaces for six hours as the king's bodyguards. For the first time non-British troops guarded the visible heart of the empire.

Thousands of sightseers, who despite the rain thronged Victoria Memorial plaza before Buckingham palace, gazed at the khaki clad dominion stalwarts who furnished a strange contrast to the usual guards wearing their famous bearskins that for generations have been mounted on perpetual guard outside the king's residence.

Historians saw a far deeper significance in the Canadians as symbols of deep changes in the British empire in which George VI. is king individually of Britain and each dominion with the latter enjoying complete freedom as equal members of the empire under the crown. Other dominion troops here for the coronation will have their turns in symbolic rites this week. The duty meant to the Canadians the fullest recognition of their co-equal status with Britain under the crown.

U. S. CLERGYMAN IS MODEST ABOUT CORONATION JOB

LONDON, May 9.—(AP)—The Rev. James de Wolf Perry Jr., the only United States citizen who will take part in Wednesday's ceremony for the coronation of King George VI. of England, today hid his distinction under a mask of modesty.

He will act as one of the two chaplains with the archbishop of York. His part will be to walk in and out of Westminster abbey behind the archbishop.

"Folk back in Norfolk, Va., my parish, where I am curate of the Christ and St. Luke's Episcopal church, will want to know what I do at the coronation, but it really should not interest the rest of the country," he said.

FIGHT GROWS ON KIN GOING TO SEE EDWARD MARRIED

Publicity for Wally Called Insult to Queen.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 9.—Wedding plans of the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of England, and Mrs. Wallis Simpson may be circumscribed by opposition which appears to be growing among some members of the British cabinet as well as some members of the royal family, against the attendance of any of Edward's relatives at the wedding.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, according to reports here, is adamant on the question, and will not hear of any members of the royal family attending the ceremony. Cabinet opposition, it is said, may hold up the attendance of Duff Cooper, secretary of state for war and close friend of the former king.

Sister Wants to Attend.

Against this attitude is the definite wish of Edward's sister Mary, the princess royal, and his brother, the duke of Kent, to attend. Princess Mary, according to reports today, has opposed all along any effort to make a family pariah of Edward, to whom she is deeply attached.

Tory circles, which were insistent on the abdication of Edward last December, also are getting more and more furious about the publicity being given Mrs. Simpson in the British press.

Called "Insult" to Queen.

The mayor of Manchester made a speech protesting publicity for the duke and his bride-to-be, on the grounds that such publicity is detracting from the glamor of the forthcoming coronation of Edward's brother and successor, King George VI.

The Sunday Chronicle declares that the attention being given to the occupants of the Château de Cande [near Monts, France, where Edward and Mrs. Simpson are staying], especially the attention devoted to Mrs. Simpson, is an "insult" to Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. The Chronicle berates Mrs. Simpson as a "woman of alien birth and upbringing," and objects to the glorification of her at the expense of Queen Elizabeth.

TWO MYSTERY GUESTS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTS, France, May 9.—Two mysterious men arrived by plane today and hurried to the Chateau de Cande, where the duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII. of England, is visiting his fiancée, Mrs. Wallis Simpson. The two men were met at the airfield and rushed to the chateau in the automobile of Herman L. Rogers of New York and Cannes, close friend of Mrs. Simpson and Edward.

The visitors landed at the military airport instead of the civil field ordinarily used. Presumably they came from London. Rogers, spokesman for Mrs. Simpson, was questioned about their identity. He consulted Edward before making a reply and then refused to tell the visitors' names, saying only that they are personal friends of the former king and will leave Monts tomorrow.

Guard to Be Reduced.

In a press conference Rogers announced that the uniformed policemen and mobile guards who have been policing the chateau will be withdrawn tomorrow and only two detectives will remain—one from the French Surete Nationale and the other from Scotland Yard.

Edward and Mrs. Simpson intend to take a drive tomorrow, visiting various castles and places of interest in the countryside.

Today was hair dressing day at the chateau. Mrs. Simpson had a hairdresser named Antonio down from Paris and Edward and Rogers took advantage of his presence to get their locks trimmed.

BISHOP'S BROADCAST PRESENTS PREVIEW OF CORONATION RITUAL

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Describing the coronation as a solemn, religious act, the archbishop of Canterbury in a preview of next Wednesday's coronation, declared today the crowning of King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth will mark a new departure in an ancient ceremony.

Archbishop of Canterbury.

In a fifty-five minute broadcast from London the archbishop said the crowning of George and Elizabeth will be the first in which the dominions are recognized as "fully self-governing nations within the British commonwealth."

The dominions were made self-governing members of the commonwealth by the famous statute of Westminster in 1931.

The archbishop termed the ceremony a blending of the old and the new. As an example, he cited the "recognition" ritual in which he presents the king to his people. With one voice those present cry out, "God save King George," as did the Saxons of ancient England.

The bishop made no direct allusion to the abdication of Edward, but he recalled his post-abdication sermon of four months ago in "which he was moved to address and appeal to the people of this country, recalling them to religion."

Chauffeur for Edward VII. Kills Wife, Neighbor, Self

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 9.—Henri Guilloux, former chauffeur of King Edward VII. of Great Britain, suddenly went insane and killed his neighbor, Robricard Hanvings, his own wife, and then himself today in the Paris suburb of Gagny. He was 65 years old. Guiloux was known as a skilful driver when automobiles were in their infancy and was employed by Edward VII. from 1900 to 1908.

REPORT BRITISH WRITER CAUGHT IN IL DUCE'S BAN

ROME, May 9.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini's bitter campaign against the British press today appeared about to be carried further as informed Fascist quarters said one British correspondent had been designated for expulsion from Italy because of the nature of his dispatches.

Yesterday Il Duce recalled all Italian correspondents from Great Britain and ordered all but three British newspapers barred from Italy. Yesterday's orders did not affect the status of British correspondents here.

Fascist sources would not name the correspondent, and British newspaper men could not agree as to his identity. Several British correspondents attended Il Duce's celebration of the first anniversary of his proclamation of the new Roman empire today, there being no tendency to boycott his big show in reprisal for the virtual boycott of the London coronation by the Italian press.

HUNT WIDOW'S NEIGHBORS FOR TORTURE THEFT

Search centered in the neighborhood yesterday for the two robbers who tortured Mrs. Rose Lederer, 68 years old, a widow, in her home at 2613 West 47th street early yesterday to make her tell where she had hidden her money.

Lieut. Andrew C. Stevenson of the New City police said the robbers were probably residents of the neighborhood because they knew that Mrs. Lederer had sold her home a week ago, and asked her specifically for the money.

At first she told them that she had not yet received the money, but when they beat and kicked her and then cut her, she told them it was in a bedroom. As they went to search for it, she ran to the porch and called a neighbor. The robbers fled with $12, and set fire to the house as they left.

50 HURT IN RIOTS AT FRENCH FETE TO JOAN OF ARC

Fascists, Leftists Clash at Toulouse.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 9.—More than fifty persons were injured today at Toulouse in rioting during a Joan of Arc celebration. Several persons were arrested, including officials of the French Social party—the Fascist organization headed by Col. François de la Rocque, arch foe of communism—and officials of the Action Française, royalist organization.

The rioting began when nationalists parading to the statue of Joan of Arc sang the Marseillaise and shouted "France for the French"—referring to allegations that Premier Leon Blum's Popular Front government takes orders from Moscow. The major clash came when 400 leftists attempted to wedge their way into a cathedral during a Joan of Arc memorial service.

Police Nab Shouters.

In Paris and elsewhere in France the day passed off with little or no disorder, due to elaborate precautions taken by the police and the mobile guard.

There was considerable resentment among the nationalists against Premier Blum's restrictions forbidding the use of bands and uniforms and prohibiting singing, shouting or marching by any group of more than 100 persons. The restrictions were obeyed, however, with the exception of singing and shouting when tension became too great. Nine arrests of shouters were made in Paris during the forenoon.

The celebration in Paris centered at the Joan of Arc equestrian statue in the Rue de Rivoli, the very heart of the tourist center. The demonstrators literally buried the statue in flowers. Civilians staged a parade, troops marched past and homage was paid by members of the French cabinet.

Two American warships participated in the country-wide ceremonies. At Cherbourg, a reception was held aboard the battleship New York for garrison and port officers. The ship was decked out in flags and illuminated. Officers of the destroyer Kane witnessed a review of the garrison at La Rochelle.

Blame Death on Hospital Strike.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LILLE, France, May 9.—The controversy over ever increasing demands by workmen for shorter hours was given a new twist here today when a patient in a local hospital died, allegedly because of refusal by employés to work except during the hours of their regular shift.

At St. Sauveur hospital a patient named Edouard Dieval underwent an operation which terminated at 1 a. m. Orderlies were asked to transfer him from the operating table to a bed in another part of the hospital. They refused to do so, according to the newspaper L'Intransigeant, declaring that their shift did not start until 3 a. m.

The patient then walked to his bed, caught cold and died. The hospital's chief surgeon declared the patient would have lived if he had not been forced to walk to his bed.

6 BOYS KILLED, 2 HURT WHEN BUS, TRUCK HIT

Chattahoochee, Fla., May 9.—(AP)—Six high school boys from Greensboro, Fla., were killed in a collision of their school bus and a motor truck near here last midnight.

All members of the Greensboro Club of Future Farmers of America the boys were returning from a convention trip to Marianna when the bus and the flat bottomed body of the truck sideswiped.

The dead were Francis Sheppard, 16; Edwin Walker, 17; Harry Van Landingham, 14; Hugh Eubanks, 17; Russell Rowan, 15, and his cousin, Bernard Rowan, 15.

Plane Noses Over After Test Flight; Three Bruised

Kansas City, Mo., May 9.—(AP)—A twenty-five passenger sleeper plane nosed over after landing from a test flight here today. It carried nine men, three of whom were bruised. QUIZ TWO P. O. ROBBERS; HUNT OTHERS IN GANG

U. S. Agents Hope to Solve Melrose Park Thefts.

Postal inspectors expressed hope last night that they might solve two recent burglaries of the Melrose Park postoffice, which netted the thieves $30,000, as a result of the capture early yesterday of two Chicago men as they were attempting to break into the Libertyville postoffice.

The inspectors, who questioned the prisoners in their Chicago offices, said they were working on the theory that the pair belonged to the gang that looted the Melrose Pork postoffice. Thus far, however, the prisoners have refused to talk beyond making general denials.

Both Have Records.

The prisoners are Thomas Kiely, 41 years old, 4716 South Racine avenue, an ex-convict, and Carl Burdysen, 32, of 5610 Kenmore avenue. Kiely, police said, served two prison sentences for robbery under the alias of Frank Carson. Burdysen has only a house of correction record. Inspectors described the two as the complete burglars because of the complete kit of burglars' tools, including a blow torch and an acetylene tank, which were found near them at the time of their arrest.

The capture of Kiely and Burdysen was a thriller, the work of Policemen Joseph Saam and Ralph Churchill of the Libertyville police department. Saam and Churchill, making their early morning rounds yesterday, went to the rear of the postoffice, which is on Church street, a block from the station. They noticed a ladder against the second floor window of the postoffice—and a man on the ladder. Another man stood at the bottom.

Captured as They Flee.

The policemen drew their guns and commanded the men to surrender. Instead, the men fled. Kiely, the policemen said, was on the ladder. The two men ran in opposite directions. Saam ran down Kiely without trouble, but Churchill had to fire several shots at Burdysen to stop him. Burdysen was armed. He put up a stiff fistic battle before being overwhelmed by the heavier fists of Policeman Churchill.

Saam and Churchill took their prisoners to the station, where they not only blandly denied attempting to break into the postoffice but swore they didn't know each other. Getting nowhere with their questioning, police returned to the scene, and not far from the rear of the postoffice found a kit containing tools ranging from small bits to huge crowbars.

Special Tools Found.

More interesting, however, were the special tools and instruments, the acetylene tank and blow torch, goggles to protect the eyes from the torch's glare, muffler clothes to prevent the torch sparks from being seen outside, candles, flints, and the ladder. This was a two piece affair, handmade, about 16 feet long when put together.

All these, authorities surmised, were to be used to cut into the large safe in the Libertyville postoffice where substantial amounts of money are usually kept. But Kiely and Burdysen said they knew nothing about this.

EX-FIREMAN KILLS SELF.

IDLE CONGRESS AWAITS RETURN OF ROOSEVELT

Stalled by Party Splits on Vital Issues.

gress virtually has been marking time since the first week of February. Sessions of two or three hours four days a week have become common in the house. Even less work is being done in the senate which, when it meets at all, rarely stays in session more than an hour or two. In the week of April 5 the senate met three days, in the next week two days, in the next week three days, in the next week two days, and last week two days.

The only important bills passed and signed by the President up to date are the measure extending the neutrality law and the Guffey coal control measure. The only regular appropriation bill so far enacted into law is that providing for the upkeep of the navy.

Believe Party Wrecked.

The ever widening split in Democratic ranks has inspired the Republicans with visions of a political comeback with the aid of the Democrats alienated by Mr. Roosevelt's policies. Some Republicans of note are prepared to jettison the name Republican and join the Democratic insurgents in formation of a new party on the foundations of the G. O. P., to be called the Constitutional party, to mention a name commonly suggested.

These Republicans believe that the President has wrecked his party with his scheme to pack the court and that the new political alignment will make its appearance in the congressional elections next year in which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Farley will attempt to defeat for renomination all the Democrats opposing the court bill. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Mich.], and other Republicans have signified an intention of campaigning for Senator Bennett Clark [D., Mo.], Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.], and other Democrats fighting the court bill who will come up for reelection next year.

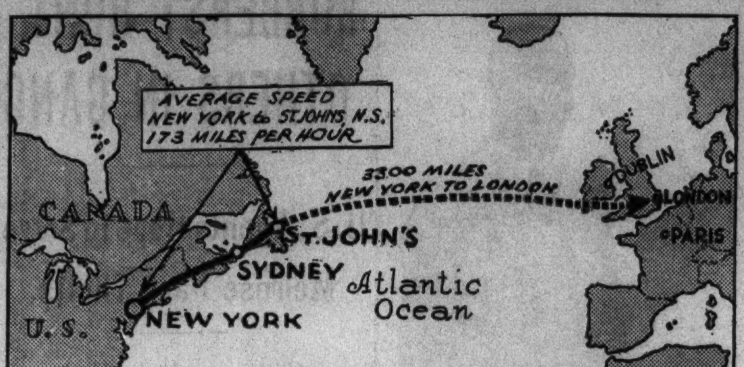
Seized Aboard a Liner, Admits Theft of $200,000

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—(AP)—Federal agents who arrested J. Turner Watson, 26, aboard the liner Santa Rosa at Quarainte tonight said he made a "full confession" to theft of more than $200,000 cash from his widowed aunt, Mrs. Martha Blous of Denver. Agents said Watson had "an appreciable amount of the money in his possession."

Woman Plunges 5 Stories; Foot Is Only Slightly Hurt

Toledo, O., May 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Evelyn Herzig, 22, of Toledo fell five stories from a hotel window today and escaped with only minor foot injuries. She fell from an eighth story window and landed on the gabled roof of the third story ballroom of the hotel. Police said she told them she turned her ankle and fell.

Merrill Speeds Toward London



Dick Merrill and his co-pilot, John S. Lambie, yesterday took off from New York at 3:36 p. m. (Chicago time) on ocean hop to London. At 8:15 p. m. they flew over Sydney, N. S., 800 miles by air from New York. They maintained the 173 miles per hour speed to St. John's, 400 miles farther, where they swung over ocean. Should they maintain that speed they would set a record for the flight to London. (Story starts on page 1.)

Galveston, Tex., May 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight was headed toward the mouth of the Brazos river, about 50 miles southwest of Galveston, for a final day of fishing.

Arrow indicates site of President's final day's fishing before he returns to the White House.

Tomorrow's fishing will be more delightful to Mr. Roosevelt than any of the ten preceding days, because it will be a day stolen from official cares. Originally he planned to spend but ten days in trolling for tarpon, but the elusiveness of the fish and perfect weather induced him to add another 24 hours to his cruise.

Seven of the nine days were spent off Port Aransas, where the President yesterday captured a 77 pound silver king, under the eyes of newspaper men.

Tuesday morning Mr. Roosevelt will pack his fishing tackle and begin an easy journey homeward to the White House. He will arrive in the capital Thursday morning, after an absence of 17 days.

RAIN AND LACK OF CLEWS BALK HUNT FOR CO-ED

Delaware, O., May 9.—[Special.]—Rain prevented volunteers from Ohio Wesleyan university's 1,000 students from extending today the search they began yesterday for blonde Ruth Baumgardner, 25 years old, their fellow student, who disappeared last Tuesday from her room. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baumgardner of Lakewood, O., worried through a sad Mother's day at the home of friends in Worthington, O., within easy distance if police should come upon a clew. No clew developed, however, and the downpour kept students and some Boy Scouts who were to join them from pressing their hunt.

MEDICAL CHIEFS DEMAND CLEANUP OF SANITARIUMS

Chicago medical leaders were agreed yesterday that the existence of dozens of sanitariums and nursing homes without adequate supervision is a menace to the community.

In one of these places, the Fairview sanitarium, 2828 Prairie avenue, operated by Mrs. Lillian Roberts without state and city licenses, a patient died last Wednesday under circumstances that led to the arrest of two attendants on charges of manslaughter.

They are Wilbur Dodds and Everett Holloman. They will be arraigned on the manslaughter charges in the Felony court today in connection with the death of Hyman Ehrlich, 40 years old, a mental patient.

Dr. H. Douglas Singer, head of the sanitarium licensing for the state department of public welfare, said he had refused a license to the Fairview place. Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, declared that "operation of such places without government supervision is a menace to health and an encouragement to crime."

H'i say, old chap—

BUT WE'VE GOT ALL-NIGHT "L" SERVICE ALL THE TIME!

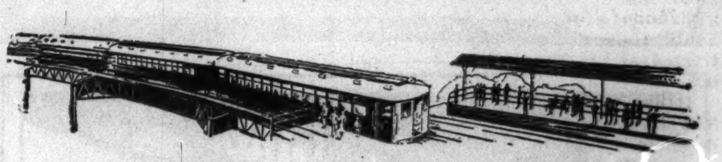
STARTLING IS THE ITEM IN London Transport World which reads:

CORONATION TRANSPORT

"On May 11-12, for the first time in the history of the Underground, there will be all-night service of trains."

So the Dukes and Duchesses on this historic occasion will have Underground service (subway to you) ACTUALLY RUN ALL NIGHT—for 2 nights. But in ordinary times the jolly old Underground shuts up shop when its day's chores are done.

Can you imagine the inconvenience if Chicago's Elevated Railroad System did that? While it is hardly profitable for the "L" to operate around the clock—24 hours a day—this everyday service seldom gets a second thought. We simply regard it as part of our regular job of giving complete Rapid Transit service regardless of hour or weather.



PROTECTED, LIGHTED "L" STATIONS AND TRAINS, ALL NIGHT LONG

What would the many night workers do without the "L" and particularly when other transportation is handicapped by weather? Think of the inconvenience to those employed in theatres, restaurants, buildings, and to postal, newspaper, factory employees and the many others who carry on late into the night if there were no "L" service to speed them to their homes in the wee small hours. And to those who like a bite after the theatre, or who occasionally stay out even later than that, All-Night "L" service is always the dependable and economical way to return home.

No one likes night driving with its added perils. But no matter what social or business errand keeps you out at night, no matter whether your work starts at midnight, the bridge party breaks up at one, you are detained at the hospital until two, or your incoming train reaches Chicago at half-past three in the morning, "L" trains are there and running—all on definite schedules—both within the city and to the north and west suburbs—as reliably as during the day. "L" service never quits! And on a you can ride as often as you please, day or night, seven days a week, and even allow members of your family or friends to use it. Always have one.

GET THERE! Ride the "L" — A RAILROAD!

Two Arrested; Hit-Run Driver Held.

One man was killed and his companion was injured seriously early yesterday when their automobile crashed into a Division street surface lines car while racing with another mortorist in North Clark street. The man killed was John Wilms, 22 years old, 1824 North Halsted street.

Wilms was a passenger in a car driven by George Frank, 25, 3041 North Racine avenue, who was seriously hurt. Passengers on the street car were shaken, but none was injured.

Two in Other Car Arrested.

Shortly after the accident, Lawrence Muskat, 26, of 1016 Center street, and William Koeppe, 21, of 1831 Clybourn avenue, were arrested as the occupants of the car with which Frank was racing. Muskat, police said, was the driver. He was charged with reckless driving.

An unidentified man, between 60 and 65 years of age, and fairly well dressed, was killed last night by an automobile in Chicago avenue at Armour street. The driver, Joe Bartosik, 24, 2017 Erie street, took him to St. Mary's hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Joseph Sandquist, 24, 1735 West 78th street, a freight handler, who fled after his automobile struck and seriously injured Louis Sittaro, 48, of 2122 South Fairchild avenue, early yesterday at Western avenue and Cullerton street, was later arrested and charged with reckless driving by the Marquette police. He was released on bond pending arraignment in Safety court today.

Victim's Condition Critical.

Sittaro was reported in a serious condition in the County hospital.

Sandquist was forced to stop after a mile chase by Raymond Zilian, 38, 7541 South Honoré street, another motorist, who witnessed the accident.

Anton Raklovitz, 65 years old, of 11803 Emerald avenue, was injured by a hit-and-run driver in front of 12051 South Halsted street yesterday and treated at the Roseland Community hospital.

Arthur Kaneip, 38 years old, of 3253 Irving Park boulevard, was ordered to appear in Safety court this morning on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Police said his car struck a light pole in front of a drug store at 3453 Milwaukee avenue yesterday. A wire fell from the pole, setting fire to the store's awning.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 382 persons were killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 299 were killed in Chicago. In the same period, 6,993 were injured in trafic accidents within the city.

25 Injured, 5 Seriously, in Rail Speedster Wreck

Kenosha, Wis., May 9.—[Special.]—Five track laborers were injured severely today near Truesdell, west of here, and a score of others were lacerated and bruised when a gasoline speedster on the Milwaukee railroad went through a closed switch, jumped the track, and dumped 60 men off two trailers along the right of way. Lewis Patzoldt, 44 years old, Chicago, incurred fractures of both ankles.

DIES ON STREET CAR.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1937 Trafic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

OFFICIALS STUDY SUPERROAD PLAN IN CHICAGO AREA

(Maps on Back Page.)

Officials of Chicago, the state, and of fifteen counties in the metropolitan area had under consideration yesterday the program proposed by the Chicago Regional Planning association for the construction in the next 23 years of 340 miles of superhighways radiating from Chicago. The cost is estimated roughly at $81,600,000.

The program, which was made public last week, calls for construction of ten radial and one belt superhighways with roadways of 200 feet where possible. Two slabs of 42 feet, each for one way trafic and separated by a parkway, would handle express travel. On each side of the express drives, also separated by parkways, would be one way truck pavements of 18 feet. Grade separations would be built at all railroad and major highway intersections.

The highways would connect at the outskirts of Chicago with modern urban facilities such as the system of highways recommended by the city council committee on trafic and public safety. The cost would be borne out of existing sources of road revenue.

FIND ILLINOIS IS DELIGHTFUL FOR MOTORIST

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Carbondale, Ill., May 9.—[Special.]—On highways free of metropolitan area congestion, a party of forty-five newspaper men and state officials on a "conservation week" tour is finding that Illinois is not a monotonous prairie for those motorists who choose scenic routes.

There are hills, forests, and rocky bluffs inviting Chicago automobile drivers downstate in Illinois' bid to boost its 1937 tourist revenue, estimated at 96 millions in 1936. The party, led by F. Lynden Smith, director of public works, found these attractions in driving on or near the Mississippi river from its confluence with the Illinois to its confluence with the Ohio and thence north through the foothills of the Ozarks to this coal mining town.

Covering these downstate highways was a pleasant contrast to Sunday driving in Chicagoland. There were miles and miles of good slab free of all trafic notwithstanding midsummer weather. The contrast explains why legislators from this part of Illinois sometimes fail to understand the congestion and accident problems of the metropolitan area.

It was a treat for city dwellers, hungry for summer. The heavy rains of the last few weeks have given woods and meadows a luxuriant green. David Abbott, state landscape architect, estimated that the growing season here is from three to four weeks ahead of Chicago.

On the trail down the Mississippi river, on Ill. 3, the party visited relics of Illinois early history. At the Cahokia mounds, near East St. Louis, the custodian told of these earth hills having been built by an extinct race, predecessors of Indians. Through Fort Chartres, eighteenth century French post being reconstructed, and through Kaskaskia, the territorial capital, the party reached Cairo, at the tip of the state.

Mint juleps were served at the bar below the Ohio river levee where Gen. U. S. Grant sipped while impatiently awaiting orders to advance against the confederacy. It's a town with a Dixie drawl that won credit for its fight against the floods of last winter.

North from Cairo, U. S. 51 rolled over tall hills and dipped into deep valleys in the apple and peach country of Union county.

In Giant City State park, twelve miles south of here, the newspaper men were led through sheer canyons of moss and lichen covered limestone. A mixed forest grows tall in this preserve, little known to Chicagoans.

Tap! Tap! Tap! went the carpenters' hammers on the Michigan avenue bridge yesterday and motorists breathed easier. The carpenters were hammering down the nails that had been sticking out of the flooring since Saturday, when patches of the rubber surfacing came off as a result of heavy trafic and a hot sun. New rubber will be placed on the bare spots today, according to Loran D. Gayton, city engineer. But trafic won't be stopped. Repairs will be made on one lane at a time.

TROTZKY 'JURY' HOLDS HE RATES ADDED DEFENSE

Finds Case Warants More Investigation.

New York, May 9.—(AP)—An unofficial committee of inquiry which went to Mexico last month to question Leon Trotzky about the charges directed against him during the Moscow treason trials reported tonight that the exiled Russian had established a case "amply waranting further investigation."

Dr. John Dewey.

The report was delivered by Prof. John Dewey, committee chairman, at a mass meeting in Mecca temple sponsored by the American Committee for the Defense of Trotzky.

In addition to questioning the former bolshevist leader orally, Dr. Dewey said he and his colleagues examined a mass of documentary evidence "purporting to refute the testimony given in the Moscow trials concerning his alleged conspirational contacts with the defendants."

Urge Further Probe.

"This record convinces us that Mr. Trotzky has established a case amply waranting further investigation," the report said. "Therefore we recommend that the work of this commission procede to its conclusion."

After delivering the report, Dr. Dewey said:

"The commission of inquiry, I repeat, is not trying to discover who is right and who is wrong in their political ideas and policies, the Trotzkyites' or their opponents. It is engaged in trying to get at the truth as to the specific charges upon which he was convicted in the Moscow trials.

"This work is one of evidence and objective fact, not of weighing theories against each other. Either Leon Trotzky is guilty of plotting wholesale assassination, systematic wreckage with destruction of life and property; of treason of the basest sort in conspiring with political and economic enemies of the U. S. S. R. in order to destroy socialism; or he is innocent.

"If he is guilty, no condemnation can be too severe. If he is innocent, there is no way in which the existing régime in soviet Russia can be acquitted of deliberate, systematic persecution and falsification."

Hits "Powerful Interests."

After reporting the resignation of Carleton Beals, writer, who quit the committee during the hearings with the statement that the inquiry was a "pink tea party," Dr. Dewey declared "powerful interests" were engaged in an attempt to disrupt and sabotage the committee's work.

"More efforts of this kind may be expected," he said.

Beals, he said, held himself "almost completely aloof" from the committee and was "constantly with people who were known to be against" its purposes.

Commenting on Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky's recent statement that the inquiry was a "flop," he said:

"I might inquire if the ambassador thought our hearing were a put up to bear upon members of the defense committee and of the commission of inquiry to induce them to resign?"

85 CREDITORS OF HUPKA SEEK S. E. C. INQUIRY

Eighty-five creditors of George C. Hupka, Cicero broker who is charged with embezzlement, met yesterday and agreed to turn over data on their accounts to the federal Securities and Exchange commission. They asked the commission to investigate Hupka's market connections and activities.

The meeting, called by Anthony C. Hudec, who gave Hupka $15,000 and had a $5,000 paper profit, was held in Hudec's office at 5323 Cermak road, Cicero.

CIVILIANS HEAR A TYPICAL CCC SUNDAY SERVICE

Members of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall last night made up what was described as the first congregation of civilians ever to sit in on a typical religious service conducted by United States army chaplains in Civilian Conservation corps camps. Nearly 500 CCC enrollees were conveyed by army trucks to Orchestra hall from Skokie Valley, Durand, and Willow Springs camps. They grouped around their spiritual leaders on the platform and sang familiar hymns and listened to addresses on the relation of religion to character building. Principal addresses were made by Capt. Roland Bach, chief chaplain of the Sixth corps area, and by Col. Alva J. Brested of Washington, D. C., chief chaplain of the United States army. Leo Powell, colored enrollee from Camp Durand, led the congregation in songs and also directed the singing of spirituals by 40 enrollees from his camp.

STRICKEN IN STABLE.

JAPAN BATTLES TO DESTROY BIG STRIKE EPIDEMIC

Leaders of Bus Workers Jailed in Tokio.

TOKIO, May 9.—(AP)—Japan's rising tide of labor unrest today moved the government to take action to check an epidemic of strikes.

After minor clashes, the climax of a long series of disputes affecting Tokio's transport system, the police arrested many leaders of the workers of the motor bus service operated by the municipality.

The government has been seriously harassed by labor difficulties since assuming office three months ago. The home office announced there had been 704 labor disputes, involving 63,000 workers, during that period.

Communications Strike Looms.

Leaders of employés of the communications ministry, which operates the empire's postal, telegraph and telephone services, called a meeting for Wednesday to formulate demands for 30 per cent wage increases. They are threatening a strike if their demands are rejected, and such a walkout would paralyze practically all communications, travel and transportation in the nation.

Rapidly rising living costs coupled with unusual prosperity in certain branches of industry—notably those making munitions—are factors in the labor unrest.

Employés of the Dai Nihon [Great Japan] Beer company, protesting that their product brings happiness and health to everybody but themselves, today joined the increasing company of sit-down, go-slow and just plain strikers.

In a big Tokio department store girl clerks staged a stay-in strike because a popular manager was transferred—because his employers considered him too popular with the girls.

Labor Conflicts Doubled.

The number of labor conflicts is nearly twice as large and the workers engaged nearly five times as many as for the corresponding period a year ago.

More than half the disputes involve wage increase demands. Metal workers are in the forefront of the battle for higher pay, this being a reflection of the booming prosperity of munitions industries. Textile and chemical workers follow closely. They are engaged in industries humming with a profitable export trade.

One of Japan's great newspapers, the Asahi Shimbun of Tokio and Osaka, has recoginized the rising cost of living by announcing a general 20 per cent wage increase effective on June 1.

Getting Tips on Fire Prevention

Anne Springborn, assistant fire commissioner of the Fire Prevention league of Chicago high schools and the city's only girl junior fire marshal, talks over fire hazards with Acting Chief Rodney Dabe of engine house 119.

Fire prevention and protection experts from all over the United States will open the forty-first annual convention of the National Fire Protection association today at the Congress hotel.

Among subjects the fire fighters will discuss during their five day sessions are the fire record committee's report analyzing fire losses, which for 1936 totaled $293,000,000 in the United States.

A demonstration of life saving and salvage work will be put on by the Chicago fire department; motion pictures will be shown of spectacular fires; Chicago's new fire boat, the Fred A. Busse, will be open for inspection, and the Underwriters' Laboratories will demonstrate its testing methods.

Anne Springborn, 7236 Clarence avenue, assistant fire commissioner of the Fire Prevention league of Chicago High schools, will speak tomorrow morning on the activities of the league.

IL DUCE PARADES MILITARY MIGHT OF NEW EMPIRE

Anniversary of African Conquest Celebrated.

ROME, May 9.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini today marked Italy's celebration of the first anniversary of the new Roman empire with a warning to any who may interfere with the "thousands of years old civilizing mission of Italy" in Africa.

To mark the day Il Duce gave the modern imperial city one of those tremendous spectacles with which he has sought to restore the glories of ancient Rome.

A year after his proclamation of the new empire, which set the seal of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, Mussolini reviewed 45,000 troops marching under the arch of Constantine and past the stand where King Victor Emmanuel stood with Il Duce. Nearly one million spectators were estimated to have lined the route.

Invokes a Triple Sign.

After the review, addressing 50,000 cheering Italians packed into the Venezia square, Il Duce shouted his warning, coupled with a bid for peace.

"The first anniversary of the new empire," he declared, "is celebrated under a triple sign — glory, force, peace:

"Peace for us and for all—for all, that is, if they want it and will listen to the warning that comes from the deep conscience and soul of this people; for us who want to carry to completion in Africa the thousands of years old civilizing mission of Italy.

"Ready if necessary to overcome all obstacles present and future, we who have this conscience and determination will fulfill this mission."

The parade started near the Colosseum, where an obelisk from Axum, sacred city of Ethiopia, had been erected, just as ancient Romans set up obelisks to symbolize their victories in Egypt.

Troops from Colonies Parade.

For weeks native troops have been pouring in from Eritrea, Somaliland, Ethiopia, and Libya to camp on and around the Aventine hill. In gorgeous uniforms 10,000 of them marched before the modern Romans.

The Ascaris, who helped conquer Ethiopia, half ran by in their khaki uniforms, with red and white sashes, red fezzes, their bare feet topped with leggings.

The Spahis of Libya rode on Arab horses, brilliant in red burnooses [cloaks and hoods]. The Meharist camel corps in blue and white burnooses swayed past on hundreds of camels brought from Libyan deserts. Several companies of Ethiopians were among the native troops.

In contrast to the vivid native troops were the mechanized forces in the Italian army that rumbled past, 246 pieces of heavy and light artillery, 200 tanks, and 300 trucks.

CITY WILL KEEP CARD FILE OF ALL VENEREAL CASES

New System to Be Put in Operation Today.

A new system of filing the names and conditions of all Chicago victims of syphilis and gonorrhea will be placed in operation today in the municipal social hygiene clinic at State and 11th streets.

Designed by Henry L. Porsche, chief clerk of the health department, the file shows clinic field workers at a glance which patients in the city are in an infectious state and whether they are under proper care. This eliminates hours of searching through charts and case histories.

Ready Information.

In the file are cards bearing the patient's name, address, phone number and other information, together with a row of squares, each representing a week in the year. As the patient comes in for treatment these squares are blocked out. If a patient's condition is a menace to others a red flag is attached to his card. Field workers will look for these flags each morning to determine which persons have failed to come in for treatment. The system includes private patients as well as those of the city clinic.

Social Hygiene Meeting Today.

Mayor Kelly's committee for the control of venereal disease has been invited to today's annual meeting of the Illinois Social Hygiene league at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. "Sex Delinquents: Is Our Medical and Social Treatment Consistent with Modern Thought?" will be the subject of a conference at 3 p. m., and "The Menace of Commercialized Vice and the Venereal Disease Campaign" will be the topic at a 6 p. m. dinner meeting.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, president of the league, will preside at the latter, and Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros in the afternoon.

FIRE DOES $1,000 DAMAGE.

Damage estimated at $1,000 was caused yesterday when fire broke out in the two story building of the Morton Lynn company, junk dealers, at 1014 South Fairfield avenue.

MEDIUMS OF MUTUAL INTEREST

By CALEB

I HAVE watched a poor but ardent young book collector handling with great tenderness a 1640 Shakespeare's Poems—worth hundreds of dollars—in the library of a man whose books are worth a million. These men were in utter rapport, yet they were separated by the gulf of much of what the world considers important: age, position, influence, money.

In the presence of the little volume of poetry, which Shakespeare's contemporaries handled, both book lovers were children of time and space participating in common communion at the feet of the great playwright.

Gardening is another common denominator to many people. We have seen an important meeting delayed because two gardening enthusiasts forgot great problems in common concern over girdled shrubs.

Law suits have been amicably settled because litigants have found in each other, not ogreish and vicious opponents as originally appraised, but admirers of early air mail stamps, with that interest in common.

There are many mediums of mutual interest among men—hunting, fishing, bowling, old silver, Chinoiserie, painting—to name a few.

There are common appreciations among women—children, for instance, or flowers, the study of a foreign language, perfume bottles, a club, a charity, books, or music.

An important one is the department store. Shopping is one of the greatest pleasures of thousands of enlightened women. The department store, besides providing required merchandise, provides a pleasant place to lunch, a thousand subjects for discussion, opportunity to indulge one of the most popular of hobbies—"looking," and a chance to keep abreast of the world of fashion and merchandise.

We are not unconscious of the role played by a great store in bringing people amicably together, and we further it all we can.

VOTERS TO PICK BETWEEN 2 RED SHADES TODAY

Minneapolis Mayor Race to Furnish Test.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—[Special.]—When the citizens of this town start to explain the factions contending in the municipal primary tomorrow they are pretty likely to use the terms communist and Trotzkyist. The words are not used irresponsibly. The communists are making a bid for control of the Farmer-Labor party, which they rightly regard as the most powerful instrument now available for their long hoped for revolution in America.

Kenneth Haycraft.

This situation wouldn't have arisen if Gov. Floyd Olson hadn't died last summer. Olson, whether they liked him or not, was regarded in these parts as the smartest politician of his generation. His successor, Gov. Elmer H. Benson, is conceded to rattle about in the Olson shoes, and it is in coöperation with Benson's state machine that the communists are trying to seize the Farmer-Labor reins.

Haycraft Their Candidate.

Their candidate for mayor of Minneapolis in the voting tomorrow is Kenneth E. Haycraft, Benson's appointee as state director of old age pensions. Haycraft was an all-American end at the University of Minnesota in 1928, more given to moral endeavors on the campus than are most all-American ends. His principal virtue as a candidate is that nobody has anything on him.

Even his opponents will concede that the revolutionary ideology has passed right over candidate Haycraft's head. He is promising to clean up gambling and vice in the city, which badly needs cleaning up, and a number of ministers, recalling his activities in the university Y. M. C. A are backing him for that reason.

Thomas E. Latimer, the present mayor, is the candidate with the Trotzkyist label. This is not strictly accurate, in the sense that Latimer has moved to the left of the communists. On the contrary, the local soviet which elected him regards him as an apostate. The Trotzky label in his case carries the connotation of a deserter from the cause.

He Let Police Be Police.

Latimer's cardinal sin was in permitting the city police to fire on some strike rioters. In Minneapolis, under Gov. Olson, a strike came to mean an automatic blockade of the employer's property. The police stood by and in some cases Olson used the state militia to enforce the blockade.

But in a number of instances the strikers got out of hand and beat up the police, who were present more or less in the character of innocent bystanders. Resentment in the department became so great that Latimer conceded that the police might protect themselves.

At a strike at an iron works in 1935 the police opened fire on a crowd of strikers. They missed the strikers, but killed two spectators. That was basis enough for the radicals of the town to charge that Latimer had sold out to the capitalists.

Minneapolis has a nonpartisan mayoralty primary. The two highest candidates then run in a second election. It has been the custom of the Farmer-Labor party to hold a city convention in advance of the first primary. Latimer was the candidate of such a convention two years ago.

Formed as a Soviet.

The convention is not organized on the familiar American political model with representation by wards or districts. Five representatives are apportioned to each Farmer-Labor ward club, three to each trade union, three to each allied organization. The form of organization is, in fact, almost an exact duplicate of that of a Russian local soviet.

When this year's convention met, delegates appeared from a number of organizations which no one had heard of a few months before—such organizations as the Bulgarian-Macedonian Workers, the Progressive Study club, and so on. It was a slick parliamentary trick to pack the convention, the Latimer forces charge, and the communists are given credit for it.

The forces in the convention were about evenly divided for Haycraft and Latimer, but the Haycraft forces caught the Latimer organization asleep at the switch and slipped through a resolution requiring a two-thirds vote to endorse a candidate for mayor.

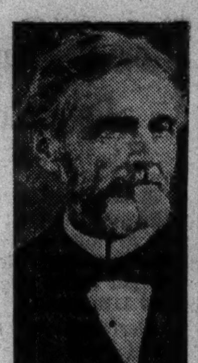
So Latimer Rebels.

Latimer pulled out and organized a rump convention, which indorsed him. Aside from the city hall payrollers, his towers of strength are the brothers Miles and Grant Dunne. The Dunnes run the powerful truck drivers union, which staged a series of bloody strikes several years ago.

If it appears strange that the Dunnes, whom business men of Minneapolis have frequently denounced as revolutionists, should choose the less radical of the two camps it must be remembered that they have succeeded in consolidating their position pretty well. Their union, originally an outlaw organization, is now recognized by the American Federation of Labor, and they find violence less and less necessary in enforcing union demands.

MEMORIAL IS PLANNED IN WASHINGTON CITY FOR JEFFERSON DAVIS

Washington, D. C., May 9.—(AP)—Congress is contemplating authorization of a memorial to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America—the marker to be erected in the capital of the union he once opposed.



Jefferson Davis.

A bill to permit the Daughters of the Confederacy to erect "a suitable marker" at the terminus of the Jefferson Davis national highway has passed the house and awaits senate action.

A statue of Davis, as a representative of Mississippi, his native state, stands in "statuary hall" in the capitol, but no formal memorial has been erected in Washington for him.

Under provisions of the bill introduced by Senator Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] the memorial marker is to be erected on a site to be selected by the director of the national park service.

After his graduation from West Point in 1828, Davis served in the Black Hawk Indian war for two years. When the Mexican war started he was in congress, but immediately resigned to command the 1st regiment of Mississippi riflemen.

Davis was secretary of war in the administration of President Pierce [1853-1857], and served two terms in the United States senate [1847-1851 and 1857-1861].

CORONATION PREVIEW BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Winston Churchill has joined the journalists and special writers who are making something of this week's coronation. Among the accomplishments of this distinguished British statesman are the talents of a first rate writing man, and as a person still important in the British government he knows something of the topic he discusses. He was a king's man when Edward VIII. was trying both to keep his throne and make his marriage, but he is nevertheless a king's man now and says of George VI. that he was disciplined in one of the finest schools of manhood in the world, the British navy, and has been nurtured in a high tradition. His personality is less colorful than that of his older brother and "he has ascended the throne in unhappy circumstances which no one perhaps regrets more keenly than himself."

Recently it was reported in the American press that the photographers have been put upon their honor to allow no untoward incident to get into the pictures. Mr. Churchill relates a few incidents of former occasions which would explain this precaution. No one ever knows what will happen at the ceremony until it is safely tucked away in its mothproof covering. For one thing, it is heavy work. Even when the peers are without armor their robes and uniform may weigh 20 pounds at the beginning and seem to weigh a hundred at the end of the ceremony.

The king, as Mr. Churchill relates in the current Collier's magazine, not only has to stand up under his robes but part of the time his dome has to sustain the weight of the crown. Everybody responsible for the beseeming coming off of the event has gooseflesh from start to finish for fear something much more Charley Chaplin than regal will happen and make a first class Silly Symphony before the royal pair have been dedicated to their job.

The thing most dreaded is that something will happen to the crown itself. As Mr. Churchill points out, archbishops are somewhat like judges of the American Supreme court. In the natural course of their clerical life they are likely to have reached a considerable age before they attain their highest dignity. If the archbishop of Canterbury should be ageing and frail he may find that lifting the crown to the royal head is almost beyond his physical strength. At the crowning of Edward VII. the archbishop of Canterbury was Dr. Frederick Temple, and he was a sick man. When another ancient, the then dean of Westminster, put the crown in his hands the weight was too much for him.

"With the greatest difficulty he raised it, but there was one ghastly moment when it looked as if it would slip from his fingers and crash to the floor of the abbey. It shook as he held it over the king's head, but at least he got it on. True, it was back to front, but everybody was too relieved to worry about that."

In earlier history, at the coronation of Henry II., Ralph d'Escures, the primate, was sick abed, but he refused to miss his big part and was carried into the abbey on a litter. It had been arranged that the bishop of Salisbury should do the crowning, but the archbishop snatched at the crown as it was lifted from the high altar and it slipped from his grasp. Salisbury, like a good outfielder, made a dive for it and caught it before it hit, a perfect "out" which the bleachers nowadays would have applauded.

At the coronation of George III. a large diamond fell out of the crown after it had been put on George's head and rolled about the floor. Somebody mislaid the sword of state. It could not be found when it was needed and the king's patience gave out. Mr. Churchill says that the superstitious were not unprepared for the subsequent loss of George's American colonies. He got off on the wrong foot at the coronation.

Mr. Churchill is too good a journalist to resist one story of older days which might have too much historical analogy to please the more discreet of his British readers. That is the story of the marriage of George IV. when prince of Wales to the twice wedded Maria Fitzherbert, a Catholic whose marriage to a British heir to the throne was prohibited by law and if persisted in would bar him from the succession. Nevertheless, Mrs. Fitzherbert would have George only at the altar and he was so infatuated that, having won her sympathies by a pretext of suicide in which he gave himself a few scratches, he slipped a ring upon her finger and later married her secretly. The serpent in their Eden was George's profligate expenses and his craving for clothes. His apparel stood him in those days about 50,000 dollars a year and that meant a heap more money then than it does now.

Finally no one would lend him a shilling and in one of his father's recurrent periods of sanity the prince laid the matter of his debts and duds before his royal parent, who said he would put him in pocket again if he would marry Caroline of Brunswick. The prince neatly got rid of Mrs. Fitzherbert and took Caroline, whom he mistreated for the rest of her life. Her persecution included a bill in parliament divorcing her on the charge, real or pretended, of adultery. The indignant lady replied that the only adultery she had committed was with the husband of Mrs. Fitzherbert.

Mr. Churchill may not have been thinking of the present romance in France when, with reference to Maria Fitzherbert, he said: "Unfortunately, the lady was virtuous as well as beautiful." That, "unfortunately," coming even from Mr. Churchill, might seem to establish the required public morality as insisted upon by state if not by church. The immorality of the arrangements now being completed in a château in France is the immorality of a lady who is going to marry a member of the British royal family when she shouldn't. The marriage appears to be the unforgivable sin in the eyes of prime minister and prelate, which from an average point of view may be regarded as just a trifle odd.

EVOLUTION IN THE FLEET.

The interest which European admiralties are showing in so-called suicide flotillas, composed of speedboats just large enough to carry two torpedoes, is a fresh reminder that warships are as much subject to evolution as animals.

This naval evolution differs from that of biology, however. Since its mutations are produced by design, not chance, new species appear within a space of a few years instead of geological ages. Then, too, warships are not constantly subject to the struggle for survival of the fittest. Periods of peace, with the substitution of theory for practice, tend toward the production and temporary survival of more sports than are possible under the continuous struggle of biology.

The evolution of the torpedo boat as a really dangerous weapon began with the invention of the self-propelled torpedo. It was launched at first from tiny, fast craft of less than 100 tons. To protect larger craft against these marine hornets the torpedo boat destroyer, a larger, faster craft which had the double function of launching torpedoes and fighting off smaller torpedo boats, was developed. Early destroyers displaced 250 to 300 tons.

The destroyers kept on growing. They became bigger, faster, sturdier, carried heavier guns. But their effectiveness in torpedo attacks declined. The 1,000 and 1,200 ton destroyers of the world war did less execution with torpedoes than did craft a quarter of that size in the Sino-Japanese and Russo-Japanese wars of previous decades. With the development of the submarine their defensive action against that craft, which they carried on admirably, outweighed their offensive functions.

Since the war destroyers have continued to grow. They displace 1,500 tons now and flotilla leaders run up to 2,200 tons, with armament superior to the light cruisers of a few decades ago. Their very size, making them better targets and decreasing their maneuverability, has destroyed their usefulness for torpedo attacks, some naval critics hold.

The world war saw the birth of the motor torpedo boat, smaller even than its grandfathers of the '80s and '90s, fast and hard to hit. The Italians used them effectively in the Adriatic against the Austrians, and the British used coastal motorboats in the North sea and at the end of the war against the bolshevik fleet.

Whereas these world war craft traveled at 30 miles an hour, the Italians now have boats capable of 50 or 60 miles an hour. Gar Wood and the Harmsworth races appear to have made a more significant contribution to the admiralties than Col. Bradley and the Kentucky Derby have to the cavalry remount service.

Mussolini is said to have 300 of these swift craft, and their existence was presumably one of the reasons why Britain pulled in its horns in the Mediterranean last year. The British and Germans, among others, are building similar boats. The name suicide flotillas is something of a misnomer. While the admirals expect to lose a substantial proportion of such a force launched against a battleship the crews probably will run no greater risk than infantry attacking machine gun posts.

Defense, in military and naval affairs, keeps step with offense. As an answer to the 50 foot torpedo speedboats, whose only defensive armament is machine guns, we may soon expect to see 75 and 100 footers, carrying 1 pounders or 3 inch guns.

MICHIGAN BECKONS.

The Hudson River Night line has announced plans for two new twin screw, Gielow built, fireproof motorships for service between New York and Albany. These ferries will be capable of attaining a speed of 23 miles an hour, so that eight hour service during both summer and winter will be possible for the 150 mile trip. The main deck of each ship, designed especially to accommodate over one hundred automobiles and motor trucks, will have wide side ports to facilitate loading and unloading.

This project closely resembles THE TRIBUNE'S plan for motorferries from Chicago to St. Joseph-Benton Harbor, except that in the case of the Hudson river undertaking the water distance is a few miles greater than the highway mileage. By contrast the cross-lake route from Chicago to Michigan is but 60 miles, as compared with the circuitous 100 mile trip around the end of the lake. In both instances broad stretches of water are to be utilized to enable the commercial truck or the motorist to avoid the inevitable congestion of the metropolitan area.

The lower peninsula of Michigan has much to offer the tourist, vacationist, and the week-end pleasure seeker, to say nothing of commercial opportunities and fruit and garden truck. As contrasted with Illinois, it is distinctly not a prairie state and readily grows many things that are not extensively cultivated in Chicago's immediate hinterland. To be magically transported to this country of peaches and grapes without the hard grind through industrial districts would be tempting. To enable the Michigan farmer to bring his luscious products to Chicago without the jolting of overland travel would decidedly improve their delivered condition. We would have a new neighboring state and its rural highways would be brought to our door by a cross-lake carferry.

Of the two projects, New York to Albany versus Chicago to St. Joseph-Benton Harbor, the latter offers far greater possibilities, yet an eastern capital group is willing to back the former. Does the situation not suggest that our Chicago steamship interests are timidly overlooking an opportunity that is a "natural"?

PUT AWAY IN WOOL.

Great-Uncle Simeon was a stickler for family pride. "Never do nothing to disgrace the name of Square," said he. So he did nothing. He existed on his war pension and spent most of his time searching for records of the clan. Conspicuous on a genealogical chart he designed was the family coat of arms with the motto: "Death before Change." Once, goaded by a doubter's light remark that this indicated stubbornness instead of innate loyalty, Uncle Sim snapped: "The real meanin' of that motter is that great-grandpappy died in his winter underwear." THE HUMBLE TUMBLE BUG.

As far as I know, the tumble bug is altogether extinct today. Certainly I have not seen any of his race for ages. The peculiar material from which he fashioned his tiny globes has grown scarce in our land, and the dirt roads along which he rolled them until properly surfaced with dust have almost disappeared. The old story of what the automobile and paved highway have done to our ancient institutions!

The tumble bug, as I knew him, was actually an insect Atlas and more, for he not only supported his world but created it out of worse than chaos and shaped it into a perfect sphere which he trundled laboriously along the rural road for rods that were countless miles to him. The road was, indeed, a sort of milky way of dust that reached out of space into space, and swarmed with a myriad of miniature worlds of a two-dimensional universe.

It was not as an entomologist, nor even as a conscious student of nature, that I grew familiar with the tumble bug of old, but as a fellow creature who loitered aimlessly along country lanes, dimly aware but keenly observant of every phase of life about me. A fellow creature, yet a youthful demigod who could, and sometimes would, willfully destroy, but could not restore.

The tepid dust of midsummer, Nature's own talcum powder, soothed my bare feet. The sunshine showered me with every sort of ray, from ultra violet to infra red, and all the vitamines that in those days were, permeated my being. Suntanned, dirty and infinitely happy I strolled along the road that lay between pastures and through deep, dark woods, a companion to every creature that crept or crawled. Ants, snails, crickets, tortoises, beetles of every kind. And tumble bugs. A sluggard was I, by whom the ways of each were more or less wisely considered. But the ways of the tumble bug were the most interesting and instructive of all. Eolus.

NOT ON THE LEVEL.

Perhaps it's a classic, but if you and I don't rate it one we'll let the people have it. Poor old Soaky John came to town the other night and made the rounds of the taverns. While he was going about the boys took his wagon into the garage and reversed the wheels, so that the high ones from the back axle were in front. After his session with J. Barleycorn was over Soaky tried every road in the countryside, but none led home because, he said, "I don't live up no damn hill." B. A. T. A.

THE PRICE OF SAFETY.

THOSE who have read "Candide" will recall that François Marie Arouet [Voltaire] employed his trenchant satire in portraying the terrible ravages of syphilis. The tale sets forth the accidental meeting in Holland of Candide with his former tutor, Pangloss, who had fallen a victim to the disease. Then follows a vivid description of an untreated case that fills one with horror. Little wonder, then, that after observing the plight of his friend, Candide exclaimed: "Is it not the devil who was the founder of it?" Filled with compassion, he arranged to have his old teacher receive medical assistance, and "Pangloss, on the cure, lost only an eye and an ear."

Exaggerated, you remark; not so in the days when no drug in the "shop" was able to halt the onward march of the affliction.

But great progress has been made since the middle of the eighteenth century in the medical attack upon the "great pox." First came the discovery of the cause [the treponema], and then the cure [salvarsan and its modifications].

Never before in the history of a single malady, not epidemic in character, has so much public interest been aroused. There is now a nation-wide demand that it be wiped out. The curtain of prudery has been torn from one of the most powerful enemies of health through the dissemination of information as to cause and cure. It is a humanitarian movement—one that will have far-reaching social and economic results.

The laity now understand that syphilis is preventable and that it is far more amenable to cure than cancer or tuberculosis. In the early stages it is completely controlable. Furthermore, a simple blood test will disclose, in most instances, the presence or absence of the infection and a positive reaction will guide the physician in his plan of treatment. We know, too, that even though a prospective mother is diseased, proper medication will preserve her health and free her offspring from syphilitic taint.

One characteristic of the affliction, however, has not been stressed with sufficient emphasis, namely, that it is not a quick killer; neither is its course marked by much if any pain. Only in the late stages, when the nervous system has been attacked, will gastric cramps or the stabbing pains of tabes dorsalis [locomotor ataxia] become manifest. Patients with the disorder, therefore, may not seek aid until some obvious sign marks the time when but little can be done. As a rule, further advance can be stopped, but tissues that have been destroyed cannot be replaced.

Take the case of the one who has a syphilitic sore or rash and who visits a physician. He is given salvarsan and bismuth. The lesions disappear, whereupon he feels perfectly well. Despite the warnings of his medical adviser that he must continue the injections until he is cured, he cannot be persuaded that he is harboring an infection which sooner or later will blaze forth with menacing results.

True enough, he may go on for several years without significant physical warnings and be able to work. But there may come a day when the heart will begin to fail; when the wall of the aorta—loaded with scars—is less elastic. Then begins a siege of invalidism. He is compelled to lay off for longer and longer periods, to take extended leaves of absence. Even though treatment is resumed, blood vessels cannot be rebuilt by any means known to medical science. Later the central nervous system may show indications of degeneration and the physical organism collapses.

It is essential, not to industry alone, that these patients be helped; rather is it the larger demand of society that they shall be saved for themselves and their families. The one who conscientiously follows a clear cut medical regimen has nothing to fear. Therein lies the hope of annihilating the plague. If infected persons are made nonspreaders, as they can be through skilled care, the springs of the disease will be dried up.

HIRSCHSPRUNG'S DISEASE.

Mrs. V. writes:

1. What treatment is suggested for Hirschsprung's disease [inability to control bowel action]?

2. Are nervousness, overweight, and overeating factors?

3. Will a child of 11 outgrow this trouble in a measure, or should surgery be done immediately where the trouble has existed for some time and is getting worse?

4. Would extreme constipation and frequent recourse to enemas tend to bring on this condition in an adolescent child?

REPLY.

1. Hirschsprung's disease is characterized by enormous dilatation of the colon. The abdomen is greatly enlarged and may be observed soon after birth. Partial obstruction of the bowel near the rectum is an important causative factor. Medical treatment is usually unsatisfactory, although a fair degree of health may be secured if treatment is begun early and continued persistently. Favorable results have been reported following operative treatment.

2. Probably results.

3. Surgery is advised if the condition is increasing in severity. Choose your medical advisers with care.

4. The common causes are congenital defects, bowel obstruction of various types, and infective processes.

COUGHING AT NIGHT.

F. G. writes: A few months ago my husband started to have coughing spells at night. He smokes quite a bit and decided to stop this habit but the attacks persist.

REPLY.

He should be examined to rule out heart and respiratory infection. The cough may be allergic, which means that something about the bed or bedroom may be irritating the mucous membrane of the respiratory passages such as feathers, wool, silk, etc.

LIVER INJECTIONS.

Miss M. writes: A woman, over 50, took liver injections for pernicious anemia for four years. Her blood is now normal. Will the trouble come back if she discontinues the injections?

REPLY.

Probably. There is no cure for true pernicious anemia and liver treatment must be continued throughout life.

"GROWING PAINS."

M. S. writes: Is there really such a thing as growing pains?

REPLY.

From the Tribune's Columns

20 Years Ago Today

MAY 10, 1917.

NEW YORK.—An armed American Line steamship fired six shots at a German submarine off the coast of Ireland. The undersea boat immediately submerged. It was not known if it was hit.

LONDON.—The German submarine booty will be not less than 1,100,000 tons for April, Dr. Pfleger, naval reporter of the budget committee, told the German reichstag. Germans expect their navy to bring a speedy and victorious peace.

PETROGRAD.—Disciplinary measures against troops fraternizing with the enemy at the front occupies the attention of authorities. Responsible Russians ridicule attempts in London quarters to minimize the crisis Russia is passing through.

LONDON.—George Lambert, former civil lord of the admiralty, told the house of commons there would be a panic were the British public to awaken to the gravity of the submarine situation.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American government assumed the immediate financial burden of Belgian relief. Arrangements were made to lend to the French and Belgian governments jointly 75 million dollars for food to go to Belgium and northern France.

CHICAGO.—It was proposed at the Woman's club that a guard of Evanston society and club women patrol the north shore to protect soldiers at Fort Sheridan from the wiles of women of the underworld.

TITLE CONVEYANCE.

Chicago, May 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If the owner of a piece of property transferred the title to same by deed to her children many years ago, holding, however, a lifetime title to the property, or perhaps called rights to the property, [1] can she sell the property to another person without signatures of the children or [2] with three-fourths of the signatures?

3. Having no means of support except the property, [4] could the one refusing to sign be compelled to do so by law so his mother would have an income or means of livelihood? All tax receipts on the real estate and dwelling were paid by the mother, for which she holds receipts dating back to years before the deed was executed.

5. Would she have taxpayer's title to the property in question and [6] thereby cancel the deed since the children did not pay either the taxes or the repairs? M. H.

1. She could not convey a clear title without the signatures of the children.

2. All of the signatures would be necessary.

3. Sections 1 and 2 of chapter 107 of the Illinois revised statutes provide that poor persons who are unable to earn a livelihood in consequence of bodily infirmity or other unavoidable cause shall be supported by the following relatives in the order named, if of sufficient ability: [1] Children, [2] parents, [3] brothers and sisters, [4] grandchildren, [5] grandparents, but married women are not required to contribute unless they have separate property. Application should be made to the bureau of public welfare in the County building.

4. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

5. See 6.

6. No, in general one of several co-owners is not permitted to assert a tax title against the others.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESCROW FUNDS.

Chicago, May 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Would you kindly advise me what procedure to take in order to secure a release of funds deposited in escrow in a bank now closed?

2. Is not the president or other officer personally responsible for these funds? A. C.

1. If by funds you mean non-cash assets which were to be held in kind and redelivered on demand, and if the assets are still in the possession of the receiver, you would clearly be in a position to reclaim them.

If on the other hand you mean that money was paid into the bank on the bank's promising to repay an equivalent sum at a later date, then you would take the same dividend as other creditors.

2. Not on the bare facts stated.

ALCOHOL AND GASOLINE.

Evanston, Ill., May 5.—Why don't you put the shoe on the foot where it belongs and tell the public that liquor is playing the major part in the wholesale trafic murders in this country? Every paper which one picks up carries an account of one to a dozen killed by "drinking" drivers, not "drunken" ones.

Doesn't the fact that the latest reports show that the dry cities are the ones having the fewest accidents mean anything to the press? Evanston is certainly a splendid example, with only six persons killed in 1936 in auto accidents. What a contrast to Chicago, with its 8,000 taverns and as many bootleg joints, aside from the "respectable" drug stores and restaurants which dispense the habit forming drug!

In Evanston children are growing up in decent surroundings, with the opportunity for recreation, unmolested by drunken morons, and women can walk down the streets in the evenings free and undisturbed. Why not give all children a break? MRS. L. W. PLATT.

CONTRAST IN CONDUCTORS.

Chicago, May 2.—Conductor No. 12800 on the Crawford avenue line deserves credit for the courteous attention he gives his passengers and especially the blind. On April 28, 1937, this conductor assisted a young blind man off his car and across the street to get a westbound Division street car.

Passengers as they left the car complimented him on his courteous treatment to passengers. I am lame. Before we had the safety isles I was getting off a North avenue car and the conductor shouted, "Hurry up, we can't wait all day for you." I took his number and was going to report him for this rude treatment. Then I thought he might lose his job.

This is why I am writing this letter. I hope the conductor who was rude will read it and learn that being kind and courteous to passengers pays.

MRS. JOHN S. MANN.

MANY SCIENTISTS THINK SO.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Canada, May 3.—Is it merely coincidence that Chinese resemble North American Indians in some respects? For instance, their skin, their cheekbones, their eyes, their speech? Moreover, both like gambling and both move quietly. Is it, perhaps, that centuries ago they were one Asiatic people? STERLING BRANNEN.

DRIVERS' LICENSES.

Rochester, Minn., May 5.—THE TRIBUNE deserves high praise for its persistent pursuit of safety in driving. That Illinois has no driving license law is, of course, strange to a foreigner from another state.

It is necessary for the safety and welfare of honest folk that a means be provided for keeping track of the irresponsible and criminal who infest the highways. Driving licenses provide the simplest way and the fees cover the expense, which is little.

But, as we found in New York, licenses are not enough. Since we have had the new law requiring that all offenses be recorded on the back of the license in addition to the severe penalties for infractions, and that three offenses carry cancellation of the license, infractions and accidents have dropped greatly.

Another thing which helps is the practice of the courts of requiring offenders to be taken by the police to the morgue to view the victims of careless driving. It is a most effective deterrent. The papers feature it in pictures and no one wants to be the next to go through that gruesome experience and see himself pictured in the morgue in front of a killed victim of his own or another's carelessness. We have had plenty of time to learn that too many are case-hardened and can only be restrained by severe methods. It is better to hurt the feelings of the morons than to let them kill the innocent. ROBERT J. CALDWELL.

TOO MUCH VACATION.

Chicago, May 6.—Five more weeks and our youngsters will be turned out of the public schools for a three months' vacation. Why must my children be cheated of a month's education each year?

My taxes are higher than usual. My children's education is more important to me than the widening of streets or the most fashionable and new buildings and bridges.

Taxpayers, I appeal to you. Let's get up on our high horses and fight for ten months of school and our children's rights. They say the depression is over. Prove it by giving us a full school term.

MOTHER OF FOUR.

MRS. SIMPSON'S STATUS.

Chicago, May 6.—Not only is THE TRIBUNE getting me all mixed up on my spelling, but on the American status as well. It seems Mrs. Simpson is an American commoner. Now what may that be, if you've no objection to letting me in on the secret?

TELLS CATHOLICS HITLERITES AIM TO RUIN CHURCH

Bishop Defends Priests, Members of Orders.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 9.—A letter from the bishop of Berlin, Count Conrad von Preysing-Lichtenegg-Moos, was read in all Roman Catholic churches of Berlin today.

"There is a very strong and loud camp which wants to destroy the Catholic church, which it hates like death," the message warned congregations.

The bishop charged in the letter that a violent campaign is being waged in the German press in connection with the trial of priests and members of religious orders accused of immorality, the purpose being to create an impression the church has tolerated crimes.

Church Punishes Guilty.

"We condemn sexual crimes and in all cases where guilt is established after investigation, the church adds its own punishment to that of the state," the bishop said in the letter.

"The German press asserts that a thousand priests are involved in the current trials. This is misleading. Only a part of those on trial are priests. We have 25,000 priests in Germany. I do not believe there are more than twenty-five on trial, or one priest in every thousand. Ninety thousand persons belong to religious orders. If 900 of them were on trial it would mean one in a hundred. And until they are tried, their guilt is not established. Crimes must be punished, but they must not be used to besmirch the honor of thousands of others loyally serving their faith."

Press Plays Up Trial.

The bishop charged that the campaign carrying the insinuation that the church tolerates crime was begun after publication of a recent papal encyclical. The purpose, according to the bishop was to "reduce the influence of the pope's words and represent Christian education of youth as undesirable."

The German press is playing up the trial in Bonn of fifteen members of the Alexis community, eleven of whom were sentenced to terms ranging from five months to three years in prison. The Catholic church itself is preparing to dissolve the Alexis community.

EX-PROHIBITION AGENT WOUNDED; HUNT ASSAILANT

The Hyde Park police last night were searching for the man who shot and wounded Joseph Guinan, 33 years old, former prohibition agent, earlier in the day. The shooting took place in the areaway next to his first floor apartment in the Belvidere hotel, 4655 Lake Park avenue.

Guinan told the police that he was reading when he discovered a man outside the window. He went out to investigate. He said that when he asked the man to come into the hotel for questioning his assailant drew a revolver and shot him.

MOUNTAIN LION BECOMES A PAL OF HIS OWNER

St. Joseph, Mich., May 9.—[Special.]—A full grown, 200 pound mountain lion likes to lick the bald head of his keeper, and go with him for long walks through the woods. Impossible?

Eleven miles north of here on U. S. 12 at the Navajo Trading post, a tourist camp in Bridgman, Benjamin Magavern has been startling the natives and tourists with his private zoo of 22 animals. It includes two lions, Jerry and Lady, which Magavern caught seven years ago in New Mexico when they were cubs.

Today Jerry is perfectly trained and performs with delight for his master, even to licking his hairless pate. Magavern carries only a short stick, no gun, chair, or fancy props, in putting Jerry through his paces. When Magavern and his wife take Jerry for a walk back into the forest and the lake a mile away, Jerry wears a lether collar at the end of a 30 foot link chain, almost like any city bred dog.

15 HURT WHEN EXPRESS RAMS FREIGHT TRAIN

Elizabethtown, Pa., May 9.—(AP)—The Mercantile Express of the Pennsylvania railroad, bound from St. Louis to New York, crashed into the rear of a halted freight train early today, injuring 15 passengers and derailing five empty freight cars.

The express returned to Harrisburg, where the injured were treated by physicians. All were able to continue to New York. Other through trains were re-routed after short delays.

Railroad officials could not give a cause for the accident.

Seven Parishes Take Part in Seminary Dedication

Formal dedication services were held yesterday at the newly completed $100,000 Sacred Heart seminary of the Fathers of St. Charles Borromeo, 39th and Division streets, Melrose Park. Seven Italian Catholic parishes from Chicago participated in the ceremonies with members of the Melrose Park parish of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. The Rev. Bishop William D. O'Brien acted as master of ceremonies.

BASQUE WOMEN SWING PICKS TO FORTIFY BILBAO

BILBAO, Spain, May 9.—(AP)—Basque women joined their menfolk today in digging new trenches to strengthen the "iron ring" on which the defenders of Bilbao are preparing to fight to the finish to hold their capital.

More than a thousand noncombatants labored feverishly on Bilbao's fortifications, and women were plentifully scattered among those who wielded shovels, picks and other implements for long hours.

Meanwhile Basque fighting men launched a savage counterattack against the rebel positions on Mount Solluve, northeast of the city, the scene of desperate fighting yesterday.

The Basques reported that, after retreating along a six mile front yesterday and allowing the rebels to reach the summit of the mount, the fourth Asturian brigade today regained most of the lost ground.

Respond to Red Manifesto.

The noncombatant movement to the trenches was partly in response to a communist party manifesto calling for mobilization of the entire population of Bilbao "without distinction of age or sex" to back up the sorely pressed soldiers at the front. Many of the volunteers marched out in formation carrying tools over their shoulders as if they were rifles.

Under the protecting guns of the French navy 3,000 more women, children, and aged men from Bilbao were crossing the Bay of Biscay today to havens in France.

The French cruiser Emile Bertin kept the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera from halting the refugee convoy, consisting of three French merchantmen bound from Bordeaux. It intervened between the rebel warship and the refugee ships outside Bilbao, just as the British battleship Royal Oak had done two days before in the case of two Spanish refugee ships.

When the rebel cruiser steamed close to the three ships the 5,886 ton French cruiser bluntly told the Cervera's commander to withdraw. The Bertin then moved close alongside the rebel ship and remained there until the freighters were well on their way to France.

Rebels Advance a Mile.

VITORIO, Spain, May 9.—(AP)—Rebels pushed their lines forward a mile today in the advance on Bilbao, Basque capital, from the Guernica-Amorebieta sector, a communique issued at this northern headquarters of Generalissimo Francisco Franco said.

The onsweeping troops of Gen. Emilio Mola also occupied all of Cape Machichaco, just west of Bermeo, Biscayan port, 16 miles northeast of Bilbao, capturing a coast defense battery of six inch guns, official reports said. mile advance between Guernica, the rebel-held Basque sacred city, and Amorebieta failed.

The besieging rebel army today had its outposts at several points less than ten miles from Bilbao. Rebel officers said their forces had only one more mountain range, that of Biscargi, to capture before marching into Bilbao itself.

At Gen. Mola's headquarters here it was announced yesterday's drive had smashed through the Basque's ring of trenches and fortifications in the Mount Solluve sector, northeast of Bilbao. In that action the Basque losses were estimated at 400 dead and 1,600 wounded or captured.

Gain on Toledo Front.

The Biscargi range, with crests lower than those of Mount Solluve, runs southwestward between Munguia and Guernica almost to Bilbao. Along its slopes run miles of trenches like those the rebels captured on Mount Solluve.

A rebel gain of nearly six miles on the Toledo front southwest of Madrid, was reported in dispatches from that sector. A government attack led by a squadron of tanks was turned into a striking rebel success, said the dispatches. The tank advance was met by a shower of hand grenades and gasoline fire bombs, which halted the tanks and blocked the way of the government infantry.

A rebel charge swept the enemy back to his former rearguard positions at the village of Argera. Many prisoners and much war material were taken.

Valencia Takes Grip on Catalonia.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 9.—(AP)—The Valencia government today extended its control over the hitherto autonomous state of Catalonia, seeking to prevent any recurrence of last week's anarchist uprising which threatened collapse of that unit of government-held Spain.

Having already assumed control of Catalonia's military and police forces, Valencia today placed control of that state's frontiers, ports, and roads directly under its own ministry of the interior.

Announcing the reëstablishment of order in Catalonia, the Valencia cabinet voted to carry out a rigorous investigation of the anarchist revolt and stern punishment of those responsible. It also decided on stern measures against elements that may attempt to obstruct its acts in Catalonia.

Rebels Use Water as Weapon.

HUESCA, Spain, May 9.—(AP)—An Aragon river and rebel engineering skill all were fighting for Gen. Francisco Franco today on this northern section of the Aragon front.

The rebels fought with water when one of their engineers erected a sandbag dam at one end of the Catalan horseshoe front about this insurgent held city, damming waters of a Flumen river tributary. The water backed up and flooded Catalan trenches and dugouts. Rebels in a surprise attack then captured a long line of trenches after the Catalans tried vainly to halt the flow of water.

ESCAPES IN SPAIN

DR. ABRAHAM ETTLESON.

Dr. Abraham Ettleson, a Chicago brain surgeon who went to Spain as the head of an ambulance unit, found action probably sooner than he expected, according to cable advices yesterday. He arrived in Barcelona on May 2, and twenty-fours later was caught in the midst of an anarchist uprising. Dr. Ettleson and his party fled safely to Valencia, arriving there Saturday. He reported that 500 were killed and 1,500 wounded in the Barcelona rebellion.

Dr. Ettelson's home is at 3105 Augusta boulevard, where his brother and sister live. He is 42 years old.

Nurse's Screams Drive Peeping Tom from Hospital

Miss Martha Wilcox, a nurse, was reading in a fourth floor room at St. Luke's hospital yesterday when she saw a Peeping Tom on the fire escape. Her screams drove the intruder away. Police found his footprints beneath the fire escape.

ARMY COSTS YOU AND YOU AND YOU $3 A YEAR

Washington, D. C., May 9.—(AP)—A chart of world powers' army expenditures compiled by American military authorities indicated today that Americans pay substantially less per capita for national defense than citizens of any other major nation.

Every man, woman, and child in the United States, the chart showed, would have to contribute $3 annually to pay, clothe, and feed the army and provide it with weapons of war if individual assessments were made.

Comparative 1937 army costs, not including naval outlays and establishments, are:

Country—	Cost [000 omitted].	Regulars [000 omit'd].	Reserves [000 omit'd].
United states...	$ 385,633	175	303
Britain	887,998	298	412
France	732,947	748	5,590
Italy	414,215	1,331	6,516
Russia	4,020,440	1,454	17,945
Japan	479,357	282	2,000

Japan has 5,000,000 trained but unorganized reserves.

The per capita cost of the armies of other world powers is: Great Britain, $19.30; France, $17.40; Italy, $9.30; Russia, $23.34, and Japan, $4.80. Germany's per capita cost is unknown, but estimated to rank at least with France.

Urges Daughter to Visit Neighbors; Hangs Himself

Otto Newmann, 57 years old, a farmer at Dundee and Plum Grove roads, Arlington Heights, urged his daughter, Dorothy, 19, to visit neighbors yesterday. She did. Returning, she found he had hanged himself in a tool shed.

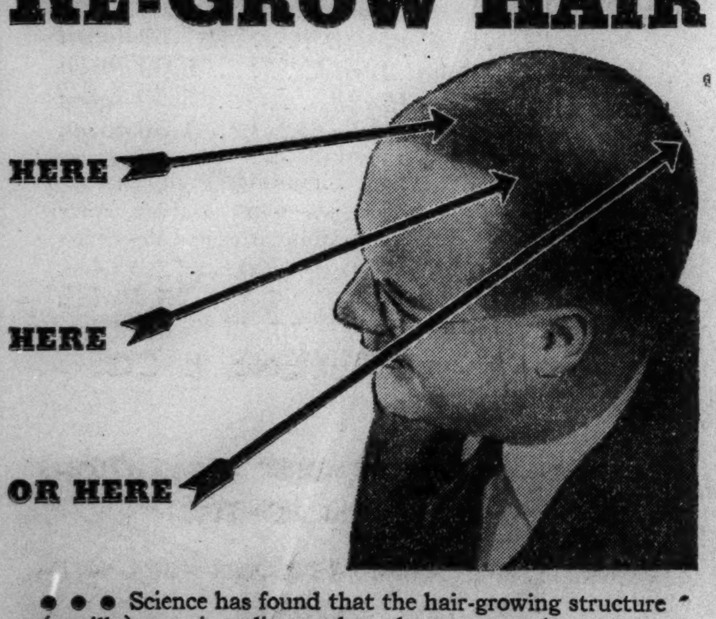
RE-GROW HAIR



• • • Science has found that the hair-growing structure (papilla) remains alive and ready to respond to proper stimulative treatment even long after hair has disappeared from the scalp.

Thomas has perfected a method of stimulating this dormant hair-growing structure to normal activity. First, Thomas treatment removes the causes of inactivity (usually one or more of 14 local scalp disorders) and then skillfully supplies the necessary stimulation and thus makes it possible for the hair to gain sufficient strength to push through the follicle and become visible again on the scalp.

Come in person to the nearest Thomas office TODAY and learn more about this precise, reliable method of growing hair, stopping hair-fall, and ending dandruff. No charge will be made for consultation or scalp examination. You will not be accepted for treatment unless your case comes within the scope of Thomas methods.

ZEP EXPLOSION 'JUST ACCIDENT,' CREW DECLARES

Precedence Is Given to Commerce Inquiry.

Lakehurst, N. J., May 9.—[Special.]—Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador, today said crew survivors of the Hindenburg disaster which cost 35 lives declared the explosion had been "just an accident." Nevertheless, the United States government's investigation was scheduled to proceed with all speed tomorrow.

"I have talked with crew members," Dr. Luther said. "They believe it was just an accident. They said everything had been done to keep the ship safe."

American officials of the Zeppelin company received a message today from German workers declaring "the development of airship travel will be continued."

Navy Delays Inquiry.

To straighten out one jurisdictional tangle, Capt. Gordon W. Haines, head of the naval inquiry, ordered that his three man board defer its hearing until completion of the commerce department proceedings. So the initial hearing tomorrow will be conducted by South Trimble Jr., commerce department solicitor, aided by R. W. Schroeder, assistant director of the air commerce bureau, and Denis Mulligan, chief of the bureau's regulations and enforcement division.

The hearing tomorrow is expected to establish that the giant dirigible blew up because its hydrogen gas was ignited either by static electricity that ran up the landing lines, or by backfire from a stern motor.

Officers' Opinions to Be Heard.

Capt. Albert Sammt, chief officer of the Hindenburg, is in a New York hospital, but his deposition may be brought here. Other important witnesses will be Senior Officers Heinrich Bauer and Walter Ziegler, and Chief Engineer Rudolph Sauter.

The commanding officer, Capt. Max Pruss, is in too serious a condition to permit his appearance at the hearing Capt. Ernest Lehmann, former commander and advisor on the trip, is dead of burns.

TINY TOWN BUILT WITH BREAD AND CANDY MAKES HIT

A model safety town built by pupils of more than 200 public and private schools attracted crowds yesterday at the national House and Garden expositions in the Coliseum. Steel windows, automatic stokers, and every other kind of house and garden gadget was on exhibit, but the miniature town with its variety of architectural styles stole the spotlight.

The young architects utilized green Turkish toweling for lawns. Trees were made of sponges, dry bread and steel wool. Candy of the proper shade made sturdy hedges. Corrugated paper formed an excellent roof for a modern house, and painted cardboard served for frame, brick or stucco walls.

SURVIVOR OF ZEPPELIN DISASTER RETURNS; RECALLS FIERY LEAP

Mrs. Mathew J. O'Laughlin, 914 Bonnie Brae avenue, River Forest, received a grand Mother's day present yesterday—the return of her son, Herbert J. O'Laughlin, 28 years old, a survivor of the Hindenburg dirigible disaster last week. His face and hands still showed traces of burns.

H. J. O'Laughlin.

"We had a wonderful crossing on the Hindenburg," he said. "Then came the explosion and fire. Flames shot up everywhere. I saved myself by jumping through red hot girders to the ground 15 feet below. I started to crawl away and came upon a man whose hair and clothing were on fire. He appealed to me in German for help, and I tried to put out the fire. I learned later he was Capt. Ernst Lehmann, who died."

O'Laughlin said he has been flying five years and will continue to do so. He expects to return to work at the Consumer company offices in Elgin today.

VenezuelaJungle Air Crash Costs Life of Chicagoan

CARACAS, Venezuela, May 9.—(AP)—A frontier inspector tonight reported to El Dorado officials the death of Frederic D. Grab of Chicago, one of two Americans injured in the crash of an airliner April 23 in the jungle in southeast Venezuela near the Brazilian and British Guiana borders. Grab was commercial attaché of the United States legation here. Preparations are being made to evacuate four survivors who were sighted beside the wreckage today by an aerial search party, which dropped provisions and medicines.

CONFER ON NEW BUILDING CODE TO IRON OUT DETAILS

The new city building code will require at least three months' more work and may take a year before it is ready for passage, according to Robert Knight, deputy commissioner of buildings. He and Joseph McCarthy, an architect representing the committee drafting the code, will confer again today in an attempt to iron out technical details before the new code goes to the city council building committee.

It was ten years ago that the city decided to have a new building code drafted. Architects and construction men claim that archaic provisions of the old code are holding up building.

"We are considering, first, the chapters in the new code dealing with administration," said Knight yesterday.

"Then we will take up the sections dealing with construction materials and engineering, with the aim of removing immediately some of the objectionable features of the old code."

DR. KERWIN TO SPEAK.

SOUND ADVICE:

invest in America's finest motor car at this year's low prices

THIS YEAR'S Packard Twelves and Packard Super Eights are beyond doubt the finest cars Packard has ever built—the finest motor cars America has ever seen.

They are selling now at the lowest prices such magnificent cars have ever sold for.

But . . . we think it obvious that, in view of rising labor and material costs throughout industry, this year's low prices cannot obtain for any certainty of time—particularly in the case of big, fine, luxury cars.

That is why we feel we should remind you that now is patently the most advantageous time to get in your order for your new Packard Twelve or Packard Super Eight. Purchasing at today's low prices should give you a very worth while bargain.

So we urge you to act now—and secure at present low prices the one car that offers you two lives . . . extraordinarily long mechanical life and long enduring style life.

Beets never are so good as when a little vinegar is used in preparing them for the table. The vinegar not only accents the beet flavor, but it brings out the deep red color of the vegetable as well.

A meal in which bland foods predominate may be flattered immensely by a beet relish or salad, for this flavor contrast seems to bring out the best in every other food served at the same time.

Beet pickles may be prepared from cooked fresh beets or from the canned vegetable. The following is a simple method of pickling beets.

Beet Pickles.

1 quart cooked or canned beets
1 cup mild vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 four inch stick cinnamon
6 whole cloves

Boil the vinegar with seasonings and spices for five minutes. Heat the beets and pour the sauce over them. Allow to stand for a half hour. Chill and drain before serving.

Horseradish and cabbage help to make a beet relish or salad interesting. Honeyed beet and cabbage relish with horseradish is a good accompaniment for meat, and jellied beet and cabbage salad with lemon juice instead of vinegar is good any time, anywhere.

Honeyed Beet and Cabbage Relish.

1 quart cooked or canned beets, chopped
1 quart shredded raw cabbage
1 cup horseradish
½ cup sugar
2 cups honey
Mild vinegar to cover mixture

Combine ingredients, pour into sterile jars, and seal.

Jellied Beets and Cabbage Salad.

[Serves Four.]

1 tablespoon gelatin
⅓ cup cold water
⅔ cup hot beet juice
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons horseradish
Salt, pepper
½ cup chopped cooked beets
½ cup chopped cabbage

Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes and dissolve in hot beet juice. Add sugar, lemon juice, horseradish, and seasonings and when mixture begins to thicken add beets and cabbage. Turn into cold wet mold and chill. Serve in squares on lettuce with mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing.

Another beet salad, which is quite as good as the jellied one and which is simpler to make, consists simply of sliced beets which have been marinated for an hour or so in a tart French dressing [preferably one which contains lemon juice]. The beet slices are arranged in a circle, overlapping each other, on romaine covered individual salad plates. The dressing which has been drained from the beets may be served in a separate bowl. Chopped celery may be scattered over the beets.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

THE NO TRUMP RESPONSE.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

A no trump response to a take-out double always is encouraging, showing at least one honor trick and often more. With a stopper in the opponents' suit, respond with one no trump [unless a major suit response is available], provided the hand contains at least one honor trick.

The doubled bid being one heart, bid one no trump with:

♠ J 6 3 ♥ Q 10 7 ♦ K 8 5 4 ♣ 6 5 2.

This rule is not followed when the one honor trick is the ace of the opponents' suit, and the hand has nothing else of value, but does contain a four card length:

With ♠ 8 6 3 ♥ A 7 ♦ 10 6 4 2 ♣ 8 5 4 3 bid two diamonds, not one no trump, over one heart doubled. With ♠ 8 6 3 ♥ A 8 5 4 ♦ 6 3 2 ♣ 9 7 3 it is necessary to bid one no trump.

TODAY'S HAND.

As every player knows, there are many hands in which the only precisely proper bid would be two and one-half or three and one-half of such and such a bid. In other words, a single raise is too conservative and a double raise is too aggressive. Of course the laws do not permit half bids, but in effect a player can represent just such bids, not in one round of bidding, but in successive rounds. Consider the proper bidding of today's hand.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass

After the opening bid of one club, the noncommittal response of one diamond, and the rebid of one spade, North's hand waranted a two and one-half spade bid. Since it always is better to have something in reserve rather than overbid, North correctly gave only a single raise. But when South went back to three clubs, North then compensated for his previous forced conservatism by jumping, thus completing the picture that his previous bid had been an underbid. South then fell back on the four-five no trump convention and, of course, the partnership reached the good spot of six spades.

West opened the diamond king and continued diamonds. South ruffed the second round and drew the opposing trumps. Then, although his own trumps were gone and clubs did not break, he had no difficulty in fulfilling the contract. The king of clubs and a club to the ace revealed the situation. A third round, ruffed with dummy's last trump, cleared the club suit, and declarer's ace of hearts was an entry for bringing home the remaining club tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Partner made an opening bid of two spades. Next hand passed. I held:

♠ 6 2 ♥ Q J 10 9 8 6 4 ♦ J 9 8 ♣ 9.

Is it absolutely necessary to bid two no trump instead of showing the heart suit on the first round?

Answer: If you are playing the Culbertson system you must respond first with two no trump to show that your hand contains less than one-plus honor tricks. Show your heart suit on the second round of bidding.

Modest Scale Is Rule Today for Marriage

Girls Wrong to Expect Luxury in 1937.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

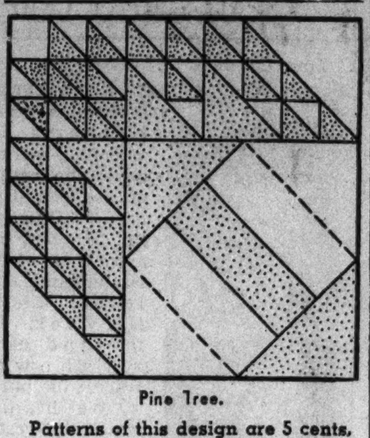
Alice says: "You know how conditions are at this time, and how young people cannot be married immediately but have to wait for years!"

Yes, Alice, we have a fair idea of conditions, BUT we do see and read about and hear about a goodly number of young people who aren't waiting for years to marry. They're adjusting themselves to today's plan of living. They're not thinking in terms of pre-'29 opulence. They're not expecting to start out with a brand new model house or car. They're not expecting the floors to be spread with Persian carpets or even four ply broadloom. They're not asking for the most expensive furnishings. But they're managing to set up some mighty cute little nests. And they're managing their fun on comparatively little money. And they wouldn't change places with you scaredy-cat girls and boys for all the world.

They're having a grand time of it, too. Of course, they have to count their pennies. They have to go without a lot of things, but they're not complaining because they have something in fine companionship they wouldn't exchange for money or luxuries. And they're building. They're building better citizenship, better character, better qualities all around because they have to do a certain amount of disciplining of themselves.

We do get weary, Alice, of girls like you telling that you're going to take your fun as you go along, since marriage is too far off to wait for. Did you ever stop to figure how much money goes into those expensive night club jaunts you go in for, the clothes you must have to attend such spots, the cosmetic equipment? Don't just count what's spent in one evening or for one evening. Figure it out on a yearly basis and see if your sum total and your man's wouldn't show a fairly neat balance were it interpreted in bank saving terms.

Colonial Quilt Makers Creators of "Pine Tree"



Pine Tree.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

New Englanders claim to have been the first to make the "Pine Tree" quilt but, as a matter of fact, the block was established in every state in the Union. All the colonists saw was pine trees, and it is only natural they all would have an idea to transfer them to a quilt block. There are half a dozen arrangements of this pieced pattern. The "Pine Tree" illustrated today is set together on the diagonal in an alternate arrangement with plain blocks, plain half blocks, and quarter blocks. Green and white is the only suggested color arrangement for pine tree patterns of any type.

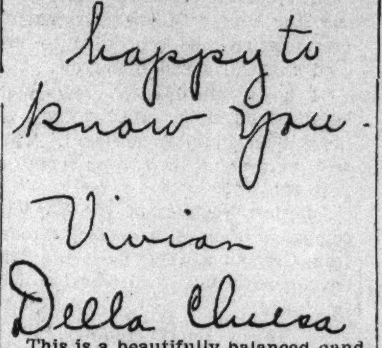
Della Chiesa's Pen Indicates Happy Nature

Letters Wide, Capitals Right Height.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright: 1937: By Muriel Stafford.]

Talent, beauty, and brains have a close competitor if you wish to be successful. It is the simple art of liking others. Those who deal with the general public need to sincerely enjoy others more than the average stay-at-home persons. Vivian Della Chiesa, whose lovely voice you have heard so often on the radio, also is gifted with a sociable nature.



This is a beautifully balanced handwriting. Nothing is carried to an extreme. The letters are medium sized, well spaced and of medium pressure. They slant just enough to the right to reveal sociability and affection but there's not any trace of overemotionalism.

Vivian Della Chiesa makes friends easily and she never loses them by a display of too much "temperament." She is amiable, kindly, humorous, and easy going.

In the sample of handwriting I have she wrote: "I am happy to know you." Although there is no doubt she says that to all the girls and to all the boys, she always means it. That is one of the secrets of her popularity.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Foam baths are having a great wave of popularity. Women—and men—find them excellent aids to relaxing. There's just something about lying back in a tub filled to the brim with white bubbly foam that makes each tangled nerve go completely unkinked.

The newest of the foam-bath offerings is definitly inexpensive. For a couple of nickels you can have a flock of baths that would make Cleopatra envious. This is a colorless liquid, with a delicate scent, that is poured into the tub before you draw the water. Turn on the water with all possible force and whoosh! You'll have snowy foam rippling up in no time.

It's loads of fun, really, and does banish the jitters. You get so much more out of a bath with a glorification of this kind than you do out of routine soap and water scrubbing. One nice thing about this preparation is that the water can be any temperature desired. Your foamy suds will remain lively for as long as you choose to soak.

This is a soapless liquid. It's not necessary to rinse afterward; in fact, the skin feels quite velvety when it's dry. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Various Fruit Juices Boon to Loveliness

They Are Plenty Rich in Necessary Vitamins.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Not only for the good of your palate but for your complexion and figure, look into your fruit and fruit juice vitamin history. Time was when orange juice and, perhaps, grapefruit and the homely old prune constituted the breakfast fruits and juices, but now you can substitute any one of a number of very palatable juices.

There is hardly any fruit that is not valuable, but each has distinctive properties. The prune, the butt of many a joke, boarding house and otherwise, has decided laxative qualities either in the whole fruit or the juice. In addition, it has a good share of copper and iron, making it a blood builder. It also contains vitamins A, B, and G. Prunes do not contain vitamin C, for which orange juice is valuable.

There's that delectable drink known as the tomato juice cocktail which has risen to great popularity in recent years. You'll find it an excellent substitute for orange juice for breakfast. Both contain vitamin C.

Served as a prelude to luncheon or dinner, tomato juice is equally enjoyable. Some prefer it with a dash of lemon, an addition which has much to recommend it. As a matter of convenience keep it on hand.

And, speaking of juices and their benefits, you can get many different vegetable juices in cans, any of which makes a delightful cocktail before your luncheon or dinner. One beauty salon has opened a "health bar" where combinations of many different vegetable juices are served. With this you may have vegetable hors d'œuvres, and all for the sake of health and beauty.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Janet Gaynor.

The little woman, who has been sort of out of things for a while because of temperament and lack of vehicles that seemed built for her, comes gloriously into her own—a NEW "own"—in this moving story of life amid the lights of Hollywood. And NEVER have I liked Fredric March so well as I did in "A Star Is Born." Why, the fellow's magnificent!

The plot concerns a girl from a midwestern farm, who, after a discouraging interim in the movie colony, is "discovered" by a booze guzzling male screen celebrity just starting on the downhill path to oblivion, though, at the time, he doesn't realize it. . . .

He is captivated by the pretty, sincere child named Esther Blodgett, falls in love with her, demands that she be made his leading woman and, later, marries her.

The preview of their first picture proves to the producers that Vicki Lester, as she is then known, is a find, and that Norman Maine is about to become a total loss. All the raves are Vicki's. Norman's performance receives the cold shoulder.

The marriage of Vicki and Maine is a real love match. Maine, when he at last realizes he's out of things, generously keeps in the background, stops drinking and spends lonely hours at home waiting for his wife's return from her day at the studios and her kiss, which makes everything worth while for him. . . .

But the treatment he receives from former associates—he has been most unpopular personally—finally sets him going again, and his young wife's heart is torn by his dissipations and her inability to do anything for him.

Her beau geste in the last reel is capped by one on the part of her husband which proves Maine to be what Vicki has known he was all the time—one of God's noblemen.

If you can keep the tears back as you watch this movie, you've got more self-control than I had. There are many scenes that are piercingly touching.

Perhaps the greatest Mr. March has is the one in which he makes a tragically dramatic appearance at the dinner, during which his young wife is accorded the academy award.

I don't want to go into detail regarding this movie because it's one which should give you its story warm, throbbing, and first hand from the screen.

The glowing performances of the stars are flanked by magnificent cast portrays. Witness Adolphe Menjou as a picture producer, May Robson as Vicki's grandmother, and Lionel Stander as a press agent. [You could kill the last in one scene—watch for it!]

And that advice is NOT for women only!

Front Views and Profiles

Reunion—Adornment—Coronation Commentary—Stitches.

A SMALL blue eyed woman with an air of fragility and a timid charm of manner might have been observed twice within the last few days slipping into the Sonotone theater where "Beethoven Concerto," the motion picture with child musician actors and a marvelous performing dog in the cast, is being shown. She is Mme. Elizabeth Artamanoff, now of Chicago, once of Leningrad, and the dog had been her pet before she left Russia. Indeed, she it was who had taught him to play the balalaika and to do some of the other feats he performs in the picture. When the soviet government finally permitted her to leave the country and to join her son, George Artamanoff, with whom she now makes her home on Astor street, her daughter, who is still in Russia, kept the dog. Its fame spread, and because of its intelligence and its tricks, it was offered a job in the movies.

"When I saw him in the picture it was all I could do to keep from saying, 'Here, Freddie! Here, Freddie!'" said Mme. Artamanoff. "My daughter writes me that whenever she begins a letter to me, and tells the dog she is writing to me, he comes and puts his paw on her arm while she writes."

Mme. Artamanoff has been in America for four years. The emotions the sight of him must have stirred may be imagined. Mme. Artamanoff gave no further clew to her feelings. But she plans to go to see the picture again. And perhaps again.

DEPARTMENT of Statistics. The husband of a knitter computed how many stitches go into the average knitted skirt. He discovered that in a 29 inch skirt there are approximately 103,000 stitches knitted with more than a half a mile of yarn. Think of the number of socks that could be darned with so much yarn and how many buttons sewed on with that many stitches, reflects the husband, whose name is Frank L. Macleod. Think what Mr. Macleod might have been doing in the time it took to count those stitches.

German Groups Give Imposing Choral Festival

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The United German Male choruses of Chicago held their imposing spring festival of German music at the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon. Sharing the huge stage with them and filling it almost to its limits were a large children's chorus and a fair sized orchestra. Reinhold Walter directed the adult chorus. In charge of the children and the orchestra, respectively, were Ludwig Lohmiller and Walter Steindel. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, served as soloist.

Works of the standard German and Austrian composers were supplemented by several songs by men whose fame is confined to their own national and racial groups. Some of these have an attractive, folklike quality, notably the children's May carol and their "Neckende Kuckuck."

The natural, straightforward singing of a typical Männerchor does not seem to be compromised in the least when several of these hardy groups are combined into a single, giant chorus. There still remains the honest, openhearted tone quality of voices strange to artifice and exaggeration. The work of the children, born in the same musical tradition, was delightfully fresh and spontaneous.

Miss Witwer pleased the audience with the unforced, almost liquid quality of her voice and with the care which distinguishes her phrasing. She has a praiseworthy habit of hitting the pitch exactly on the nose.

Yesterday's festival was a prelude to a much more elaborate one to be held here in June, 1938. It will fill four days.

The Chicago division of the Federal Music project took official cognizance of the coming coronation yesterday when the Illinois Symphony orchestra devoted the whole of its Great Northern theater concert to a program of English music. Vaughan Williams, Edward Elgar, and John Ireland were the composers represented.

With Herbert Horn at the solo instrument the Ireland piano concerto in E flat received its first American presentation. It has a certain wayward, likeable poetry about it. Mr. Horn's restraint and skill prevented its more angular themes [in the first and last movements] from sounding as sharp and uncompromising as they might otherwise have done.

Izler Solomon, conductor of the Illinois Symphony orchestra, led his corps through a carefully thought out and beautifully executed performance of Elgar's "Enigma" variations [variations on a theme which is never actually stated].

Maywood, Joliet Bands Win Top Rank in Contest

Bloomington, Ill., May 9.—[Special.]—For the tenth consecutive year the Joliet grade school band today held an outstanding merit rating after the completion of the Illinois state contest here Saturday night. This aggregation is said to have been the first grade school band organized in the United States. Its director, Forrest McAllister, is a son of Archie McAllister, president of the National High School Band association.

Two thousand contestants from twenty-four schools were here for the state meet. Participants were ranked in three divisions—outstanding, good, and fair.

Those receiving outstanding rank are:

Class D [enrollment 500 or fewer]—Waverly, Fairmont, and Franklin Park, with the latter awarded superior rating for the division.

Class C [enrollment 501 to 1,000]—Edwardsville.

Class B [enrollment 1,001 to 2,000]—Centralia, Downers Grove, and Elmhurst, the latter receiving superior rating for the division.

Class A [enrolling more than 2,000] Maywood, Rockford, and Joliet.

Varied Powers of Else Brems Win Applause

BY CECIL SMITH.

Else Brems, superbly gifted and dynamic mezzo-soprano of the Royal Opera of Copenhagen, sang in Chicago yesterday for the second time in less than a month. She appeared as assisting soloist with the People's Symphony orchestra in the Studebaker theater.

With the possible exception of Gertrud Wettergren, no singer new to Chicago this season has shown command of so many vital and legitimate means of creating excitement in an audience. The number of her listeners yesterday was not so large as Miss Brems deserved, but the demonstration of approval after the "Habanera" from "Carmen," added as a final encore, would have done credit to a group three times as large.

This captivating Danish visitor possesses a voice of live and warmly colored timbre. She employs it with both a technique of unusual finish and an impeccable, discriminating musical taste. To these qualities she adds a wholesome and frankly admitted sense of the theater. As a result, the total artistry of Else Brems is something to throw your hat into the air about.

The portions of the People's Symphony concert which did not involve Miss Brems had less to commend them. The orchestra is composed of competent players, but the ill-prepared program was full of surprises both for them and for P. Marinus Paulsen, the conductor.

Mr. Paulsen presented two suites from his own pen, a set of four "Oriental Sketches," which won a Balaban & Katz prize in 1923, and three excerpts from an unperformed opera, "The Cimbrians." The music as a whole sounded unoriginal and pretentious. The overture to "The Cimbrians" had a touch of novelty in the use of two lurs, or 2,500 year old Danish serpentine trumpets fashioned of bronze.

Ennio Bolognini, cellist, and Stavro Chiapi, tenor, shared a program at the Woman's club theater last evening. Mr. Bolognini was principal cellist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for a brief period a few years ago. He still retains the smooth tone and expressive phrasing which made him something of a matinee idol in those days.

Mr. Chiapi did not make so favorable an impression. His tone is tensely produced, and his conception of the musical content of his songs is erratic, so that he often left his able accompanist, Charles Lurvey, away out on the end of a limb.

An energetic group of nineteen young instrumentalists calling itself the Rutzky ensemble played in Fullerton hall last night. In Adam's overture to "If I Were King," the clear beat and good sense of Harry Rutzky, the conductor, indicated that he is on the right track with his ambitious associates.

Mount Vernon Session Draws Chicagoan East

G. A. Carpenters Mark 43d Anniversary Today.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. GEORGE A. CARPENTER is making plans for her annual early May trip to Washington, D. C., for as vice regent for Illinois of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association she always attends the annual meeting, held on the second Thursday of May. Some years she misses being in Chicago on her own wedding anniversary, May 10, but since she does not have to be at Mount Vernon until the 13th this year, she will spend today with her husband, former Judge Carpenter, and their son and daughter, George B. Carpenter and Mrs. Edward J. Bermingham, and then leave for the east.

The Carpenters have been married forty-three years today. Mrs. Carpenter became vice regent of the Mount Vernon association in 1916 and has missed few of the annual meetings since then. The one this year will be rather a sad one, for the dearly loved regent, Mrs. Alice H. Richards of Maine and Washington, died last October, and the vice regents will have to elect one from their number to become the new regent. Another thing that will detract from the gayety of the meeting is the serious illness of the highly respected superintendent of Mount Vernon, Col. Harrison H. Dodge, who has been there more than half a century and who himself is 83 years old.

The regents of the association, which was formed in 1854 by Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina, stay for ten days in a house built especially for them, enjoying the beautiful gardens and the mansion where George Washington lived, which now is a museum. Mrs. Carpenter will pay some visits while she is away, so it will be several weeks before she returns to Chicago.

Lake Forest Horse Show Period to Be Festive.

Latest bulletins on the Lake Forest horse show, June 17 to 20, indicate that the north shore community has four of the most festive days in its history in prospect. With more than 1,000 entries expected, the show will be the largest outdoor event of its kind in the United States this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dick are giving a large luncheon the opening day at the Onwentsia, and the following day Mrs. John Andrews King and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury will be hostesses to another large group at luncheon at the club.

Prizes will be awarded at a dinner and ball climaxing the horse show on Saturday evening, June 19, at the Onwentsia.

The governor general's horse guards are sending a team to represent Canada, and there will be a team from Fort Sheridan and one from Fort Des Moines, in Iowa. Col. A. E. Nash, Col. Arthur Everett, Capt. Alfred Bunting and Capt. John Cleland of the famous family which exhibits its horses regularly at the New York show and at the Olympia show in London are coming down from Canada, and Capt. Cleland is bringing some of his blooded mounts with him.

Col. Paul Davison, Maj. Paul Morris, and Capt. Edwin C. Greiner are among the crack riders who will represent Fort Sheridan.

The Dicks are beginning their horse show activities this week when they take ten hackney ponies down to the Atlantic City show opening Tuesday. From there they will go to the Devon, Pa., show May 25 to 31, and thence to the Detroit show June 3 to 6. Mrs. Dick will drive in the Chicago jubilee show June 9 to 13 as well as in the Lake Forest show.

Dorothy Stover Engaged to Wed Dr. J. A. Forbrich.

At a breakfast at home in Winnetka yesterday, to which they invited their close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frank French Stover announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Gray, to Dr. Joseph Andrew Forbrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Forbrich of Riverside.

Miss Stover is a graduate of the Convent of the Sacred Heart of Lake Forest and of St. Mary's of Notre Dame. Dr. Forbrich is a graduate of the University of Illinois and of Loyola Medical school, where he now is a member of the faculty. He is on the stafs of the Children's Memorial and Mercy hospitals. No date has been set for the wedding.

Various Tones of Green Take Style Spotlight

Appear in Hats, Dresses and New Suits.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Various tones of green, carrying all kinds of descriptive names, are stealing the fashion spotlight. Dark green sheers, dull crêpes and cottons or linens make appropriate basic color clothes with which to play the accessory mixture game.

Some of the best looking cypress green straw hats we've seen in years are being shown. Small, smart, affairs are for street or daytime outfits. Big, shady, thin straws, for prints and chiffons for afternoon, come in a delightful cooling shade of deep green.

One hat shop will make you a clever skull cap, composed entirely of green leaves, to suit your skull line. You wait while the cap is being made. Such a summery cool looking topper goes with all kinds of daytime clothes and even goes dress parade with a veil—short or long, in black, deep brown, or even white or green.

Green piqué skull caps come in plain piqué or the band piqué fagoted with green thread. White dotted dull green crêpe makes some swathed turbans that can be matched and worn with a belt of the white dotted green background material or with fringed silk handkerchief of the same green.

White organdy blouses with short sleeves gayly spattered with bright green dots have frills down the center panel. These are perfect with sage green flannel two piece suits. Two piece green linen costumes made with short sleeves are other fresh ideas for summer street wear, while candy striped green and white dance dresses will make one and all crisp, cool, and snappy even during sultry summer weather.

THE TRAP

By Elizabeth Jordan

[Copyright: 1937: by Elizabeth Jordan]

SYNOPSIS.

Brave Alida French prepares to open up Avalon, the ancestral home she has inherited on the Massachusetts coast, for paying guests—though the house, according to local gossip, is haunted. Four men have vanished from it. Her guests are to be Vance, a young man with a fatal heart ailment; Dr. Eugene Benedict, struggling young physician, and his wife, Lucy. Comfort Folger used to work at Avalon. Alida, accompanied by Bing Haven, her family lawyer's nephew, calls on Comfort.

INSTALMENT XIII.

ALLIES OF SATAN.

"The Frenches wuz drinkin' men, all of 'em," Comfort said austerely. "Licker is the bait Satan uses t' ketch men's souls. No man c'n drink licker an' be saved. The last French that lived there, your Uncle Amos, wuz as bad's the rest. All ye gotta do is lookit the empty shelves in his wine suller."

"Aren't there any full shelves left?" Bing asked anxiously. "That's a point uncle and I forgot to look into."

Alida was relieved by the question. She hoped it would sidetrack any further revelations about Uncle Amos' evil ways in his declining years.

"The's full an' plenty," Comfort admitted coldly. "Whisky an' brandy an' sech like. Ef they wus mine I'd empty 'em in the sink this day. Allies of Satan, they be."

"Whisky and brandy will suit Dr. Benedict and Mr. Vance—the two men who may come to Avalon. Mrs. Benedict will come, too, of course, if we carry out our plans. You must reconcile yourself to seeing them drink an occasional highball. But I'm sure Dr. Benedict and Mr. Vance are not what we could call "drinking men." Frankly, Comfort, I can't believe my Uncle Amos was, either."

"I ain't sayin' Amos French wuz a drunkard. I ain't sayin' any of the Frenches wuz drunkards," Comfort conceded. "But they looked upon licker without horror. They drank it. They should be throwed out every bottle of the accursed stuff. I tol' Amos French so every chancet I got. I been 'round Avalon sence I was a young one five year old. That's purty nigh forty years.

"Well, that's that," Bing commented airily.

Fust I wuz trottin' 'round the kitchen follerin' my mother when she worked for the Frenches. Then I wuz workin' in it m'self."

"That brings us back to the point," Alida reminded her. "I want you to come and work there again. I want to live at Avalon."

"Ye wouldn't be a French if ye didn't," Comfort muttered. "Every French wants t' live at Avalon. That's whut made it sound so foolish when folks said yer uncle an' yer gran'father lit out a purpose. No French would leave Av'lon of he didn't hafta."

Alida leaned forward.

"Why, Comfort," she cried breathlessly. "Then you must have come in a few years after grandfather disappeared."

"Fifteen years after. I wuz five," Comfort repeated.

"Just the same, you must have heard a lot of talk. Do you remember——"

She stopped. Comfort Folger had grown rigid in her chair. Under the icy chill of her words the temperature of the little room sank lower.

"That, Miss," Comfort was saying, "is a subjec' I don't discuss."

"Well, that's that," Bing commented airily. "Now, suppose you tell Miss French whether you're going to help her out this summer."

"Or must I bring up some outsider from New York, who will never care for Avalon as you and I do?" Alida ended gently.

The woman's eyes flickered.

"I dunno. I ain't cal'clated t' work this summer," she said slowly. "I got t' study 'bout it."

"All right. Suppose you come back to the house with us now and help me to decide what must be done in the way of cleaning and repairing. I'd like your advice. Whether you come later or not I want to get that work started tomorrow morning."

Something that in any one else would have been a change of expression touched the woman's forbidding face.

"I might—seems if," she conceded.

"Good," Alida stood up and Bing hastened to open the door for her. "Put on your hat and coat and we'll drive you over," the girl added, as she crossed the threshold. "Even if you decide not to work this summer you may be willing to help me out till my friends come. Then they can bring a housekeeper with them, if you don't want to stay."

Comfort's lip line became a trifle thinner. Alida smiled to herself. She had read the other rightly. The possibility of a housekeeper from New York in the offing would amazingly quicken that slow process which Comfort Folger described as "studyin' 'bout it."

In the driveway before Avalon another car blocked their passage.

"Your uncle must be here already—" Alida began. She stopped to stare. The big, good looking young man in the light spring overcoat and new fedora hat, who stood in the driveway, was nonchalantly holding out his hand to help her to alight.

"Mr. Vance!" she gasped, and laughed with excitement.

"In person," Vance corroborated. "To the rescue of the damsel, like a knight of old. Heard of your flight last night. Left New York at dawn to stand by and hold Avalon with you. Ready to sweep, scrub, draw water, drive tacks, run errands, and wring the neck of a chicken for supper." Alida made the necessary introductions and the quartet trooped into the house. Her heart was singing. This was wonderful. She was forced to discourage a marked tendency on Vance's part to linger in the hall and point out its beauties to his companions. The study, with a fire still burning behind the high screen Bing had set in place before they left the house, filled Vance with awe.

"But I thought we were coming to a ramshackle, down at the heel place," he commented.

"Wait till you've broken an ankle or two in one of the holes in the veranda steps," Bing advised. "Then you'll know what sort of a place you've come to."

"You two may sit down before the fire for ten minutes and get acquainted," Alida said.

She drew Comfort into the kitchen and the serious discussion of the day began. Fifteen minutes later Comfort was at work, and Alida was back with the two young men.

"If you will go to Quinnet and get the telephone and electric light services started it will be a big help," she told them. "While you're on Main street buy the things that are on this list. Here's the money. When you start back pick up the town's best painter, Pat Donnelly, if you can find him, and bring him along. It might be well to round up your uncle, too. I may need his advice about the estimates, though Comfort seems to remember the exact cost of everything that was ever done here. She knows a carpenter who will repair the porches and fences and chicken houses."

Bing nodded.

"She means Abram Parsons," he said. "He's her best young man. He's exactly a year older than she is. The general theory is that a late lark of love has been singing in their hearts for thirty years. If it has, no one else has ever heard it. They played together when they were babes, and they go to church and prayer meeting together every week when Abram is sober."

"But why haven't they married all these years?" Alida wanted to know.

"Because Abram is an unregenerate son of Satan, an' 'a drinkin' man.'" Bing grinned. "He goes to church with Comfort, but he's never formally joined the church. He loves 'licker' better than he does Comfort, and she's never been able to make him give it up. He goes on a binge a couple of times a month. It doesn't amount to much. Nobody but Comfort thinks much about it. But you know how Comfort is—or you will know in time. The lips that touch 'licker' shall never touch mine."

"You're telling me more now than one person can understand," Alida broke in. "Please go downtown and do these errands, if you really want to help."

Alida went into the dining room and informed Comfort, in a voice a trifle firmer than necessary, that she expected her to bring an extra woman cleaner with her the next morning.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: A Special Invitation—to You

Mothers Who Always Scold Are Meanies

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Mrs. Green has a young neighbor in for lunch with her child. Jimmy obviously is doing his best with table etiquet, then:

"Gosh, Mrs. Green! I'm terribly sorry, honest I am. The spoon just slipped right out of my hand and there's a big dab of strawberry jam on the table cloth."

"Why, that's all right, Jimmy. There's no harm done."

"I 'spose," anxiously, "I should have put down my glass of water before I tried to take the jam."

"Well, a little hot water and soap will make it as good as new."

"Then you're not really cross with me?"

Mrs. Green laughed at the surprised expression on the face of her small guest.

"Cross! Why, certainly not."

"Gee, that's great. Am I glad! My mother always gets awful cross when I spill things."

Silence, then:

"Even when you didn't mean to do it?" inquires little Billy, wide-eyed.

"Sure she does. She says I don't look what I'm doing."

"O, I'm glad you're not like that, mommy."

This free, comfortable attitude of Billy's gradually has grown out of an understanding between mother and child, an understanding that there is a time to blame and a time not to blame.

Neither children nor grownups are always careful, always sure. Accidents happen, unlooked for conditions arise: Boys slip when jumping from stone to stone in that fascinating little stream. They fall and tear holes in new suits. Shoes get caked with mud while hunting for those first pussy-willow shoots. These are conditions which, if met in the way this mother met the jam accident, will form a bond of reasonableness between parents and children, but which, if met by scolding and punishment, help raise barriers of misunderstanding.

Much of this kind of friction can be eliminated. Let us stop once in a while and have a good, plain talk with ourselves. Are we blaming the children for little irritating things they do simply because we are tired? Are we nervous, and do we therefore make mountains out of mole hills? Are our corrective suggestions based on sound benefits for our children, or are they based on the fact that we are annoyed or inconvenienced?

The unfortunate part of this scolding business is, that it often causes untruthfulness. "Did you break that lamp shade?" will be followed by an honest confession if the understanding between parents and children is a happy one. But if not, the guilt may be denied in order to escape the usual scolding. We have only to watch the glances of a child toward his parents when an accident happens, to realize what their usual tactics are.

The more we blame and scold, the more we will have to continue to blame and scold. If we do this, we really are accomplishing virtually nothing in the way of educating our children, for that is what training should do, educate our children.

For those parents who exaggerate every mishap, we have a leaflet called "Wholesome Neglect Is Often Cure for Undesirable Behavior." It will be sent on receipt of a large, 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in The Sunday Tribune.

1937 American Mother Receives Her Medal as Family Looks On

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Surrounded by members of her "typical American family" Mrs. Harriette Flora Gray of Omaha, Neb., was acclaimed by New York and the nation today as "the American mother of 1937."

Dressed in a smart knit dress of hyacinth blue with cape and straw hat to match, the wife of Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railroad, received the Golden Rule Foundation's gold medal at a luncheon in her honor. Mrs. Gray is 67 years old. Her husband, two sons, and daughters-in-law, and one of her five grandchildren proudly watched the ceremony.

Charles V. Vickrey, president of the foundation, presented the medal after Mrs. Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the foundation's Mother's day committee, introduced Mrs. Gray.

"You are a representative American mother of the highest type, courageous, strong in faith, upright, and fearless," said Mrs. Poling to the woman who fifty years ago married a young railroad telegraph clerk.

port on the alumnae council she attended in Northampton, Mass. At 8:15 Miss Ellen Holt and Miss Elizabeth Webster will present in words and motion pictures "Glimpses of Scandinavia." Mrs. Adolph O. Hartmann is in charge of reservations.

Children's Hospital Board to Give Tea Wednesday.

The Children's Memorial hospital is holding open house from 3 until 7 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in celebration of National Hospital day. Members of the auxiliary board will be hostesses at tea, and nurses will guide visitors through the hospital and nurses' home, where there will be exhibits and demonstrations showing the work of the hospital.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings is chairman of the event, and board members assisting her include Mrs. William B. Greenlee, president of the auxiliary board; Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mrs Joseph H. King, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes and Mrs. T. Philip Swift.

Home for Cripples Will Hold Tea.

In celebration of National Hospital day, the board of managers of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children will give a tea from 3 until 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the hospital, 970 East 59th street. Mrs. H. Foster Straw is chairman of the active members of the board, among whom are Mrs. Allan M. Clement, Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Mrs. Theodore S. Proxmire, and Mrs. William L. Hodgkins.

For 45 years the home has provided hospital care for from 300 to 400 crippled children a year, and more than twice that number have received outpatient care. During recent years other institutions have increased their facilities until there are 400 free beds in Chicago to care for crippled children, enough to care for the city's needs at present if the "child" is defined, as in most institutions, as 14 years old or younger. There are hundreds of other cripples who are over this age limit, but who are under 21, and therefore are still children according to our state and federal laws.

In accordance with a new policy the home has reopened 11 beds, closed during the depression, and has increased its age limit to 21 years. Twenty children from 15 to 21 years of age have been admitted. The home's new building at 59th street and Ellis avenue has a potential capacity of 100 beds.

Rudolph E. Prussings Return from California.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph E. Prussing have returned from a flying trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Howe Jr. are at home from an eastern trip.

Mrs. W. Oliver Brackett and children of Lake Forest have left to spend the summer in England. Dr. Brackett will join his family in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogets have returned from Ormond Beach, Fla. They have taken Mrs. Oliver Wilson's Lake Forest home for two months.

Mrs. John C. Pitcher has returned from California and is again at the Drake. Mr. and Mrs. Pitcher will go to the country late in June to occupy Mrs. Frank Hibbard's house on the Shoreacres Golf club grounds for the remainder of the summer.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra will conclude its season with a concert at Orchestra hall tonight. This is the 16th year of the Orchestra and the 10th anniversary of its Orchestra hall series. Tonight's program will be one of the most ambitious ever tried by the orchestra's 115 members, none of whom is a professional musician.

Garden Club Starts Nature School Today.

The second annual nature school of the Garden club of Illinois will be held today, tomorrow and Wednesday at the Morton arboretum at Lisle, Ill. Lectures will begin at 9 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, whose hospitality and indorsement have done much for the success of the school, will open the lecture today with a talk on the arboretum and the plans her father, the late Joy Morton, had for this great laboratory of gardening.

Two polo games will attract fans to the 124th Field Artillery armory next Saturday night when the senior champions of the Metropolitan Polo league and the junior champions will appear for the benefit of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle on Kimbark avenue.

A team is being selected by vote of polo fans to play the senior champions and the junior champions will play the runners-up in the poll. Michael L. Igoe and W. T. Donahue are cochairmen of the benefit.

The Ridge Service guild has sent out attractive green folders announcing its fifth annual Galaday to be held Saturday, May 22, at the Beverly Country club. The all day event has been planned to interest both men and women, since the golf course will be reserved for men during the afternoon.

The program will start with golf for women in the morning, followed by breakfast and a fashion show that will contrast modes of the gay nineties with today. Miss Herma Clark of THE TRIBUNE, well known for her column, "When Chicago Was Young," will announce the fashion models. During the afternoon the feminine guests will play bridge. A dinner-dance will conclude the festivities. Proceeds will go to the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children, the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, and other local charities.

The Episcopal diocese of Chicago will hold its own coronation as a feature of the 12th annual Cathedral ball taking place Friday evening, May 28, at the Palmer house. A queen will be chosen next Saturday from among 40 or 50 young women representing the parishes of the diocese. Dudley Crafts Watson, Paul Stone and Eugene Voita are included in the committee which will make the selection. Proceeds of the ball will go toward a building fund for a future cathedral for Chicago.

Civic Business Women.

The Chicago Civic Business and Professional Women's club will hold its annual election of officers at 8 o'clock tonight at the Congress hotel.

HAROLD TEEN—THE ROAD TO ROMANCE IS ROUGH

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Every summer wardrobe must have one frock which is so simple that it may be worn at any time during the day, whether around the house, in the garden, for shopping or for informal hostessing. The frock illustrated today makes up well in almost any type of fabric, whether sheer or mid-weight cotton or silk, or whether plain or printed.

The sleeves of this delightful model are puffed high, wide, and handsomely. The rickrack which enhances the simple V neckline also trims the sleeves and the full hemline. The bodice is slimly fitted, the waistline snug, and the hips moded.

If you wish, the neckline may be high and dressed up with a simple and girlish collar. A sash which ties in the back is optional, and on this version of the frock the rickrack is omitted.

Style No. 3496 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with 8¾ yards of braid.

'Varsity Show' Gives Promise of Being Lively Musical Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 9.—[Special.]—The musicians of Fred Waring's band were playing their saxes, drums, and clarinets in the movie "Varsity Show" when we dropped onto sound stage No. 19 at Warners. And they were playing a lot of the rôles as well.

Waring appears as a faculty member engaged in a conspiracy with youths and co-eds of fictitious Winfield college to drive up to New York and fetch back the lively alumnus [Dick Powell] to coach the campus dramatic society in its show. Powell had made good as a Broadway showman after failing to make good in his grades with the older professors and while the professors wanted no more of him on the campus the students were insistent.

Johnny Davis, who is the "skat" singer with Waring's orchestra—the fellow who puts in the high pitched vocal "whoo-hoo-hoo-hoo's" and the half notes while the other musicians play instruments—was wearing a brass crown that designated him as "Old King Cole" in a comedy sequence in the college show.

Poly McClintock, the band member who exemplifies the so-called "frog voice," was there in a red sweater and a physiognomy that looks more like the old pugilist Gunboat Smith than an up to date collegian. But Poly was having a swell time surrounded as he was by thirty-five Berkeley show girls. In fact, his enjoyment reached such heights it spoiled four shots in a row because the girls giggled.

Busby Berkeley, dance director, relaxed in a camp chair while Story Director Bill Keighley [pronounced Keeley—so that readers can stop writing in and asking] sat up in front near where the long arm of the microphone boom reached out to record the dialog.

"Now steady down, kids," Keighley admonished, while assistant directors tried to shoo girls in green shorts, blue knit skirts and trig suits away from bashed looking Mr. McClintock.

"See the girl with the white shirt waist, blue neckerchief and navy blue beret?" We were urged to look. That girl turned out to be Priscilla Lane, sister of Lola Lane. In the rest of the good natured mob of chorus girls and dancing boys and band players who were impersonating Joe and Susan College, we were shown Priscilla's sister Rose Mary in dark blue sport togs.

Mabel Todd, a young woman in pink dress, with golden hair, flat heels on her rough lether sport shoes and a pair of lensless spectacles was trying to look studious. She is a former radio singer with Al Pearce's Gang and is making her screen start in the rollicking mixture of tunes and nonsense. She was put into the cast when comedienne Marie Wilson suffered head injuries in an auto accident.

Miss Todd plays the girl friend of Sterling Holloway and Lee Dixon, the six foot three inch eccentric dancer in the picture. Walter Catlett plays the killjoy professor.

When McClintock finally forgot to tell the show girls any new jokes, and the microphone reached out over the heads of Waring, Davis, Mabel Todd, and Holloway, at the right instant the crowd of 70 young people melted into the wings of the big sound stage. The Lane girls, Dixon, and some of the others ran for a battered looking upright piano where two colored fellows wearing janitor caps were rattling out hot music.

The colored pianists were Buck and Bubbles, long time vaudeville campaigners, and they soon had their onlookers doing little tap steps, whistling, humming, and extemporizing, while they themselves stomped, yelled, and beat time on a wooden bench.

Finesse in Girdles

Here's the Story of How These Pretty Girdles Achieved Perfection

$5 to $7.50

Long months of careful experimentation went into the designing of these few ounces of sheer corset magic. And you have only to wear one of these pretty Finesse girdles to see how wonderfully successful they are.

First, the openwork elastic is cooler, sleeker and has gained in slimming efficiency. Second, this elastic is combined with sleek or sheer fabric, a minimum in weight.

Choose from four styles. We sketch a double face satin and elastic girdle with zip opening, left, $7.50. Right, a similar style in lace, lined with net, with Finesse elastic sides, $7.50. Antoher style in crepe or in net at $5.

BONURA HITS HOME RUN IN SEVENTH TO WIN

Lee Holds Champs to Four Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Zeke Bonura carved out a hero rôle for himself again yesterday. He hit a home run, his third of the season and second in two afternoons, to elevate the White Sox to a dashing 2 to 1 triumph over the world champion Yankees from New York. Bonura's drive, along with other items, led the Sox to their first two game winning streak of the season and at the same time embarrassed the title holders with their fourth successive defeat.

Bonura's devastating blast was a picture for 25,000 spectators, but that wasn't all they saw. They saw Thornton Lee, ex-Indian southpaw, make his initial start in Comiskey park. They saw Lee reduce the Yank sluggers to a state of feebleness. Only four hits arose to slow down Lee's progress and a shutout was lost only because Henry Steinbacher, overanxious as rookies are inclined to be at times, dropped an easy fly ball. This was one of two errors in a Sox defense that otherwise was sensational.

Faith in Power Fails.

Joe McCarthy sprang a new pitching hope on the Sox, one Spurgeon Chandler, a graduate of the University of Georgia by the way of the Yanks' Newark farm. The muscular southerner did nothing to indicate that he won't be able to get along. For four innings he held the Sox to one hit. This hit, however, was mixed with an error to produce a run in the first inning. After six innings, the Sox' total was only two hits. And the third hit of a total of five off the newcomer was Bonura's smash into the left field seats in the seventh inning just after the Yanks had tied the score.

The 27 year old Chandler's task might have been more profitable and Lee's job more complicated if the Yanks had appreciated that they do encounter days in which runs are scarce, their power notwithstanding. Once after getting a man to base with none out, the runner got panicky and was trapped between bases. And in the seventh when Steinbacher's error put two on with none out, Lou Gehrig neglected to run. He was doubled and what easily could have been a riotous inning fell apart.

Sox Take Lead.

After Lee had started impressively by disposing of three Yankees, the Sox jumped off to the one run lead that stood up through six innings. Steinbacher opened by bouncing to Lazzeri. The old fellow made a wide throw to Gehrig. Rosenthal aimed a slow bounder at Lazzeri and beat it out for a hit. The two runners moved up on Walker's bunt, then Bonura dispatched a long fly to Hoag in left and Steinbacher sprinted home after the catch. Appling furnished the third out by grounding to Crosetti.

The Yanks didn't get a man to base until after Selkirk had fanned for the first out in the third. Hoag tapped to Bonura and Lee covered the base, but Zeke's throw was wide. This was fixed up on a double play started by Appling on Chandler's grounder. The next Yankee to survive was Di Maggio. He singled to left with two out in the fourth for the first hit off Lee. Gehrig followed with a fly to Rosenthal. Then the Yanks dropped in order in the fifth, two of them fanning. The strike out victims were Lazzeri and Selkirk.

Sewell Breaks Spell.

The Sox offense during the second, third, and fourth innings was so passive that only nine of them batted, seven of them retiring on infield taps. Two more were added to Chandler's perfect string in the fifth, whereupon Sewell broke it with a looping single

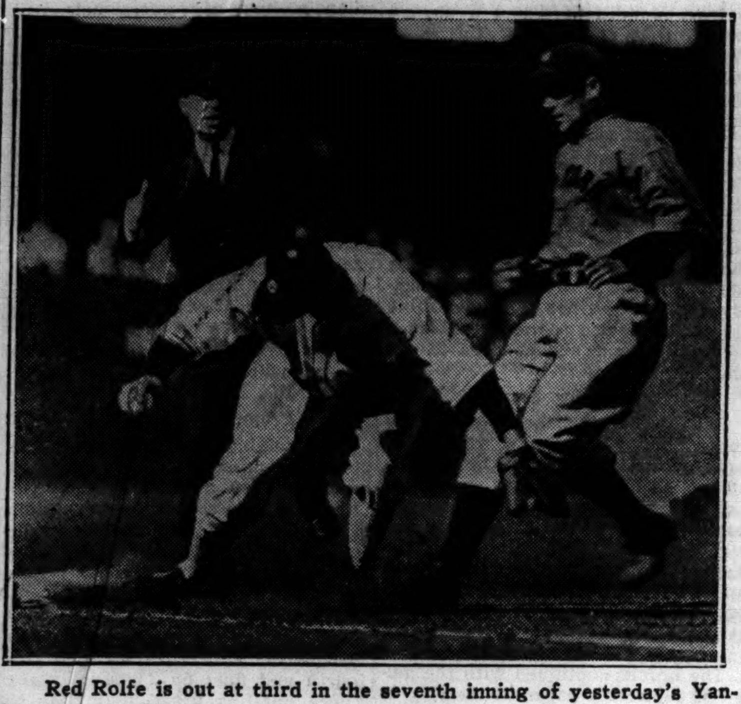
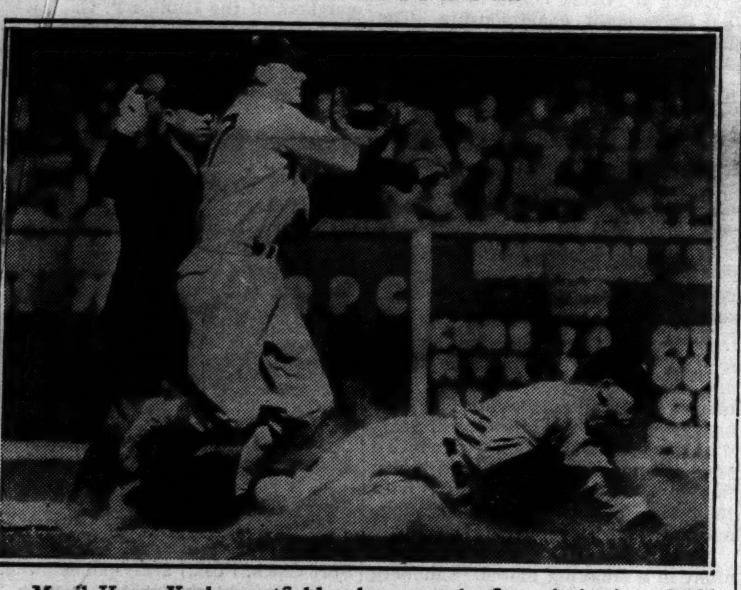
CHAMPS, EH? SOMEBODY BETTER TELL SOX



Red Rolfe is out at third in the seventh inning of yesterday's Yankee game at Comiskey park when the White Sox turned Lou Gehrig's bunt into a double play, Sewell to Piet to Bonura. The umpire is Bill McGowan. The White Sox won the game, 2 to 1, in their half when Zeke Bonura hit a home run to break a 1 to 1 tie.

Thornton Lee, Cleveland castoff, who made his first home start as a White Sox auspiciously yesterday by holding the Yankees to four hits and winning, 2 to 1.



Myril Hoag, Yankee outfielder, becomes the first victim in a double play, Luke Appling to Jack Hayes to Zeke Bonura, in the third inning. Hayes is throwing to Bonura to double Pitcher Spurgeon Chandler. The umpire is Bill McGowan. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Don't Tell Joe McCarthy It's a Breeze for Yankees

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Joe V. McCarthy is in Chicago with his world champion New York Yankees and, as usual, he's in a fairly amiable mood, at least as long as nobody calls his attention to a certain subject. Don't mention the probability, or even the possibility, of the present titleholders waltzing off with another pennant, either uncontested or under pressure.

The concensus is that the man who graduated from the management of the Cubs to that of the Yankees doesn't appreciate the strength of his own outfit, notwithstanding the proof it furnished with a 19½ game margin in the 1936 race and by thumping the Giants decisively in the world series.

"How can anybody predict those things," says Joe, and when he says it, he really snarls. He'd much prefer to have some prying body ask him how much pay he draws every two weeks. Or he'll gladly listen to answers to his questions about the Cubs, his first big league love.

That Last Day in Cleveland.

"Take our last day in Cleveland," continued McCarthy. "That was a sample of what happens in baseball. Ivy Andrews shuts us out on four hits. With all our left hand batters we couldn't hit that short right field wall even once. Usually they have to rebuild it after we've left town. Those are the kinds of things that crop up continually to make prophets look bad."

A lot of the Yankee future revolves around three men. At least that is the way McCarthy puts it.

"We won last year because of what Gehrig, Dickey and DiMaggio did both defensively and as hitters. There were others, of course, but it was mainly this trio. That's the way with any winning team. Certain men must be the pacemakers. If nothing happens to Gehrig, DiMaggio or Dickey, we might stagger through."

McCarthy already has spotted the team he thinks might beat the Yanks if the Yanks are beaten. He isn't certain that stiff opposition will not rise up in another spot. His personally picked menace is the Detroit Tigers.

"They're a Tough Team."

"They're a tough team with Cochrane and Greenberg in there," declares the Yankee leader. "The Tigers of this year are just as different from the Tigers of last year as we would be if we should suddenly lose for a long stretch two fellows like Gehrig and Dickey. Give the Tigers a little more pitching and you'll see a race that the spring prophets didn't figure on."

Ask McCarthy about some of his young players and you'll get him to show some unadulterated enthusiasm. He likes Spurgeon Chandler, who had his first start yesterday. McCarthy thinks he has something in Frank Makosky, not for starting but for relief purposes. And if these two lads prove as good as McCarthy anticipates there won't be much reason for further talk about the team's weakness on the mound. Nor will there be any reason for McCarthy to lose sleep over the Tigers.

McCarthy also has an outfielder he is anxious to spring. All that he is waiting on is the opportunity. The player is Tom Henrich, whom the Yanks signed after Commissioner K. M. Landis had made him a free agent.

"Henrich is the swellest prospect to come out of the minors in years," says McCarthy. "He can do anything on the ball field. Every baseball man who watched him at New Orleans last year agrees to this."

Just now Henrich is with the Yankee farm team at Newark.

J. Dean Beats Brooklyn for Fifth Victory

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 9.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean kept right on top as the best pitcher of the season today by winning his fifth straight victory, a 7 to 1 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Before nearly 30,000 fans who packed Ebbetts field Dizzy handcuffed the Dodgers with nine hits, fanned seven, and, in allowing but one earned run, kept his season average at 0.40.

Johnny Hudson's long smash in the ninth should have been an out, but Pepper Martin fell while chasing it and it rolled to the fence for a double. Pinch Hitter Eddie Morgan followed with a double for the Dodgers' only run, depriving Dean of his third shutout.

Dizzy now has pitched forty-six innings this year. His record to date: Three runs [one unearned], thirty-eight hits, forty strikeouts, and five bases on balls.

TURFMEN ADMIT WAR ADMIRAL IS A GREAT HORSE

Rivals Duck Derby Winner in Preakness.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[PICTURE ON NEXT PAGE]

Louisville, Ky., May 9.—War Admiral, winner of yesterday's renewal of the Kentucky Derby, was on the go again tonight, not headed for the homestretch on his own flying legs but aboard an express car attached to a fast passenger train en route to Maryland.

He will drop off at the Pimlico in Baltimore tomorrow, and in the Preakness stakes next Saturday he will endeavor to pick up another $50,000 for his owner, Samuel D. Riddle of Philadelphia.

He left this land of the horse and horsemen with songs of praise ringing in his ears.

"He's the nearest replica of Man o' War which that noted horse has produced in all his 16 years of effort," every turfman agreed today.

"He even wins as Man o' War did," they pointed out, "so easily that he takes all the interest out of a race."

Some Derby Alibis.

There never was any question about Man o' War being this country's superhorse. He was so good, horsemen recalled today, that it lessened his popularity. With only one exception, he always won so easily that the outcome of the race was practically a foregone conclusion before he reached the post.

After watching War Admiral win the Derby yesterday in this same high handed fashion, horsemen here believe it is possible for him to go on unbeaten through his campaign as a 3 year old.

They will know more about that after his test in the Preakness. The only alibi the trainers of some of his Derby victims had was that their charges might not have been at the top of their racing condition yesterday. There will be no excuse of that sort after the Preakness.

Two Are Injured.

War Admiral traveled east in one of the five cars that carried starters in the Derby toward the Atlantic seaboard, but only he and Pompoon were headed directly for Pimlico and the Preakness.

Fairy Hill, Billionaire, Clodion, Sir Damion, Melodist, Court Scandal, and Merrymaker were en route to New York. Their trainers did not appear eager for any more of War Admiral, particularly in the Preakness.

Sir Damion and Clodion came out of the Derby slightly injured. Clodion had some minor cuts about the hind legs. Sir Damion was jumped on as the field rounded the clubhouse turn and suffered a severe cut on his right hind leg. He may be out of training for a time, but Clodion will be ready again within a short time.

Townsend Martin decided to give his colt Court Scandal, which raced all winter in Florida, a rest. This colt will be sent to Martin's farm in New Jersey and will not race again until the late summer.

Louisville Settles Down.

With its great thrill of the year at an end, this city was almost back to normal tonight. Special trains carried thousands of the Derby visitors out of town last night.

Many of them had bet against the winner, but they had one consolation. They had seen a great race horse win the Derby.

SONJA HENIE'S FATHER DIES IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Cal., May 9.—[Special.]—Wilhelm Henie, father of Sonja Henie, ten times world's women's figure skating champion who turned professional after the 1936 Olympic games and subsequently entered motion pictures, died here today.

A clot on the lung was reported to have caused the death of the 65 year old Norwegian who guided his daughter to figure skating fame and served as her adviser in her motion picture and professional skating career. Henie's widow, Selma; Sonja, and Tyrone Power, an actor, were at his bedside when he died.

STILL EUROPE'S BEST

Ulderico Sergo, Olympic bantamweight champion, who whipped Johnny Brown in the 1935 International Golden Gloves bouts, will return to the Stadium May 25 as Europe's bantamweight champion in the sixth annual International Golden Gloves match. He won the European title again last night in Milan.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHEN Stan Haukedahl, University of Wisconsin's first baseman, was issued a baseball shirt bearing No. 13 this spring he made no protest to Coach Douglas. . . . He just brooded, struck out, and popped to the infield. . . . Naturally a good batter, he hit safely only five times for a .135 average in his first eleven games. . . . One day he remarked to George Downer, the Badgers' sport publicity director, that the 13 on his jersey had him down. . . . Downer informed Douglas of the player's mental hazard and the number was changed to 31, whereupon the slugger smashed out seven hits in thirteen times up, scored five runs, and disported himself generally like a big leaguer in Wisconsin's next three contests. . . . Hank Leiber, New York Giant outfielder, predicts that American league batters will bunt Bob Feller out of the league. . . . Bo McMillin of Indiana is rated the best billiard player among Big Ten football coaches. . . . Jack Ryan, son of the former Wisconsin football coach, was awarded a silver cup by the Northwestern University N Men's association as the outstanding freshman athlete and scholar. . . . Ryan won numerals in football and basketball and is an A student. . . .

Sam Francis, Nebraska's great shot putter, has two invitations for summer track trips, one to the orient and one to Europe. . . . Edsel Wibbels, Wolbach, Neb., High school senior, recently threw the discus 154 feet 9 inches to better the national prep record. . . . W. O. Hamilton, for many years track coach and athletic director at the University of Kansas, resigning in 1919, is still a resident of Lawrence, where he sells automobiles. . . . Jack Dempsey paid his own expenses from New York to Dallas and donated his services as a referee in a recent benefit show for Dick Griffin, a former bantamweight contender who has lost his sight. . . . Dick Bartell refused to appear as a guest star on Babe Ruth's radio program because Manager Bill Terry thought the $100 offered wasn't enough. . . . Glen Hardin, Louisiana State's Oympic hurdler, has ordered his young brother to forget track and concentrate on baseball at L. S. U., where young Hardin is considered one of the country's finest hurdlers. . . .

Morris Arnovich, the Jewish player with the Phillies, is from Superior, Wis., which gave Dave Bancroft to the same club 22 years ago. . . . Superior also has given Irl Tubbs and Ernie Nevers to Iowa. . . . Unlike most football coaches, Ray Morrison of Vanderbilt does not identify his plays by numbers. . . . While attending Indiana's football roundup recently Morrison revealed that when he conceives a play he gives it a name which his players are sure to remember. . . . If the play proves to be effective he then gives it a series number and incorporates it into his regular répertoire. . . . Some of the titles by which his pupils first learn his plays are Popeye, Wimp, Olive Oil, Roughhouse, and Palooka. . . . Umpire Harry Geisel wonders what would happen if Umpire and Mrs. Red Ormsby and their twelve children went calling on Umpire and Mrs. Bill Summers and the eight little Summerses. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Bostonian won the $55,000 Preakness stake. . . . The White Sox defeated Washington, 4 to 3, and moved into second place.

Demaree's Homer in 9th Halts Shutout.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 9.—New York's great Carl Hubbell is still going. He made it twenty victories in a row today to the delight of 36,529 who came out to the Polo grounds to see him do about everything. Carl beat the Cubs 4 to 1 and had them shut out until Frankie Demaree socked a homer with two out in the ninth.

Bill Lee, who presided at the last licking Hubbell suffered—in Chicago on July 13 last—gave the superb lefty a scoreless tussle until he weakened in the seventh. At that juncture Joe Moore singled to left, advanced on Mel Ott's sacrifice and stopped at third on Jimmy Ripple's single to left. Johnny McCarthy, Chicago lad who seems to have won his place as the long sought for successor to Bill Terry, then singled to right, Moore scoring and Ripple reaching third. Mancuso flied to Marty and Ripple scored. Whitehead then bounced to Collins.

Statisticians Dig Into Records.

The accomplishment of Hubbell's 20th victory sent statisticians deeper into baseball records. One of the first things discovered was that on a two season basis Rube Marquard, who won 19 straight in 1912, won his last start in 1911 on Oct. 1 against the Cubs, who broke his string the next year.

The formal books thus far have never recorded records carrying from one season to another, but since Hubbell, in hanging up four victories this season, has shown symptoms of going on forever, National league officials announced a thorough search would be made of the facts in earlier consecutive victories over two campaigns. Hubbell's record will be posted accordingly for whatever it seems worth to statistical nuts.

Frey Gets Stolen Base.

The fourth was the third straight inning in which the Cubs got the lead off batsman on first base. Frey led off with a single to center. Hubbell pitched out and Mancuso had Frey trapped ten feet off first. McCarthy juggled the ball enabling Frey to slide into second base. McCarthy was spared an error and Frey was credited with a stolen base. Collins ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then grounded to Chiozza, Frey holding second. Demaree grounded to Hubbell and Frey was run down, Hubbell to Chiozza to Bartel to Chiozza. Demaree was out trying to steal second.

The Giant fourth was the first inning in which either side got two runners on base. After Bartell had fanned, Chiozza walked and stopped at second on Moore's single off the left field wall. Ott popped to Hack and Ripple fouled to Collins.

Circus Catch Stops Cubs.

A circus catch by Moore kept the Cubs from scoring in the fifth. Hack singled with one down. Bottarini flied to Ott, but Jurges singled to center, Hack reaching third. Lee sent a fly to short left and it looked like a Texas leaguer until Moore dived, somersaulted and came up with the ball.

AURORA TRACK OPENS 8 RACE PROGRAM TODAY

Regulars to Return with Derby Over.

Local racing fans will get back to normal today. With the Kentucky Derby out of the way they turned their collective thoughts to the Illinois racing season yesterday and discovered that the horses have been running for a week out at the Fox Valley Jocky club track at Aurora.

Last week at the Kane county racing plant was marked by the absence of the regulars. They were all down at Louisville for the Derby. Despite this lack of familiar faces the meeting has been successful. Opening day brought out 16,200, a record crowd for the Aurora track. Daily attendance has been slightly in excess of last year.

Nominations Close May 15.

Nominations for the $12,000 Illinois Derby, which ends the meeting, close May 15. Racing Secretary Dick Leigh expects a field of twelve or more starters for that race. Officials of the plant will offer larger fields beginning this week. Last week rains and continued cloudy weather held the starting fields down, with mud runners chiefly comprising them. Clear weather assures the fans of a faster track, and horses that like the good going soon will be making their first starts at the Aurora meet.

Today's eight races are headed by the Riverside purse, sixth race on the program, at six furlongs. Entries listed include Paul Kelley's Colonel Ed, which will make its first start since its arrival from California. Boston Sound and Zuni also are slated to go in this event.

Open Eight Race Schedule.

The eight race card today marks the return of that number of races to the daily schedule. Due to the slow track the fields were limited and as a result it was necessary for Secretary Leigh to reduce the daily number of attractions to seven.

Chet Gardner Signs to Ride at Fair Grounds

Chet Gardner, veteran California pilot, is the latest star to file his entry for the inaugural race at the Fair Grounds, River road and North avenue, where Carl Stockholm will open motor racing in standard cars next Sunday.

Gardner is no stranger to Chicago fans, who have watched him in action on every track opened to racing for the last decade. They know him as a driver whose car is always ready to run, a pilot who takes chances but always with the first thought of his rival pilots' safety, but who, when the occasion requires, car find holes through the field that only a man with cold nerve and complete mastery of his car can thread.

He's Popular Pilot.

The coast star is one of the most popular members of the driving profession. When Gardner drives, other pilots ! now there will be keen competition as well as fine sportsmanship throughout the speed battle. He will drive at Indianapolis this year for his tenth appearance in the 500 mile race and wi warm up for the event in his appearance at the fair grounds.

Because of the limited capacity of the box and grandstand Promoter Stockholm is instaling 800 extra seats in the space immediately in front, but lower than the first tier of boxes between the grandstand and the outside rail of the track.

Track Treatment Completed.

The calcium chloride treatment of the track for dust contro! has been completed and the rest of the week until Friday will bc devoted to tuning up spins.

DAVIS WINS TWO CASTING EVENTS, TIES IN THE THIRD

Eddie Davis finished first in two events and tied in the third to win the weekly honors in the outdoor casting meet sponsored by the Illinois Casting club at the Washington park pool yesterday. Results:

THE WINNER, AT EASE

War Admiral, brilliant son of Man o' War, munches hay in his private car en route from Louisville to Pimlico, where next Saturday he will attempt to make it a double by taking the Preakness in stride. Not many of his Derby rivals are going to Pimlico. They would just as soon not hear any more about War Admiral.

OPEN AIR FIGHTS START TONIGHT IN MARIGOLD RING

Three Eight Round Bouts Scheduled.

Tonight's Card

Dominic Manceni vs. Mike Gamiere [8], 138.
Sammy Angott vs. Lou Gallup [8], 130.
Edwin Waling vs. Young Mickey Walker [8], 132.
George Feist vs. Pat O'Brien [4], 127.

Weather permitting, Co-Promoters Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun will present the first of weekly cards to be conducted throughout the summer. The show will be headed by three bouts at eight rounds.

Dominic Manceni, Louisville, Ky., junior welterweight, and Mike Gamiere of Cleveland, who won the Golden Gloves lightweight crown at Chicago Stadium in 1935, will be contestants. So will Sammy Angott, Washington, Pa., junior lightweight, and Lou Gallup, Minneapolis, Minn. Edwin Waling, Detroit 132 pound boxer, clashes with Young Mickey Walker in the other attraction.

Bobby Bruns, Oak Park heavyweight wrestler, who recently ended a successful campaign in the east, will meet Fred Grubmier in the 60 minute windup encounter at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Preliminary matches:

Jack Curtis vs. Jack Kogut.
Sammy Kohn vs. Buck O'Neil.
Jack [Bad Boy] Brown vs. Otto Schnabel.
Lefty Pacer vs. Denny Lentz.

Bert Rubi, Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer, and Paul Miller will compete in three supporting matches to he mat headliner involving Cliff Thiede, Long Beach, Cal., heavyweight, who threw Hans Schnabel last Wednesday, and Jack Conley, who beat Otto Schnabel on the same card, at Rainbo Fronton Wednesday.

Barney Ross, world's welterweight boxing champion, has set up training quarters at Grand Beach along with Braddock.

Ross plans to train with Braddock in rough work for several weeks as preliminary conditioning for a title defense bout, possibly in July.

U. S., AUSTRALIA AGREE ON WEAR AS CUP REFEREE

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Joseph H. Wear of Philadelphia has been selected as referee for the matches between the United States and Australia in the American zone Davis cup finals, it was announced today as the rival teams gathered to begin three weeks of preparation.

The likelihood that the winner between Australia and the United States will reach the challenge round atttaches considerable importance to Wear's position.

Selected with the unanimous approval of the captains and players of both teams, Wear is to hold a series of conferences at Forest Hills this week with Clifford Sproule, nonplaying Australian captain, and Walter L. Pate, American leader. Wear will be the final authority on any disputes concerning rules.

Wear has been chairman of the United States Lawn Tennis association's Davis cup committee three times and captained United States teams abroad in 1928 and 1935. He has held several titles in lawn tennis, court tennis, and racquets.

DISTRICT GOLF BODY OPENS 23D MEET THURSDAY

The Chicago District Golf association will open its 23d season on Thursday with a one day handicap event at the Flossmoor Country club.

In addition to its nine one day handicap events and its regular major events, the association has added a left handed championship and a class handicap championship for classes A, B, and C.

GREYHOUNDS WIN, 3-0.

tournament a team that has high hopes of avenging the five defeats that Chicago's champions have administered to European teams in the past.

Sportsmanship Reigns.

This spirit of coöperation was manifested throughout the European tournament. The sportsmanship of the crowd, which, of course, was largely Italian, is deserving of high praise. Battlers of other countries, when they showed courage and skill, were cheered almost as loudly as were the Italians. When a deserving foreigner trounced one of their own less deserving compatriots, the spectators hailed the victor with a display of fair dealing that has been conspicuously lacking in some other international games.

The eight champions and the representatives of the sixteen nations met tonight after the bouts at a banquet where national rivalries were laid aside for the greater project of beating Chicago.

Tomorrow they will start preparations for the journey to Chicago. The party will sail from Cherbourg on the Berengaria on Thursday and arrive in New York on May 19 and in Chicago on May 21.

Another Trip for Sergo.

Ulderico Sergo, Olympic bantamweight champion, who with Luigi Musina, light heavyweight, will represent Italy, is the only member of the team who has fought in International Golden Gloves. Sergo was the outstanding boxer in the tournament and is expected to repeat his earlier Chicago triumph.

Germany won its two championships with Herbert Nurnberg, lightweight, and Michael Murach, welterweight. Its Olympic heavyweight champion, Herbet Runge, who was a favorite to win the championship in his class, was soundly whipped tonight by Olle Tandberg of Sweden in the outstanding upset of the tournament.

Poland will be represented by Alexander Polus, featherweight, and Henry Chmielewski, whose bout with Gerardus Dekkers of Holland for the middleweight championship was the best of the five day cómpetition.

Crowd Roars Approval.

A capacity crowd roared approval as Ennekes' hand was raised and the first championship bestowed. The little Hungarian outmaneuvered his stouter opponent in the third round, jabbing him off balance repeatedly and lashed out with stinging blows to establish a decisive margin after the first two rounds had been fought on even terms. Sobkowiak, a rugged, hard fisted fellow, lost his opportunity to qualify for the Chicago trip by not forcing the fight and not taking advantage of numerous openings for his hard right hand in the third round.

Both boys showed the strain of preceding bouts, and although their match was slower than each waged in the semi-finals last night, it was filled with action that found ready response in the large crowd. Ennekes is a splendid boxer and made intelligent use of this ability, whereas Sobkowiak fought just as his Hungarian conquerer wished him to.

Sergo Again Rules Europe.

Sergo's determination and superb ability swept the Italian crowd to a pitch of excitement bordering on frenzy as the little Olympic champion again established his bantamweight supremacy over all Europe by soundly whipping the Rumanian, Anton Osca. All this veteran needs now to establish his kingship over the bantamweights of the world is a victory in Chicago, where, in 1935, he defeated Johnny Brown, Chicago Golden Gloves champion, in the international bouts.

Slugging unceasingly and rushing Osca from corner to corner, Sergo piled up his winning margin in the third round. Osca remained very much in the running during the first two rounds, but his best attacks led only to more furious assaults from his veteran opponent. Sergo probably is the finest bantamweight fighter ever developed in Europe. He is a superb all around workman in the ring, combining boxing ability with the willingness and ability to slug when the occasion arises.

Polus Stings with Right.

Alexander Polus, undaunted and possibly underrated Polish featherweight, carried the red and white flag of his country to the top of the theater by a brilliant conquest of Italy's Aldo Cortonesi. Cortonesi had been regarded as a certain winner because of his unusual stamina and punching power. But it was Polus who jabbed and followed with stinging rights in the critical third round.

The two youngsters waged a fierce battle throughout the last round, one that had the crowd on its feet.

And it was the Italian delegation that led the cheering when Polus was declared the champion. Polus richly deserved the right to fight in Chicago and his victory tonight clearly demonstrated the strides Poland has made in boxing since 1934, when Coach Felix Stamm led his boys to Chicago for the International Golden Gloves bouts.

Herbert Nurnberg of Germany exhibited the best form of the tournament in conquering Nicolai Stepulov of Esthonia to win the lightweight championship. Where Nurnberg had rushed blindly in previous tournament appearances, he was cool and calm tonight, boxing expertly to make openings through which he shot sharp, accurately timed punches. Stepulov, Olympic semi-finalist, could not cope with his attack and in the second round was knocked across the ring by a crashing right.

Murach's Victory Unpopular.

Michael Murach of Germany won a very unpopular victory over Jonre Mandi of Hungary in the welterweight final. Twice warned for holding and butting, Murach's victory over the inexperienced Mandi, the most popular fighter in the tournament, brought a roar of disapproval from the gallery. It was a close fight, with Murach's victory resulting largely from Mandi's tired and weakened condition at the end of the bout. This is the weakest class in the tournament and the one in which Chicago undoubtedly will score if it wins any bouts.

It had been predicted that the middleweight championship bout between Chmielewski and Gerandus Dekkers of Holland would be the best fight of the tournament. It was. Dekkers hooked his way to an advantage in the first round, but Chmielewski took the lead in the second round by meeting Dekkers' rushes with smashing rights. The third round resembled a young war and was as even as six and six.

Smash for Smash.

Dekkers knocked the Pole into the ropes, but Chmielewski rallied to punch the Hollander until he staggered around the ring. They exchanged smash for smash and at the end you could have had your choice of a victor. After rechecking the cards, the judges' decision went to Chmielewski and bedlam broke loose in the theater. It is unfortunate that rules of the American invasion prevent taking both of these boys to Chicago.

The uproar continued with the galleries showering paper on the ring in protest. Many of the fans were still shouting for Mandi, the Hungarian. Quiet finally was restored when Italy's Luigi Musina and Franziczek Szymura of Poland began to fight for the lightweight championship. The first round, in which Szymura matched the Italian's infighting with a long, effective left, was even. Musina scored heavily in the second round, although he was trapped in a corner once and severely punched. Szymura tried desperately, but futilely, to stop Musina's attack in the third round, a whirlwind offensive that blew him right out of a trip to Chicago and gave Italy its second European championship.

Tandberg Whips Runge.

The climax of the night and the tournament was reserved for the final bout in which Olle Tandberg of Sweden whipped Herbert Runge, Germany's Olympic champion, for the heavyweight title. Only typical Scandinavian determination enabled young Tandberg to hoist the Swedish flag to the top of the theater with the other European champions. Runge may have been over confident.

Nevertheless, he met his master tonight in a slugging match. Tandberg refused to quit even when exhausted and mastered the German in body punching, clinches and all manner of slugging.

GOLF GRADUATES TO RECEIVE JUST REWARDS SUNDAY

Two More Classes Slated During Week.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The graduating exercises of the fifth annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE will be held next Sunday afternoon at the Jackson park course, 63d street and Stony Island avenue. This was announced yesterday after a conference among officials of the school, following the approval of the Chicago park district, which has for the last two years allowed the use of four of its courses as classrooms for the school.

Jackson park is an ideal course for the finals of the school. Founded in 1899, the south side links is one of the best known of its type in the country, and is annually the scene of the Chicago city amateur tournament, oldest competitive event in local golf. Each year it attracts between 60,000 and 70,000 golfers.

32 in Graduating Class.

From the 15,000 men, women, and children who took last week's first two lesssons on one of the four park courses and who will finish the course with lessons tomorrow and Thursday nights, will come the graduating class of thirty-two prize students. These will be named on Thursday night, when a jury of professionals will choose the two brightest students in each division—men, women, boys and girls—at each course.

These thirty-two will then appear at Jackson park by 2 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. There they will be registered and given armbands by which they will be identified during the judging. The final jury will be composed of members of the Illinois section of the P. G. A., who will rate each pupil on the basis of form in grip, stance and swing. The four winners chosen by them will each receive a bag and a set of clubs awarded by THE TRIBUNE, while the remaining 28 each will receive one dozen of P. G. A. balls.

Promptness Is Urged.

The judging will begin promptly at 2:30 p. m., and should require no more than 40 minutes to complete. Officials of the school are attempting to arrange an exhibition match among four leading tuornament stars as a following attraction.

The third lesson in the school will be given tomorrow night on the same four courses—Jackson, Columbus, Marquette, and Diversey—and the fourth and final on Thursday night. Every pupil is urged to appear by 6:30 p. m. or before. This is particularly true of tomorrow night, when the instruction must be given within a limited space of time, so that the members of the Illinois P. G. A. who are aiding in teaching pupils may be on their way to the annual dinner and golf party which their section is giving at the La Salle hotel.

Thunder River Gets a Surprise Bundle of Trout

BY BOB BECKER.

One of the happiest accidents that a trout fisherman ever heard about has just occurred along the Thunder river in northeastern Wisconsin. [The Thunder is one of the old favorites of many Illinois fishermen.] Due to this accident, several hundred thousand trout, measuring 7 to 10 inches in length, recently swam into the Thunder river when the high water swept against fish containers that had been erected close to the river bank.

Although the plan was to put some of these trout into the Thunder, no one expected all of them to find a home in that stream, since part of the supply was destined to be relayed to other streams near the Thunder. But high water was both bad and good luck, with emphasis on the "good" for the fishermen who like to fish the famous old Thunder river west of Crivitz.

Jack Boyle of Marinette relays to us this story of the trout that ran away. He says that when the rearing tanks became not only very crowded but also frozen, the men decided to save the young trout by putting them in the "ground tanks" immediately adjoining the Thunder. But the construction of these was such that they couldn't hold against the sweep of high water, so it was good-by to the fish. The fishermen doubtless will give three cheers when they hear how many 7 to 10 inchers now call the Thunder their home.

Sparta Ties Maccabees to Keep Pro Title

BY OFFSIDE.

Sparta assured the successful defense of its Chicago Professional league soccer title by playing a 4 to 4 tie with the Maccabees yesterday at Kuppenheimer stadium. Even if the Spartas lose all of their remaining league contests, the title is theirs for another year.

The Maccabees took the lead on Cuthburt's goal thirteen minutes after the game had opened, but Wolf tied it up seven minutes later. The Spartas then went ahead on Wright's goal, but the score was again deadlocked when Lillie beat Sabek. Two minutes before the end of the first half, Wolf gave Sparta a 3 to 2 margin with a goal in combination with Munro.

Wright scored a protested goal eleven minutes through the second period to run the Sparta advantage to 4 to 2, but the Maccabees came back to tie the count on goals by Al Waldron and Stirrett.

The Schwabens of the International Major division took first place in the league standing by defeating the Vikings, 10 to 0. Vic Absil scored six goals. The Swedish-Americans started celebration of their twenty-fifth anniversary by routing the Viennas, 6 to 0. Other scores:

ATHLETICS WHIP DETROIT; GAIN TIE FOR LEAGUE LEAD

March Upward with 9-8 Triumph.

Detroit, Mich., May 9.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics overcame a six run lead today, defeated the Detroit Tigers, 9 to 8, and jumped into a tie with Cleveland for the American league leadership.

A big seventh inning in which the Athletics scored six runs and drove Elden Auker from the mound set the stage for their victory.

Gerald Walker, slugging Detroit outfielder, went hitless until the ninth inning and then ran his hitting streak to 15 games with a home run.

Bill Lee Last Pitcher to Win Against Hubbell

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 9.—Bill Lee, who today suffered his fourth defeat of the year in a stubborn effort to stop Carl Hubbell at nineteen straight got the last decision registered against the Giants' stellar left hander. The game was played in Chicago July 13, 1936, in a Monday encounter which drew only 7,299 customers.

In the fourth inning of that game Herman walked and advanced on Galan's sacrifice. After covering first on the sacrifice Whitehead tried to surprise Herman with a throw to Bartell, at second, but surprised Bartell instead. The ball went to left field, Herman progressing to third. O'Dea, who had replaced Hartnett in the first inning, singled to left, Herman scoring the only run of the game. The Cubs made only two hits off Hubbell, who went out for a pinch batter in the seventh. Frank Gabler finished and did not allow a Cub to reach first base. Lee allowed only four hits, and Mancuso, who got the only extra base hit, a double in the fifth, was the only Giant to reach third.

Clyde Shoun is scheduled to pitch for the Cubs tomorrow in the second game of the three game series with the Giants. The youth probably will be opposed by Old Man Fred Fitzsimmons.

The crowd of 36,529 was a gala one. Yesterday's cold snap disappeared as suddenly as it came. It was a sporting crowd, too.

Hubbell and Giants Win Over Cubs, 4-1

Then came the aforesaid home seventh, after which Hubbell seemed more determined than ever. Bottarini and Jurges struck out in the eighth. Hartnett batted for Lee and singled to left. Stainback ran for Hartnett, but the inning ended when Moore went far back for Galan's fly.

Frey led off the ninth with his third straight single, but Collins tapped into a double play. Demaree then ducked the impending shut out with a homer into the right field stands. Marty reached third on the only error of the game on Chiozza's high throw. The game ended with Hack's foul to Chiozza.

The Yankees' first serious threat came in the sixth and they gummed it up themselves. Hoag led off with a single to center. He broke for second as Chandler swung for a third strike. Sewell threw the ball to Appling and Hoag turned back toward first, but Appling's relay to Bonura nailed him. Piet then threw out Crosetti.

The Sox sixth also started promisingly. Lee opened with a roller to Rolfe and the Yankee third baseman fumbled. Nothing came of the error because the next three batters bounced to either Crosetti or Lazzeri.

Double Play Helps.

The Yankee seventh started out to be the heartbreaker for Lee, but it terminated with nothing worse than the tying run home. Rolfe stirred up trouble with an infield hit to Piet. Steinbacher put a real storm cloud over the Sox hopes by getting under a high fly by Di Maggio and then letting it trickle through his hands.

Gehrig was given orders to bunt and he did. The poke dropped dead in front of the plate. Sewell picked it up and rifled it to Piet to force Rolfe at third. Piet also turned loose a rifle shot and it reached Bonura in time to double Gehrig, who had traveled leisurely down to first base. Gehrig was under the impression the bunt had landed foul.

Then Dickey brought the Yanks' lone run of the afternoon into full bloom. He doubled off the right field wall and Di Maggio hustled home from second. The third out came on Lazzeri's grounder to Appling. And a moment later Bonura came along with the homer which definitly settled the day's business.

Ted Lyons, whose over the shoulder delivery has been known to give the Yankees a lot of trouble, will start for the White Sox in the second of the series at Comiskey park today. Monte Pearson, who won 19 while losing 7 for the champions last year, will oppose Lyons.

Coach Art Fletcher, who is responsible for watching the new baseballs for the Yanks during batting practice, was highly indignant yesterday because souvenir hunters dashed out on the field and stole about $15 worth. The practice is becoming common in many parks, due to the lack of vigilance on the part of the club owners.

Duffy Florals and Mills Split Double Header

The Duffys took the first game, 6 to 2, scoring four runs off Pete Beam in the tenth inning after Lefty Sullivan, the starting Mills pitcher, had given way to a pinch batter in the ninth. The Mills won the second game, 7 to 2, behind Jim Vaughan.

The Spencer Coals routed Grover Cleveland Alexander's Connors Empires, 11 to 3, in the first game of a double-header yesterday at Spencers Coal park, then won the second contest, 5 to 2. Alexander started the second game for the Empires, but retired with a lame arm after pitching a three and one count to the first batter.

Hartford, Conn., May 9.—(AP)—Fred Perry defeated Ellsworth Vines, 8-6, 1-6, 6-4, today as the touring tennis professionals played the 58th match of their nation-wide tour before a crowd of 1,500 at the Hartford Golf club courts. The victory cut Vines' lead, in matches, over his rival to 30 to 28, with three more matches to be played.

RYDER CUP TEAM SAILS JUNE 16 FOR ENGLISH MATCHES

New York, May 9.—(AP)—The United States Ryder cup professional golf team will sail for England on the Manhattan, June 16, it was announced today. The ten players and Walter Hagen, nonplaying captain of the team, are due to arrive June 22, a week before the opening of the international test on the Southport and Ainsdale course.

In addition to Hagen, six members of the team already have been chosen and a squad of 13 leading professionals has been named to compete for the four open places. The other members will be chosen on the basis of their performances in the 36 hole qualifying test for the national P. G. A. championship at Pittsburgh starting May 24 and the 72 holes of the national open at Detroit June 10.

The players already selected are Densmore Shute, Tony Manero, Johnny Revolta, Henry Picard, Horton Smith, and Gene Sarazen. Those named as the contesting squad for the other places are Craig Wood, Dick Metz, Paul Runyan, Ed Dudley, Sam Snead, Vic Ghezzi, Jimmy Hines, Ray Mangrum, Harold McSpaden, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl, Olin Dutra, and Ky Laffoon.

CAULIFLOWER EAR TEST
LA PALINA Laboratory of Pseudo Pscience

Can cauliflower ears be cured or remodelled by the smoking of La Palina Excellente 5¢ cigars?

Some of our Pscientists went to the mat on this problem. Others kissed the canvas in their Pscientific zeal. They wrestled and battled for days on end.

When we finally pinned down Professor Tipple, he only grunted — "Hello Mom! Gee! I'm glad I won."

We left him sucking a sponge while pink cauliflowers sprouted on each of his ears.

Well, let's stop wrestling and battling with the heavy-weight problems of life and relax with the mild luxury of La Palina Excellente 5¢ cigar.

INTERNATIONAL TRUCK SALES Tripled on NEW line!

First Month's Sales THREE TIMES any Previous Month in International History

Thirty days ago Chicago had its first view of the new International Trucks. In these thirty days Chicago truck users have signified their approval by a flood of orders that have eclipsed all previous International sales records.

That's putting it very mildly.

The fact is that this past month the International branches in the Chicago area have sold to users THREE TIMES AS MANY TRUCKS as ever before in Chicago in any 30-day period in International history. And Chicago has been International-minded for years, as anybody can see who counts truck noses on the streets.

The advanced styling of the new International Truck speaks for itself, and International Harvester speaks for what is underneath—new engineering, advanced efficiency throughout. A full new line, Half-Ton to big Six-Wheelers, capacities and bodies for every type of load. Stop in at our showroom nearest you and look over the display. Or we will send a man and truck to you at your convenience.

HARRY S. NEW, FATHER OF U. S. AIR MAIL, DIES

Ex-Postmaster General, Former U. S. Senator.

Baltimore, Md., May 9.—[Special.]—Harry S. New, former postmaster general and former United States Senator from Indiana, died at 10:30 o'clock tonight in Johns Hopkins hospital, which he entered a week ago for observation. He was 79 years old.

Harry S. New.

Mrs. New, who remained with her husband throughout his illness, was with him when he died. Dr. Dean Lewis, his physician, did not disclose the nature of his illness, but according to one report the former Republican leader was treated for pneumonia.

After his retirement from the cabinet in 1929, Mr. New lived at suburban Chevy Chase, Md., and hunted and fished at his lodge at Turtle Lake, Mich. He emerged only once into the public eye—as United States commissioner to A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago in 1933 and 1934.

Career as Newspaper Man.

Harry Stewart New rose to prominence through 25 years of newspaper work and a longer period of party and public service, which culminated in his being postmaster general from 1923 to 1929. In that post he was credited with fathering the air mail, for it was shortly after he took office under President Harding that 36 hour transcontinental service was established.

His newspaper work consisted of being reporter, editor and publisher of the Indianapolis Journal from 1878 to 1903. In later years he headed the Bedford Stone and Construction company.

From 1896 to 1900 he was a member of the Indiana senate, interrupting his activities to serve as a captain and an assistant adjutant general of volunteers in the Spanish American war. From 1900 to 1912 he was on the Republican national committee, serving as chairman in 1907 and 1908.

War Aviation Knowledge.

He began his term in the United States senate in 1917 and as a member of the military affairs committee contributed to the development of America's program of coöperation with the allies, especially in expanding aviation facilities. As a member of the foreign relations committee after the war, he stood stanchly with Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge in opposition to the treaty of Versailles and the league of nations.

His desk in the senate chamber stood near that of Warren G. Harding and he and Harding became fast friends. When New was defeated in the senatorial primary of 1922 by Albert J. Beveridge [who was in turn beaten by Democrat Samuel M. Ralston], Mr. Harding, then President, appointed New to his cabinet.

Mr. New was born in Indianapolis, the son of Col. John C. New, who was quartermaster general of Indiana during the civil war.

He studied at Butler university and spent three years in Europe while his father was consul general in London.

New was married first to Kathleen V. Milligan and second, in 1891, to Catherine McLean. From 1923 to 1925 he was grand consul of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Plowing Started.

May 9, 1937.

THE season's round of plowing and planting was started at the Wheaton farm last week. The first plowing of the year was done Friday afternoon, when workers began breaking the fields where experimental crops are to be grown.

Like other farmers in this region, the Wheaton farm force is at least three weeks behind with field work. They are working late and early, and are expecting to work at night to offset the serious delay. Even the oats are yet to be sown.

Fortunately much of the land to be seeded this spring was broken last fall. With a full force of men, tractors, and teams in the fields, the farm manager expects the ordering and planting work to progress rapidly, provided the weather is favorable.

Fall Sown Grain Up.

While the recent heavy rains and lack of sunshine have seriously retarded plowing and planting this spring, fall sown small grain, pastures and meadows are now thriving where the plants were not winter killed. In the low, rich places rye at the farm is making an excellent showing; some of the plants measured Friday are more than eight inches tall. The stand is thin on the higher ground, where some of the rye was winter killed. Fall sown wheat is four or five inches tall and has a good color.

In experimental field A artichokes left in the ground at digging time last fall began coming through the ground last week. Young hop vines are starting to climb up on the trellises; several inches have been added to the length of the vines within the last week.

Legume crops, including several varieties of clovers and lespedezas, have been greatly benefited by the rains.

With favorable weather, both the early and midseason crops will be started in the demonstration vegetable garden the first of this week. The earliest crops to be planted already have been printed in this column.

Second Crop Chosen.

The second group of midseason crops will be started in the vegetable garden the last of this week. These include golden Detroit celery, snowball cauliflower, Penn state ballhead midseason cabbage, black king eggplant, California wonder peppers, select earliana early tomatoes, marglobe late tomatoes, table queen squash, and bush and everbearing pumpkins.

About the middle of next week the gardeners expect to start cucumbers.

Several readers have offered the farm manager free access to their wild patches of milkweeds. Workers are planning to dig the milkweed roots this week and transport them to the farm, where an acre of the crop will be grown for commercial purposes this season.

DAWES OFFERS NEW PROPHECY ON TRADE TREND

Sees Prosperity, Dip and Recovery.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

A high degree of prosperity for the next two years.

A stock market collapse in the summer or fall of 1939.

A period of prosperity following this recession.

Gen. Dawes.

These are the predictions made by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the board of the City National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago and former Republican Vice President of the United States, in his book, "How Long Prosperity?" published by the A. N. Marquis company for release today.

Unlike most financiers, Gen. Dawes has boldly stripped his forecast of qualifications and hedge clauses. He makes only one condition—that all bets are off in case there should be either wars or inflation of the currency.

Dawes Challenges Economists.

In risking his reputation as a forecaster of business and market trends the author seemingly invites the derisive criticism that would be his in case his predictions should not pan out. He stirs up the animals by reminding professional economists that he was right and they were wrong in calling the turn of the business cycle two years ago.

Col. Leonard Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company and chairman of the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' association, is given a couple of polite jabs, and Roger Babson and Dr. H. Parker Willis, professor of banking at Columbia university, are similarly taken to task for having differed with the original Dawes prediction that midsummer of 1935 would see the beginning of sustained upturn in the heavy industries.

Dawes Sticks By Theories.

Undeterred by past criticism by economists that his "methodology" is faulty and that the materialization of his previous forecast was a coincidence, Gen. Dawes employs the same yardsticks and philosophy in his latest attempt to solve the mysteries of the business cycle.

The underlying theme in his book is that major swings in business and the accompanying stock market trends are primarily the result of changes in the attitude of the public as a whole. Thus, he says, he finds the secret of changes in the business cycle in mass psychology rather than in mathematical computations.

By laying the business charts covering previous periods of depression and prosperity one on top of the other the author comes to the conclusion that there is a remarkable similarity in the length of time that has elapsed in each case between each peak and valley of the cycle.

Method Proves Successful.

This method having proven successful in his forecast of impending recovery in the steel industry two years ago, the author employs it in his new book by assuming that trends during the next six years will follow approximately the pattern shown in the periods following the major depressions beginning in 1873 and 1893.

"The chart shows that in the two former periods," he says—in large bold face type—

"First, that in the tenth year after the initial stock price collapse in both the 1873 period and the 1893 period, there occurred a stock collapse marking in each case the commencement of a minor business recession.

"Second, that these minor business recessions [known as those of 1884 and 1904] lasted in the 1884 period approximately two years, and in the 1904 period approximately one year.

"Third, that prosperous business conditions then ensued.

Then Makes Predictions.

"I predict, therefore, barring wars or inflation of the currency:

"First, that a high degree of prosperity will maintain in this country into 1939.

"Second, that beginning in the latter part of the year October, 1938-October, 1939 [the tenth year from Oct. 29, 1929] to wit: in the summer or fall of 1939, there will be a stock market collapse.

"Third, that there will then ensue in the United States a minor recession in business of one or two years.

"Fourth, that this recession will

Steel Output Holds Steady in Last Week

Steel ingot production last week held steady at 91 per cent of theoretical capacity of the industry, the magazine Steel reported yesterday. Small gains in operating rates at some points were offset by partial shutdowns for repairs in other centers.

The operating rate at Pittsburgh rose 3 points to 93, and at Wheeling the rate rose 6 points to 94 per cent. Cincinnati was operating at 94 per cent, up four points from the preceding week, and eastern Pennsylvania gained three points to 73½ per cent.

Chicago lost 2½ points to 83; Youngstown, 4 points to 83; Buffalo, 1 point to 92; and New England, 3 points to 90. Other points were unchanged, with Cleveland at 71½, Birmingham at 83, Detroit at 100, and St. Louis at 94 per cent.

New Buying at Good Rate.

New buying of steel continues at a good rate in comparison with any comparable period except last March, when orders were at an abnormally high rate. Tonnage on books is sufficient for several weeks and in some cases well into the fall. Consumption of steel continues strong and buying should hold up well in view of present conditions, according to the magazine.

Steel mills for the most part have too much domestic business already booked to accept much of the attractive export inquiry, even at the tempting premiums offered. One interest has booked 25,000 tons of pig iron for export to Japan at $2 a ton higher than the domestic market.

Auto Output Sets Record.

Automobile production last week totaled 141,525 cars, compared with the previous all-time weekly high of 140,800 cars, set during April, 1929. Orders were placed during April for 9,772 railroad freight cars, bringing the total for the first four months this year to 40,705, the highest for that period since 1929.

British steel makers have advanced prices about a pound a ton, equivalent to $4.93, in view of the strong market there and on the continent.

Continued decline in steel making scrap prices, especially at Pittsburgh, where another drop of 50 cents a ton was reported late last week, reduced steel's scrap composite 81 cents to $18.79, equaling the level of the first week of February. The same influence caused a decline of 11 cents in the iron and steel composite to $40.14.

BANK CLEARINGS, JOBS TELL STORY OF BRITISH GAINS

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 9.—The active state of British trade has received further confirmation from employment figures and provincial bank clearings. The number of work people employed on April 19 was 152,000 above a month before and 609,000 above the total a year before, while provincial bank clearings in April were 22 per cent higher than in April, 1936.

Shipping under construction in Great Britain at the end of March amounted to 1,014,454 tons, the highest since the September quarter of 1930 and the first to exceed 1,000,000 tons since that time. Steel plants still are working at capacity except where lack of raw materials is restricting activity. Coal production and exports continue to rise, while the improvement in the cotton industry is well maintained.

Dr. Raymond Moley to Talk Before Illinois Bankers

Dr. Raymond Moley, magazine editor and former adviser to President Roosevelt, will address the 47th annual convention of the Illinois Bankers' association in Chicago May 24 and 25. This announcement was made last night by Martin A. Graettinger, executive vice president of the association. Two other speakers, he said, will be J. F. T. O'Connor, controler of the currency, and Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator.

New Generator to Be Built for Long Island Lighting

New York, May 9.—(AP)—The Long Island Lighting system reported completion of arrangements for installation of a new 75,000 kilowatt turbogenerator unit in its key station at Glenwood Landing, N. Y., bringing the capacity of the station to 170,000 kilowatts. The generator unit will be supplied by General Electric company, and the accompanying steam condenser by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

AVIATION FIRMS REPORT ORDERS CROWD PLANTS

World Demand Rises for U. S. Planes.

New York, May 9.—(AP)—American aircraft manufacturers who worried the last few years about getting orders for their products have new worries today—how to fill the orders they have on hand.

An unprecedented wave of buying by domestic air lines, renewed interest of private individuals in purchasing and flying their own craft, and the European armament race have all contributed to the condition which for the first time in years has brought a flush of health to this country's aeronautical industry.

From the larger plants producing commercial airliners or giant war craft come reports of advance orders sufficient to keep all workmen busy for months. And smaller shops—those that turn out no more than two or three tiny planes a week—are also busy as the buying bug hits less wealthy but more plentiful private pilots.

Leadership of United States.

The reason, representatives of the industry explain, is two-fold: the asserted leadership of the United States in the design and production of commercial planes for private or transport use, and the inability of foreign buyers to obtain equipment from European factories, whose outputs are devoted entirely to building fleets of war birds.

During the first three months of 1937, said the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce today, sales of American aircraft, aircraft engines, and spare parts totaled $20,496,517, an increase of 67.6 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. A total of 392 commercial aircraft, valued at $4,322,262, were delivered to owners in the last three months, said the chamber's survey, against 183 machines, worth $1,519,605 in the first quarter of 1936. The remainder of the January, February, and March output consisted of military aircraft and equipment.

Ninty-six military aircraft were delivered by American manufacturers to this and other governments, 171 in the first quarter of 1936, but the value of military production rose from $3,137,047 in the first three months of 1936 to $4,759,454 in the like portion of this year.

Large Douglas Orders.

The Douglas Aircraft company now has commercial orders totaling $11,000,000 on its books—in addition to joint orders of the major American air lines for specimens of a super-transport with four motors, which is yet far from the flying stage.

The Lockheed company is $3,000,000 behind on its air line orders. On the east coast the Grumman Aircraft Engineering company and Sikorsky Aircraft on Long Island had unfilled military contracts of $845,946 and $396,500, respectively, on Jan. 1.

The Martin company at Baltimore—which recently announced a new super-clipper plane even larger than those flying the Pacific—is pushed to complete a huge order for army bombers, while in Seattle the Boeing Aircraft company still has several super-bombers under contract for the army before turning its entire attention to a new type, high altitude transport plane for Transcontinental and Western Air.

Army Engine Orders.

Unfilled army contracts for airplanes as of Jan. 1, 1937, were placed by Aviation magazine at $29,411,951, with unfilled military engine orders, divided between Pratt & Whitney company and the Wright Aeronautical corporation at $9,095,396.

The business of manufacturing transport planes—in which American builders have invaded the Holland, Polish, German, French, Swiss, Swedish, and even the English markets, seems to be sort of an endless chain affair, aviation experts explained.

"Operators are constantly calling for faster, bigger, safer, more economic equipment," they said. "And as long as the manufacturers can supply the desired planes and engines they are assured of more orders than they can fill."

Everyday Economics

In response to requests from readers for simple explanations of financial terms and brief analyses of factors affecting business and finance, The Tribune presents "Everyday Economics." Letters addressed to "Editor, Everyday Economics," telling him what you would like to see discussed here will be welcomed.

The Executor.

One of the most cherished of human rights is that relating to property—the accumulation, preservation, and distribution of one's wealth. Administration of an estate is involved, technical and laborious, and the executor, who conserves and distributes the estate as set forth in a will, has many duties demanding the exercise of sound business judgment, detailed knowledge of taxes and legal implications.

He must have unquestioned integrity, skill in negotiation, and efficiency in accounting. Some individuals are qualified to handle these duties, but many persons who have large holdings prefer to place a trust company or bank in charge of their estates because in this way more than one person has a part in the administration.

Individual executors might prove incompetent, lacking in business judgment, or might not be impartial. The individual might move from the state during the period of probate—the period in which the estate is under court jurisdiction—and thereby be disqualified. Or the individual might die or be too ill to attend to his duties.

In many cases a relative or business is named co-trustee along with the corporate [trust company] executor.

Estates of less than $25,000 are not usually handled by large banks or trust companies because the relative cost of carrying out the provisions of the will is higher than for a large estate and too large a fee is necessary to compensate for the stewardship. However, estates of any size will be taken. Small banks or individuals most frequently handle the small estates.

Tomorrow: Trustee Under the Will.

Fidelity Mutual Reports 7.7 Per Cent Gain in April

Philadelphia, Pa., May 9.—(AP)—New paid life insurance of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance company of Philadelphia for April totaled $2,414,000, an increase of 7.7 per cent over April, 1936, Walter Lemar Talbott, president, reported today.

CHICAGO TRADE CONTINUES WELL ABOVE YEAR AGO

Both wholesale and retail trade in Chicago last week continued well ahead of the corresponding period a year ago, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Pay rolls and employment made small gains, although several individual plants have made some curtailment in labor.

Rents were still rising in the more desirable locations. The association reported a growing concern among business men as a result of the shortage of new building in the city.

Public utilities and railroads reported better business this year, with the latter booking an unusually heavy amount of vacation travel.

Indiana Steel Products Reports 39c a Share Profit

Net earnings of the Indiana Steel Products company of Chicago amounted to $38,943, equal to 39 cents a share on the common stock, in the first quarter of 1937, A. D. Plamondon Jr., president, announced last night. No comparable figures are available, as earnings were not reported on a quarterly basis a year ago.

FINDS LIVING COSTS NOW 23% ABOVE LOW POINT OF DEPRESSION

The cost of living was 0.5 per cent higher in April than in March, and 5.9 per cent higher than in April, 1936, the National Industrial Conference Board reported yesterday. It was 23.2 per cent higher than in April, 1933, the low point of the depression, but is still 10.8 per cent below the level of April, 1929.

Rents advanced 1.2 per cent in April over March, making them 12.3 per cent higher than in April, 1936, and 35.9 per cent above their lowest point in recent years in January, 1934. Rents in April, this year, were only 7.5 per cent below the level of April, 1929, according to the board's report.

Clothing prices in April were 3.3 per cent above the level of a year ago, and 25.5 per cent above the low point in 1933, but were still 22.9 per cent below the level of April, 1929. Food prices in April were 7.9 per cent above April, 1936, and 43.0 per cent above the low of 1933, but 15.1 per cent lower than in April, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar was 113.3 cents in April this year, compared with 113.8 in March, 119.9 in April, 1936, and 100 cents in 1923.

Registration of Autos Sets Record in '36

Washington, D. C., May 9.—[Special.]—Motor vehicle registrations in the United States reached a new all-time high of 28,221,291 in 1936, surpassing the 1935 figure by nearly 2,000,000 and the previous record of 1930 by 1,700,000, the bureau of public roads announced today. The figures were based on reports from state authorities.

Of the 28,221,291 registrations, 24,197,685 were passenger vehicles and 4,023,606 trucks and tractors, the report stated.

New York Leads Nation.

New York registrations showed a 5.3 per cent rise to 2,453,542, producing revenues of $46,291,000. New York had the greatest registrations of any state in the country, with California a close second.

Although there was only about 100,000 difference between the 2,327,984 California registration figure and that of New York, California's income from its auto fees was only $21,087,000, less than half of the New York figure.

Registration and miscellaneous auto receipts for the entire country in 1936 amounted to $359,783,000. While trucks and tractors accounted for less than 15 per cent of the registration, they produced nearly 24 per cent of the receipts, the report showed.

Every State Shows Gain.

Every state showed an increase over 1935 and 16 states showed gains of more than 10 per cent each. The average increase for the entire country was 7.6 per cent.

Pennsylvania ranked third in motor car registrations with a total of 1,918,116, while receipts were $35,331,000. Ohio had a total of 1,777,048 registrations for nine months, putting it in fourth place, while its receipts were $23,256,000. Illinois was in fifth place with 1,659,750 registrations and receipts of $19,410,000. Nevada was in last place with 38,509 registrations and receipts of $279,000.

BANK CLOSINGS SINCE HOLIDAY IN '33 TOTAL 323

Washington, D. C., May 9.—[Special.]—Since the resumption of banking after the holiday of March, 1933, 323 licensed banks have suspended, involving deposits of $205,273,000, according to figures given out by the Federal Reserve board today. The figures do not include nonlicensed banks placed in liquidation or receivership after the bank holiday.

Nine banks, six of which were insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, failed in the January-March period of 1937. They had deposits of $1,221,000.

RESERVE BOARD GRIP TIGHTENED ON BANK CREDIT

Loans to Industry Show Increase.

Washington, D. C., May 9.—[Special.]—Elimination of about $3,000,000,000 in excess reserves of member banks through an increase in reserve requirements placed the federal reserve system in an advantageous position normally to control the national credit situation through open market operations—sale or purchase of government securities—at a time when it was feared inflation might run wild, the federal reserve board stated in its monthly bulletin issued today. A detailed analysis of financial activities of the last few months was presented.

The bulletin also showed that a decrease in the investment portfolio of banks in recent months has been accompanied by an increase in all types of loans. Most of the increase in bank loans has reflected extension of credit for commercial, industrial, and agricultural purposes, the board said.

Loans Rise Sharply.

"During the last year so-called 'other' loans, which may be considered as roughly indicative of the extension of bank credit for commercial, industrial and agricultural purposes, have increased steadily, except for a decline in January of this year.

"From early February to April 21 their growth amounted to $360,000,000, about half of which was in New York City, and the other half spread over all the federal reserve districts."

The board announced that henceforth member banks will be asked for separate reports on commercial, industrial and agricultural loans instead of mingling them with other items. The revised bank condition statement will make its first appearance following the week of May 12.

World-Wide Price Rises.

There was a general world-wide advance of prices from October to March, resulting chiefly from the greater volume of domestic and foreign buying both for industrial and armament purposes. The report indicated improvement in the general business picture domestically and abroad.

Discussing the reserve requirement situation the board said:

"When the board of governors on Jan. 30 increased member bank reserve requirements to the full extent author-

"Why should I have my attorney draw my Will?"

A WILL is a legal document. Before its terms become operative, it must be filed in a Probate Court and qualify as a proper instrument for the transfer of property. Your attorney is fitted by training and experience to draw your Will on a sound, legal basis. How the document is signed, how it is witnessed, and whether its provisions are within the law, are but a few of the important details to which he will give his attention. In addition, you may count on him to make valuable suggestions in regard to the structure of your estate plans.

For 47 years now The Northern Trust Company has been privileged to work with estate owners and their attorneys in planning the provisions of Wills. The experience gained in meeting the administrative problems of many hundreds of estates is available without obligation to you and your attorney.

DAWES OFFERS NEW PROPHECY ON TRADE FUTURE

Sees Prosperity, Setback and Recovery.

be followed by a period of prosperity."

Gen. Dawes finds the outlook for the next two years exceedingly good. "Current business commentators, in my judgment, have thus far considerably underestimated the extent during the next two years of coming prosperity and business activity in all lines, especially in fundamental durable goods, including steel and iron," he says.

"We now are still facing a great stored up potential demand for durable goods and it is already pressing upon productive capacity in finished steel and iron."

He deprecates the currently expressed fears of many financiers that "easy money" and low interest rates threaten another speculative credit collapse, asserting that the public isn't yet ready for another period of speculative folly. When it does come, however, he says that attempts by government officials to check it will be ineffective.

Asked whether he believed the predicted "minor recession" would end just before or just after the next presidential election in 1940, Gen. Dawes said in an interview that he did not care to go beyond the published forecast which would place the revival somewhere between the summer of 1940 and the fall of 1941.

Steel Output Is Example.

When Gen. Dawes on Dec. 12, 1934, first predicted that sustained recovery in demand for durable goods would begin in June or July, 1935, the "Iron Age" estimate of steel ingot production stood at 33 per cent of plant capacity. In July, 1935, steel mills were operating at 35 per cent of capacity. Immediately thereafter began an almost steady upturn and the current "Iron Age" estimate places ingot production at approximately 92 per cent of plant capacity.

The author has placed a chart showing this trend opposite the page in his book in which the he reproduces published remarks in June, 1935, by Ayres, Babson and Willis in which the three economists disagreed with his optimistic forecast of a big upturn in the demand for durable goods.

Continental-Illinois Bank.

Investors' Guide: Kindly send information regarding Continental-Illinois bank common stock.—R. J. M.

Answer: The Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, Chicago, is the nation's fifth largest bank in point of total deposits. It represents a consolidation of the Continental National Bank and Trust company and the Illinois Merchants Trust and Savings bank, with predecessor institutions dating back to 1857.

Late in 1933, to strengthen a position weakened by the sharp decline in securities and other assets during four depression years, a recapitalization was effected. The $75,000,000 of common stock was reduced to $25,-000,000 by changing par value of the shares from $100 to $33 1-3, and $50,000,000 of preferred stock was sold.

Since that time the bank has enjoyed sharp recovery in assets previously charged off or written down, and $15,000,000 worth of the preferred stock has been retired out of earnings and recoveries. As preferred stock is retired the common stock is increased by a corresponding amount through common stock dividends.

Including $3,915,000 profit on securities and $10,987,000 losses and depreciation after deducting recoveries, net income was $3,953,000 or $2.43 per share on the 750,000 shares of common stock outstanding in 1934, after providing for preferred stock dividends.

Net income in 1935 was $10,677,000 or $11.89 per common share after $7,122,000 profit on securities and deducting $9,250,000 for losses less recoveries.

Net income jumped to $21,495,000 or $22.15 per share on the 900,000 common shares outstanding in 1936. The total included $9,386,000 profit on sale of securities and no deduction was made for losses.

For the first three months of 1937 net income was estimated at $4,109,-000 or $3.42 a share on the 1,200,000 shares of common stock outstanding after issuance of 300,000 shares Feb. 1 as a stock dividend in connection with retirement of $10,000,000 of preferred stock.

Total deposits were $1,109,980,000 at the end of 1936, compared with $1,021,-313,000 a year earlier.

Loans and discounts were $261,705,-000, holdings of government obligations were $558,185,000, and cash was $335,805,000 at the end of 1936.

Dividends of $1 a share were paid Feb. 1, 1936, Aug. 1, 1936, and Feb. 1, 1937. Prior to that dividends had been omitted since Jan. 2, 1933.

RESERVE BOARD GRIP TIGHTENED ON BANK CREDIT

Loans to Industry and Trade Show Gain.

ized by law [the first effective March 1 and the final increase May 1] this action was taken for the purpose of removing from the credit base a large volume of unnecessary reserves arising entirely from the inflow of gold from abroad and constituting the basis of a possible injurious credit expansion.

Formerly Ineffective.

"So long as member banks had a volume of reserves far in excess of legal requirements the customary instruments of credit policy, open market operations and discount rates, were wholly ineffective.

"This was for the reason that withdrawals of reserves through open market sales could have been met by member banks out of excess reserves without the necessity of borrowing from the reserve banks.

"Through the elimination of about $3,000,000,000 of excess reserves the federal reserve system was brought into closer contact with the market and was placed in a position where sales or purchases in the open market could tighten or ease credit conditions in accordance with the public interest. In this way open market operations, a far more flexible instrument of credit policy than changes in reserve requirements, have once more become an effective means of exerting the system's influence on credit conditions."

Reiterates Easy Money Policy.

The board reiterated its policy of easy money. When the reserve requirements were increased the board said that the system proposed "to continue its policy of exerting its influence toward the maintenance of easy money conditions for the encouragement of full economic recovery.

"In harmony with this policy, when disturbed conditions developed in the money market in March, the federal open market committee decided to increase the system's portfolio of United States government obligations for the purpose of preventing disorderly conditions in the money market and also facilitating the adjustment of member banks to the final increase in reserve requirements," the board said.

CORN IS KING; OUTSELLS WHEAT IN HOME MARKET

Shortage Upsets Normal Price Relationship.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Corn became a more valuable commodity than wheat in the Chicago grain market. It is one of the rare occasions when a combination of market factors results in throwing out of line the traditional price relationship between the two grains.

By midyear the 1937 wheat crop will be moving to market. The existing reserve supply will cover the needs of the country between now and harvest. The harvest of the 1937 corn crop, however, will not occur until some time after the winter wheat harvest.

Because of this and the shortage of supplies resulting from last years' short crop there is now being witnessed the unusual spectacle of Argentine and South African corn dominating the market in the center of the American corn belt.

Foreign Corn Invades Midwest.

The foreign corn brought into Chicago in the last few days is being redistributed from this market. Some of it is being shipped to central Illinois, the center of one of the richest corn producing sections in the United States. It is competing with domestic corn in this market despite the cost of transporting it thousands of miles from the source of production.

Consumption of corn in the United States varies sharply from year to year, according to production. This is in contrast with the consumption of wheat, which remains fairly steady from year to year. In former years, when the country experienced a corn crop failure and prices skyrocketed, farmers got along with less corn and commercial processors bought what they could get at stiff prices. Consumption over a period of years has equaled production.

Wheat Trade Is Variable.

The contrary has been true of wheat. When a surplus over domestic requirement was produced the country shipped abroad all the wheat for which it could find a market. When a deficiency in domestic production occurred, as in recent years, the United States has imported wheat.

Now the country has also become an importer of corn because of an acute shortage at home. Processors are finding that they can use more Argentine corn than they formerly believed was possible. For some purposes the foreign corn is said by some to be superior to domestic grain.

Both the July and September future contracts in corn closed the week above the corresponding wheat contracts. It is noteworthy, however, that December wheat is still selling at a substantial premium over corn for delivery in that month.

OBSERVERS FIND GOOD AND BAD IN TRADE SIGNS

Shakeout Seen Restoring Market to Balance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 9.—Week-end comment reflects a wide divergence of opinion over the stock market's immediate status and nearby outlook. Many brokers profess to see the market regaining its equilibrium after its severe shakeout in recent weeks and find substantial grounds not only in the improved technical position of the list but in the uninterrupted run of constuctive trade news for a fresh recovery movement.

Others, with the government's uncertain fiscal policies and the enormous expansion of instalment buying which is financing much of the present production activity in mind, are stressing the need for continued caution until the situation shows more convincing signs of clearing.

Traders Are Nervous.

Between these conflicting views the rank and file trader appears at the moment to be torn by what one widely read commentator describes as a "feeling of nervousness and uncertainty" unparalleled since the gloomy days of March, 1933. In the words of this particular observer the "day by day developments are becoming so complex that even the hardy speculators are beginning to lose their nerve."

Some statistical backing for this somewhat pessimistic view of the situation was furnished in last week's dealings on the stock exchange, which fell to the lowest volume total since June 6, 1936. The daily turnover averaged hardly 769,000 shares, with price movements generally sluggish and insignificant. Trends, however, were mildly upward—a natural sequence after the preceding week's sell-off in the opinion of the chart readers. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's average of fifty stocks showed a net gain on the week of 2.09 points, as compared with a net decline of 1.09 points in the preceding week.

Rail Issues Strong.

About the nearest approach to a group feature was a strong upward surge of the carrier shares and rail equipment issues toward the last of the week. Some credit for this was found in the steady increase in the number of weekly freight carloadings which some traders profess to see as about the most cheerful index of the current market picture. Steel, motor, and store stocks also made appreciable progress in the five and one-half trading sessions.

Metal shares found new friends in Saturday's abbreviated dealings, thanks in some measure to the Anaconda quarterly earnings' report showing net profit from all sources of about $1.08 a share, the best showing for any three months in about eight years. Preferred shares of different group found thin markets throughout the week and distinguish themselves by wide price swings in both directions.

London Boom Fades.

The breakdown in the recent London speculation in commodities and securities, which had caused concern in speculative circles here earlier in the month, was mentioned in many market "letters" as a favorable development and predictions of its healthful influence on local trading were featured. On the other hand signs developed of a growing concern over the nation's unbalanced budget and the supposedly increasing prospects of higher taxes.

Foreign Trade Convention Will Be Held in Cleveland

Cleveland, O., May 9.—(AP)—J. G. Geddes, vice president of the National City Bank of Cleveland, announced today the 24th national foreign trade convention will be held in Cleveland Nov. 3 and 6. Geddes, chairman of the convention committee, said Secretary of State Cordell Hull is to be the principal speaker and will discuss world trade. The chief topic for discussion will be the stabilization of world currencies, Geddes said. The convention, he said, is expected to attract 1,500 delegates from thirty nations.

This announcement appears as a matter of record only and is under no circumstances to be construed as an offering of these securities for sale, or as an offer to buy, or as a solicitation of an offer to buy, any such securities. The offering is made only by the Prospectus, and includes only such of these securities as are not to be issued pursuant to the Exchange Offer contained in the Prospectus.

LAZARD FRÈRES & COMPANY INCORPORATED

KING, CRANDALL & LATHAM, INC.

May 10, 1937.

NEISNER BROS. STOCK OFFERED PUBLICLY TODAY

Shares of Producers Corp. Also on Market.

Public offering will be made today of securities in Neisner Brothers, Inc., chain store operators, and Producers corporation, Chicago, which owns mineral rights and royalty and leasehold interests in oil and gas lands.

A syndicate headed by Lehman Brothers will offer approximately 10,200 shares of Neisner Brothers 4¾ per cent convertible serial preferred stock, $100 par value, at $104 a share. These shares represent the unexchanged balance of 25,000 shares recently offered holders of 7 per cent cumulative convertible preferred.

Will Redeem Preferred.

Entire cash proceeds will be applied, together with an additional amount to be supplied by the company out of general funds, to the redemption of unexchanged 7 per cent preferred on or about June 10 at $115 a share plus accrued dividends.

The 4¾ per cent preferred is convertible into common at the rate of two shares of common for each share of preferred up to May 1, 1938; 1 9-11 shares of common thereafter to March 1, 1941, and 1 7-13 shares of common thereafter to May 1, 1943.

Upon completion of the refinancing, capital will consist of 25,000 shares of 4¾ per cent preferred and 204,932 shares of $1 par common stock. There is no funded debt.

Producers Corporation Issue.

Producers corporation will be represented by 50,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, $10 par value. Initial offering is at $10 a share by a syndicate headed by Link, Gorman & Co.

Net proceeds will be used to purchase oil and gas payment contracts, to liquidate notes payable, to reimburse the treasury for retirement of preferred stocks, and for general corporate purposes.

Property Sales by HOLC Rise Sharply During March

Washington, D. C., May 9.—(AP)—The Home Owners' Loan corporation reported today its property sales during March increased sharply above February sales. General Manager Charles A. Jones said the corporation disposed of 258 properties valued at $984,989 during March, an increase of 102 in properties and 87 per cent in valuation above the February record.

Large Mine Equipment Shipments Move in Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 9.—(AP)—Heavy movement of mining equipment to Alaska points by ship and rail indicated today greatly increased operations by the larger companies and new ventures by smaller groups. Col. Otto F. Ohlson, manager of the Alaska railroad, said fifty-five freight cars loaded with about $1,000,000 worth of machinery are en route from Seward.

CALIFORNIA BUSINESS UP.

Business activity in California in March was at the highest level since 1930, according to an index compiled by the Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco. The index, based on the 1923-'25 average, was at 109.1 for March. In February the index number was 108.1.

Y-O-U-R O-W-N B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S.

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shopworkers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition, and for which there is a constantly increasing demand.

Now here are our arrangements: You must be between 24 and 54, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance, and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side and Southern Cook County.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview, and if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we can even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Monday, 10 to 12:30 a. m. and 1 to 2 p. m.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Miscellaneous.

MEN WHO WANT TO MAKE GOOD!

The type of men we have openings for are men who have not permitted past conditions to crush them, and who have not become indifferent to opportunities. The United States is now doing what it has accomplished in various ways before on thirteen separate occasions. We are emerging from our fourteenth depression. And as in all previous situations of like nature, there are men who have come through the trial with colors flying—ready to build anew.

You will meet men like that in this organization—a good many of them. E. J. A. taught biology and worked at a few odd jobs before he joined this organization in 1932. He says, "The first year and a half I made a good living . . . and the last two years made an exceptionally fine living, banked $4,600, won a Chevrolet, and completely refurnished a 6 room apartment." Up to the first of May, his earnings this year were well over $1560—averaging around $390 per month in commissions alone. V. J. C., a former upholsterer, has earned a good living since he started here in August, 1931. His monthly earnings this year have averaged about $222 for the first 4 months; J. D., a former salesman, had a real struggle. He started from nothing and built up a consistently good income. His average monthly earnings up to May this year were well over $250. P. B., whose earnings for the same time averaged more than $350 a month on this electrical appliance, formerly a stock broker, joined this company in Sept., 1935, when he found his earth cut in two.

These are a few of the many—and you can meet all these and more. B. C. W. was a preacher with no experience in this work, but he makes a mighty fine living in this business, which has yet to close its doors against men who have that old fighting spirt in them. You often read in stories about men gaining a hearing on their face value. It happens here in real life so long as a man is earnest, honest, ambitious. We positively have no place for the man who is living wholly in the past, or who is a pessimist or a dissenter. There is nothing to buy or invest—and the work is permanent. Apart from the question of your liking us and this work, is the question of our believing you are adapted to it. An interview will settle that for both of us and you are invited to call at Room 604, 20 E. Jackson-blvd., Chicago, Monday, May 10, between 9:30 and 12:30 only.

MEN—STEADY WORK.

We will hire 5 men at once who live in Rogers Park, Evanston, or North Shore towns, train them thoroughly at our factory branch; at our expense, and employ them immediately in permanent positions, full time.

Married men preferred, as these positions are responsible and we require no investment or deposit, but you must be reputable and able to learn this work as taught. This is steady, profitable sales work, but our method of putting the prospect into the market for our electrical unit invention is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning new men must be satisfied with comm. earnings of $35 to $45 per week, but later can increase this substantially. Previous experience not important, because our method is so unusual, but applicants must be willing to work hard and study to qualify for the higher incomes. Apply Mr. K. Brown, Sheridan Plaza hotel, Wilson-av. and Sheridan-rd., Monday, May 10, at 10 a. m. or 2:30 p. m.

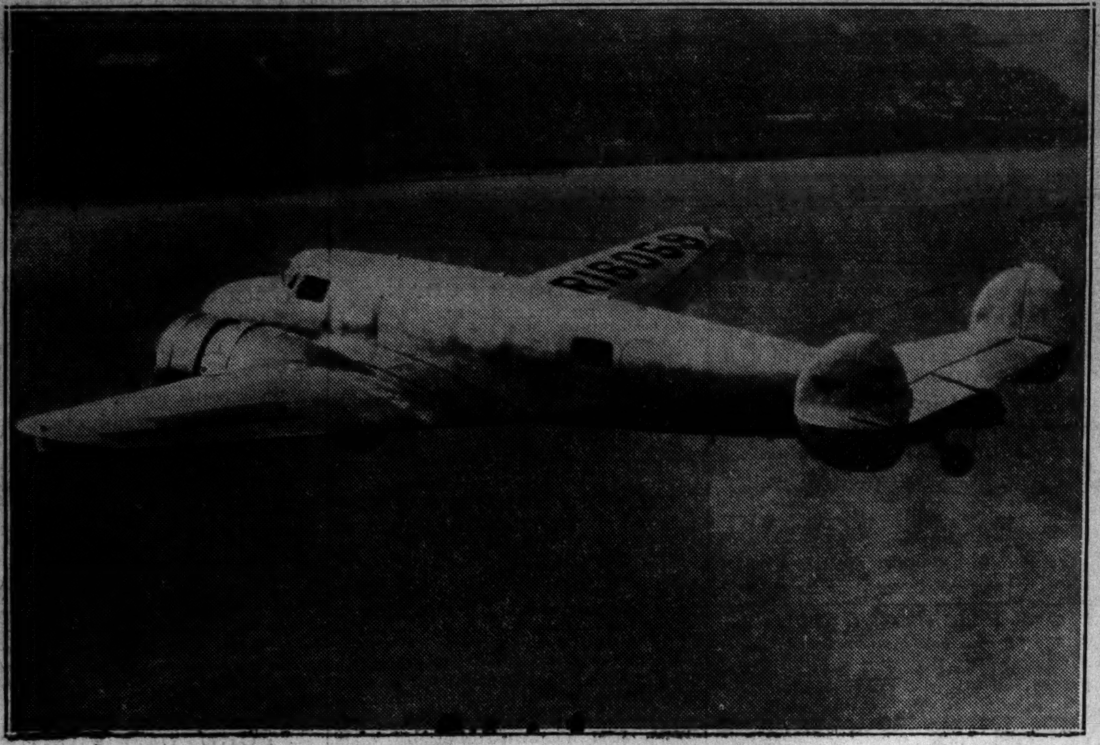
Dick Merrill Speeds Over Atlantic on Coronation Flight to London—First Ocean Hop of 1937 Season



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

NEARLY 500 CCC BOYS TAKE PART IN RELIGIOUS PROGRAM—Scene at Orchestra hall last night with youths from three camps massed on stage before members of the Sunday Evening club. It was said to be the first time a congregation of civilians has sat in on a typical worship as conducted by army chaplains in CCC camps. (Story on page 6.)

CAMERA STUDIES OF PRESIDENT ON FISHING TRIP

President Roosevelt takes it easy in his fishing boat in the Gulf of Mexico, while Barney Farley, veteran fishing guide, wields the rod. The fun is scheduled to end tomorrow, when the President will start back to Washington. There he will confront a widening split in the Democratic majority in congress and decisions on major issues.

Fisherman Roosevelt smiles and holds up two fingers to indicate his success in hooking two big tarpon. One weighed 77 pounds, the best catch of the trip.

TORTURE VICTIM—Mrs. Rose Lederer, 68, beaten and kicked by bandits who demanded money. (Story on page 2.)

SUPERHIGHWAYS PROPOSED FOR CHICAGOLAND

Map shows 340 miles of superhighways recommended by Chicago Regional Planning association for 15 counties in the metropolitan area. They would cost $81,600,000, within the means of existing road revenue. Rural routes would connect on the outskirts of Chicago with modern urban facilities, such as the proposed elevated highway system, shown in inset, which is recommended by the city council trafic committee. (Story on page 5.)

Cross section of the type of rural superhighway proposed, with opposing streams of trafic separated and passenger cars separated from trucks. Four lanes would be provided for express travel and two lanes for trucks in each direction. Grade separations would be built at all railroads and at important highway intersections.
